The Lady of the Shoppe.
Land of No Poverty.
A Wandering Moon.
¼ of a Cent Per Mile.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HEARST RANCH, SAN SIMEON, Cal., Feb. 10.

PAUL SHOUP'S fast train, the "Lark," on its way from Los Angeles to San Francisco, stops at San Luis Obispo at 2:15 a. m. and leaves you opposite the Coffee Shoppe, a small wooden shack. Railroad men in overalls, starting the day's work, cheerfully, get breakfast there.

ONE orders bacon and eggs, adding "Fry the eggs lightly." Translated for the cook, invisible, by a young lady with curls around her chin, the order changes to "Bacon and. Easy on the bacon."

THIS young lady, dignified at all times, and affable, has her precise methods. A stranger from New York she does not see. Railroad men are the real people to her. The two Pullman porters get the bottles of milk they demand, drinking from the bottle. She takes their money, dropping it in the till from the tips of her fingers, as who should say "To this, fate condemns me. But I do not murmur." Then she talks earnestly to the young railroad man with the deep chest who has slapped every other railroad man on the back, violently.

THIS the land of no poverty, having been settled by Swiss and Portuguese immigrants, long ago. The Swiss are dairymen, the Portuguese do general farming. Both work hard, always, hence the "no poverty."

At first it was embarrassing for the good priest who celebrated a solemn festival with feeding the poor a necessary part of the ceremonies. However, his parishioners oblige by pretending to be poor, once a year, and all goes smoothly.

AS YOU motor 50-odd miles along the Pacific from San Luis to this ranch, the moon sinking in the ocean, to rise presently in China, behaves strangely.

It appears, on your left, from behind a rock three hundred feet high. Then it shines above a hill on your right, and presently it is behind you.

The moon seems to behave, as for many of us, success seems to behave. It appears in all directions, and always out of reach. But it is the winding road we follow that causes the seeming unreasonableness. If we went straight ahead, moon and success would not jump around.

"WHISTLE" M'ANINCH, who drives the big Packard car for Steve Zegar, says, "No fog, so we can do sixty nicely." This to reassure you. He does seventy, nicely, telling you that cows do not get on the road as much as they used to do, and anyhow, with the moon, you can see them.

IT IS a queer-shaped moon, looking like the penny you used to put on the railroad track, after the train has passed over it.

Miss Katherine Dayton, who is distinctly highbrow and writes for Horace Lorimer, tells you later that it was a "gibbous" moon. Whatever it was, it gave little light, as it dropped into the Pacific.

"EVERY once in a while," says Whistle—and his saying is important to railroad presidents,—"some of us boys run down to Los Angeles.

"For four of us, in a small car, the round trip, four hundred and forty miles, cost us each about $1.10, including some running around in L. A."

The railroad fare, one way, is more than eight dollars, as against the cost of 55 cents, one way, by perfected motor car.

THE fact, plus airplane competition, will call for railroad attention, some day.

Mr. Smith, late president of New York Central, planned an elevated road above his tracks, for suburban motor traffic automobile toll to reimburse the railroad, while serving the public.

PAUL SHOUP might build an overhead road above the tracks, from San Diego to his Portland terminal and on to Seattle, with no cross roads to create delay or danger.

Tolls on private automobiles would pay well, and light railroad-owned automobile busses, would multiply railroad dividends, making heavy passenger trains unnecessary.

A light automobile carries more than its weight in passengers. The average Pullman car averages less than 5 per cent of its weight in passengers. Some one will try this, perhaps P. E. Crowley of New York Central, carrying out his predecessor's idea; Mr. Shoup, perhaps General Atterbury of the Pennsylvania, with a beginning from New York to Philadelphia, or W. B. Storey of the Santa Fe.

All these men have, wisely, adopted air traffic as an auxiliary. Not one has utilized the light, cheap transportation, made possible by the gas engine and the marvelous uninterrupted right of way above the tracks.

CLIMBING the hill, 1,600 feet up from the ocean edge, to this ranch house, the moon is seen no more. The big lion in the ranch zoo is roaring dismally, perhaps from loneliness, making you glad that iron bars DO make a cage.

What does a lion feel and think, as he roars, in California,

GRAND DUCHESS MARIE

Grand Duchess Marie, of Russia, cousin of the late Czar and related to King George, of England, and other royal families of Europe, who is in Pittsburgh today to discuss Romanoff history, sartorial economics and her views of democracy before the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, sees no hope of the return of a monarchy in her native country.

"Will the Czar system come back?" she repeated the question—and then: "Oh, heavens, no! I—I expect to live—and die—in America."

The grand duchess sat on a satin-covered bench before a blazing log fire in the library of Mrs. Katharine D. Murdoch, her hostess, at 5547 Bartlett street.

Walking down the street she would be taken for the cultured

Antiseptic Poured Over Rations; Woman Stoned, Five Deputies Attacked

Four developments attended the strike of the 1,400 taxicab drivers today as it entered its fifth week:

1—A foreign substance, which was spread on food by vandals who broke into the drivers' relief headquarters, was analyzed as mercurichrome, according to a chemist's report.

2—The first woman victim of strike violence lay semi-conscious in Mercy Hospital after being struck in the head with a brick tossed through a cab.

3—An imported driver reported he was hit on the head when a group of 50 to 100 strike sympathizers had stoned his cab at Denniston avenue near Penn avenue today.

4—A commissary was being installed in the Green Cab plant in Melwood street to take care of 65 new drivers as part of the company's effort to run cabs with new employes.

5—Five deputy sheriffs reported that they were stoned by strike sympathizers as they sat in an emergency car alongside the East Liberty station this afternoon. None was hurt and nobody was arrested.

The woman victim was Mrs. Helen Dorbich, 35, of Aliquippa. She was en route to the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie station from the Pennsylvania station last night when a brick crashed through a window of the cab. Full extent of her injuries has not been determined.

155 INDICTED IN CHICAGO RUM PLOT

31 Business Concerns Also Accused in Diversion of Huge Alcohol Supply

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Indictments naming 155 persons and 31 business houses charging a nation-wide conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law were returned here today before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

The indictment, one of the largest ever drawn up here, charged 247 overt acts and that 20,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol had been diverted by the bootleg ring.

NATION-WIDE

Violations in Chicago, New York, Detroit, Cleveland, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Los Angeles and North Bergen, N. J., were cited.

The central figure of the Chicago organization was Anastazoff Sirebern, chemist, who discovered a process by which perfumes made from industrial alcohol and the oils which he developed could be redistilled and the alcohol recovered in its pure state from denaturants.

Sreben, according to the indictments, organized a vast chemical company and secured a permit to withdraw alcohol for the ostensible purpose of manufacturing toilet waters. From 1923 to the present day he is charged with fostering a gigantic bootlegging ring.

CONCERNS NAMED

Among the concerns reported named in the indictment were the Standard Laboratories, St. Louis; the Nipola Company, St. Paul, and the following concerns in New York: The Allied Drug and Chemical Company, Joubert Cie, Inc., E. M. Laving Company, Norda Essential Oil Company, C. H. Selick, Inc., Dee Drug Company, and the Malden Lane Drug Company.

The 22 other firms were located in Chicago.

The conpiracy charged in the indictment was one of the most widespread of any the government has developed since prohibition. Federal prohibition investigators of Cleveland, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and Minneapolis among other places, took part in the inquiry.

The method pursued by the conspiracy, government agents said, was comparatively simple. The alcohol was obtained from the government ostensibly for use in the manufacture of perfumes, toilet articles, medicinal remedies and similar products. The alcohol then passed through a chemical process which allegedly removed the denaturants.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—The federal grand jury here today indicted 11 men, including three prohibition enforcement agents, for conspiracy to divert $1,000,000 of alcohol to illegal sources. A separate indictment was returned against the Glenwood Industrial Alcohol Distilling Company.

Two Homestead Men Fight Duel With Eggs

Frank Lobona, 35, and Elmer Bond, 34, both of Eighth avenue and West street, Homestead, believe in dueling.

But they are exact in conducting the "affair of honor" in a truly modern mode. And furthermore they contend that no animosity prompts the events.

Shortly after dawn today both went to the Homestead Athletic park. Each carried with him a dozen of strictly fresh eggs. Both squared off to 20 paces while Joseph Kelly acted as referee.

Then the barrage started. Lobona won with three direct hits on Bond's face. Kelly then stopped the encounter, declaring Lobona victorious.

The duel seems to be a yearly feature between the two men, friends said. One last year ended in a draw. Someone intimated the eggs were rotten.

What it's all about, no one seems to know, except that it provided "fun" for more than 50 friends of the "friendly enemies."

VICTIM OF PLOT, SAYS BERKEY

Prohibition agents and Somerset newspapermen conspired against him, former Judge John A. Berkey charged today when he returned to the stand in Federal Court to deny the government's charges that he and 14 others formed a booze ring in Somerset County.

"I knew that these agents—Howard Harvey, C. S. Johnston and Robert Krause and the newspapermen, James Imler and Robert Skull—were together frequently in Burgess William Beachy's office," Berkey testified. "I was suspicious that they were preparing a conspiracy against me."

"WARNED BURGESS"

"I met Beachy and told him of his illegal conduct with those federal officers. I accused him of 'sweating' liquor prisoners in his office.

"The reason I refused to let the agents question a county prisoner, James Turnbull, in jail unless I was present was because I suspected this conspiracy against me.

"I had had two of the agents before me in court Johnston was convicted of stealing $600 in a raid and Harvey was acquitted of perjury."

Death Halts Graduation, Gets Posthumus Degree

Dominic A. Ventomiller was to receive the degree of bachelor of arts at Pitt this morning. His father, a night watchman, was looking forward to the proudest day of his life, when Dominic would at last be prepared to enter the teaching profession.

Tuesday he told one of his friends that he thought he would put off the teaching job promised him in Stowe Township until fall. He was tired, needed a rest.

Thursday he mounted the stairs to his room in the humble little Ventomiller home at 150 Highland avenue, West Park. He must study for his last examination. Downstairs, Elizabeth, his sister, heard a noise as though something fell. A heart attack had seized her brother. He was dead when relatives reached him.

Nearly 50 of the little community attended the funeral. Sorrowing for the loss of one of their most promising friends, they heard with joy that he would receive a posthumous degree from the university. It was conferred while the funeral service was being held.

Dominic's father had supported him to the middle of his junior year. Then Dominic wanted to take some of the weight off his shoulders. He went to work in the postoffice. Sometimes he worked until two or three o'clock in the morning.

But now all that is over.

OIL MAGNATE DENOUNCES 'POLITICS'

Doherty Charges Clique Plot To Control Government; Norris and Blaine Opposed

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The appointment of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice of the United States was approved today by the Senate Judiciary Committee over the protest of its chairman and after an amazing attack on Hughes' judicial qualifications by Henry L. Doherty, the oil king and capitalist.

Doherty charged Hughes was unfit for the Supreme Court because of a course springing "from unwarranted self-assurance or a display of temper due to self opinionation, irritation or prejudice." He declared Hughes' appointment was made by President Hoover for "political reasons" and was part of a program which many people believed was designed to turn the government over to a "small clique."

NORRIS, BLAINE OPPOSED

In the face of these charges, contained in two letters from Doherty to Chairman Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, which were read into the record, the committee reported Hughes' appointment favorably by a vote of 10 to two. Only Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, joined with Norris in opposing the appointment.

Norris said he regretted having to oppose Hughes, as he had a high regard for his qualifications. His objection was based on the fact that Hughes had resigned from the Supreme Court to run for the presidency, had lost, and now was returned to the court with a promotion.

"That kind of practice will injure the effectiveness of the Supreme Court and the respect in which it is held," he asserted. "The court will become a football of politics. Judges will mix up with politicians. They will make decisions along political lines. They will run for office and if they fail they will come back and get a promotion."

CONFIRMATION EXPECTED

Norris added that he would not make an extended fight against Hughes on the floor of the Senate, and early confirmation of his nomination is expected.

Hughes was appointed a week ago to succeed William Howard

MACDONALD REPORTS PARLEY'S PROGRESS TO COMMONS

NAVAL CUT METHOD IN SIGHT

Premier Answers Baldwin; Asserts Long-Standing Obstacles Are Fading

By HARRY R. FLORY
International News Service.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—"We are now nearing an agreement on the difficult questions relating to the method by which naval limitation shall be accomplished," Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald announced in the House of Commons today.

While the members of the other delegations attending the five-power naval conference were strengthening their hands in preparation for the full open plenary session scheduled in St. James Palace tomorrow, the British prime minister appeared in the House of Commons to report the progress being achieved by the conference.

QUIZZED BY BALDWIN

The Premier was closely questioned by Former Premier Stanley Baldwin, Conservative.

"Progress is being made all along the line," MacDonald declared.

The questions relating to the methods of limitation, on which he said an agreement now appears imminent had been a stumbling block in the way of the League of Nations Preparatory Disarmament Commission, for years.

Referring to the official statement of Britain's position at the present conference which was issued on Friday, Premier MacDonald said this memorandum had not been "drawn up in agreement with any other delegation" at the conference.

This was in refutation of inferences that in preparing the memorandum the British delegation had consulted or at least conferred with the American delegates.

HUGE U. S. SHIP ASKED

America's desire to build one huge new battleship as part of the program of naval parity with Great Britain was disclosed today.

This is part of a new proposal by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson for equalization of the two nations battleship fleets by 1931 instead of 1942.

The proposal would involve the scrapping of a fourth battleship in addition to the three scrappings provided for in the British and American parity programs, but this vessel would be replaced by one great battleship equal in armament and speed to the British battleships Rodney and Nelson, the most powerful warships afloat.

NEW FORMULA DENIED

The ship which would be scrapped to make way for the new sea monster would probably be the U. S. S. Arkansas, the scrapping, according to the proposal, would take place in 1931, the new ship being laid down simultaneously.

A report circulated in the United States that the American government had suggested a new disarmament formula involving the scrapping of the heavy British battleships of the Queen Elizabeth class was flatly denied in authoritative circles.

The heads of the various delegations met this morning and surveyed in some detail the present state of the parley's program. The first committee of the conference is continuing its discussion of submarine limitation and the question of global and categorical tonnage limitations for auxiliaries, which are expected to be the principal issues before tomorrow's plenary session.

2 BANDITS ROB STREET CAR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Copying train robbery methods of the old West, two men early today boarded a Washington street car, held up its crew and escaped in a waiting automobile with approximately $1,000.

No passenger was molested. The two youths apparently concentrated on a leather bag carried by the motorman, which, in addition to fares, held Christmas Club savings of employes.

Earlier the pair and an accomplice robbed a Negro taxicab driver, left him tied to a tree in the suburbs, and confiscated his car. They used the machine to escape after the trolley hold up.

DOPE HELD LURE IN ROBBERIES

Dope was the lure that prompted a number of the recent burglaries of pharmacies, William T. Duffy, chief of the Pittsburgh office of the Federal narcotic authorities, asserted today. He reported that the robbed druggists had notified him their store of narcotics was stolen.

Commenting on the connection between dope and the crime wave, Duffy said the enormous profit to be made by peddlers of the stuff was one of the factors that made it difficult to stamp out the traffic.

"We have information from confidential sources in the Pittsburgh underworld," said Duffy, "that morphine is being bootlegged at from $75 to $80 an ounce. One of the wholesale drug houses is offering it to the legitimate trade at $10.95 a ounce. Cocaine is being bootlegged at $50 an ounce, while the legitimate price, as quoted by the same drug concern is $11.75."

Tightening of the regulations for the use of narcotics and separation of the narcotic office from the Prohibition Bureau, as contemplated in Representative Stephen G. Porter's bills, are recommended by Duffy as measures that will be helpful in coping with the dope traffic.

A conference between Duffy and Dr. C. B. Maits, director of public health, has been arranged, in preparation for a campaign of narcotic education in Pittsburgh. Women's clubs and civic bodies are to co-operate.

10 MEN ARRESTED

Several cabs were stoned at Sixth avenue and Grant street last night. In connection with the stoning 10 arrests were made. Fines ranging from $10 to $25 were imposed.

The mass meeting in Moose Temple yesterday was announced as the last one for an indefinite period, members of the executive committee having decided upon an economic policy of diverting funds which otherwise would go towards rent for a meeting place into the relief fund. Two men arrested after the meeting for distributing Communistic literature were each fined $10.

American girl. Her accent is that of Tide-water Virginia with a dash of Beacon street Bostonese. She says she likes everything American except our slang, and confesses she does not understand it.

Her highness has one distinctly Yankee attribute in her energy and thrift. She turned her back on Russia and on the courts of Europe and decided to pioneer in America.

She threw a kiss to the statue of liberty and stepped right in New York, went uptown to an exclusive section and opened a smart shop for women.

Her business career successfully launched, she turned to the literary field and wrote her memoirs. The editors say her book has opened up a field of original material for historians.

"I like the Americans," she says with an air of pride in their comradeship. "American men seem to be ideal husbands—strong, generous, even-tempered and courteous to all women."

Today the grand duchess spent some time at the Carnegie Museum, where she was shown some of the interesting collections by Dr. Andre Avinoff, the director. What she said on her return to Mrs. Murdoch's would have made Dr. Avinoff's ears tingle.

"It is a wonderful place and how proud am I that one of my countrymen has charge of it. Dr. Avinoff has made a world-wide reputation as a scientist. He did not surprise us with the skeleton of the diplodocus because your Dr. W. J. Holland has placed repelicas of that fossil in nearly every European museum."

Try to Identify Body as Missing Bank Clerk

Efforts are being made today by relatives of Harold Graham, missing 19-year-old Mellon bank messenger, to identify the body of an unidentified youth buried at Portsmouth, O., by a Charleston, W. Va., woman in mistake for her son.

If the description of clothes and other marks of identification tally with the relatives' description of young Graham, it was learned today from Coroner Virgil E. Fowler of Portsmouth, he will order the body exhumed.

J. H. Graham, of Fairmont, W. Va., a brother, has appealed to West Virginia State police to find a Mrs. Elizabeth Hammond in Charleston, who, according to records in Portsmouth, claimed the body as that of her son, who later appeared alive. Mr. and Mrs. William Graham, of Bolivar, parents of the youth who disappeared from Pittsburgh after he is alleged to have left a note addressed to Miss Peggy Sill, a Carnegie Tech student, are pushing the investigation.

Relatives hope to be able to verify their identification through a description of young Graham's dental work and the clothes he wore when last seen here more than a year ago.

917 ARRESTED IN CHICAGO GANG DRIVE

Two More Slain as Police Start War on Hoodlums; Chieftains Escape Net

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Goaded on by two more wanton slayings, Chicago's unpaid police force today continued its wholesale war and raids on gangsters, gunmen and hoodlums which in the last 24 hours has resulted in the seizure of 917 suspects.

Working night and day, uniformed officers and detectives gathered together nearly 1,000 underworld characters and suspects. Of these 271 were herded together in a gigantic showup where recent victims scrutinized them under the glare of arc lights.

This morning 646 were freed for the time being because Illinois law makes it difficult to get convictions on gun-toting charges. The police plan, however, to arrest the undesirables over and over again.

NINE SLAIN IN 10 DAYS

The search for gunmen speeded up yesterday when two more lives were taken as one party of motorists poured a blaze of pistol fire into another automobile. These two deaths made the fatalities for 10 days of street gunning here total nine. Two have been seriously wounded.

The victims, Herbert Giers, 23, and Anthony Kilbery, 20, were shot dead because of a dispute over the right of way with an automobile containing four Negro musicians.

In all the prisoners taken yesterday and last night, no gang leader or lieutenant was seized. Word from gangland was that news of the impending raids was current before the roundup began.

Ten of the captives carried revolvers and they will be prosecuted through grand jury action, the state's attorney said. None of these will be charged with any of the nine murders that has roused the public and led to police action, it was disclosed.

40,000 AGAIN PAYLESS

Another payless week loomed today for 40,000 city, county and school board employes with no apparent relief in sight for Chicago's frenzied governmental finances.

Added to the previous financial troubles which threaten to bring bankruptcy, was the announcement today of an interest bill of more than $8,500,000 on tax anticipation warrants outstanding since May 1, 1929, when 1928 taxes should have been collected.

Taft, who resigned because of illness. Word from the Taft home here today was that the former chief justice was much better than when he returned from a stay at Asheville, N. C., and that he was constantly "gaining in strength."

VOICES ALARM

Doherty charged there had been "unseemly haste" in naming Hughes. He regretted the fact the President had given Hughes a promotion on the Supreme Court after Hughes had "capitalized into wealth the prestige and influence acquired by the honor done him by his (first) appointment" to the court. He said he was alarmed that a "political machine" had been built up in Washington so strong as to be "extended to embrace the judicial branch of the government."

He also charged President Hoover's appointments to high public offices were "primarily prompted by political rather than meritorious reasons."

Doherty wrote the committee two letters. In one he said:

"I feel that no justice of the Supreme Court should resign to run for political office nor should he capitalize into wealth the prestige and influence accrued by the honor done him by his appointment, and if he does do this, he should neither expect nor receive reappointment and certainly not advancement to the position of chief justice.

INFLUENCE FEARED

"Such a course must initiate, encourage and stimulate political activity on the part of the Supreme Court judges and thereby influence them to render popular rather than just decisions. It also condones and encourages the judges to use the honor done them by appointment to the Supreme Court as a mere stepping stone to more lucrative occupations."

In his second letter, Doherty bewailed the fact Justice Hughes' son, Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., was being moved about as "though he were a mere pawn on a chess board." He referred to the resignation of young Hughes as solicitor general of the United States. He continued:

"I have heard that this is only the first disclosure in a series of political maneuvers which is probably aimed to give political control of the country to a small group of men and it is common report that already President Hoover's supporters are at work to make Mr. Hughes, Jr., the governor of New York.

FAMILY OFFICES HIT

"Perhaps the extent of the dreams and plans for the political control of the country are known only to the President himself or his political managers and I do not see how the situation can fail to alarm every thoughtful citizen. If the highest offices in the land are to be distributed as personal favors or to build up an unbreakable political machine, we will drag national politics to the level of ward politics which have at times characterized some of the worst conditions that have prevailed in some of our individual cities.

"Any attempt to elevate whole families to positions of public control should be resisted by everyone who wants to perpetuate a Republican form of government.

"It appears that so much has already been accomplished that most men with political aspirations are afraid to speak and I do not blame them, for behind President Hoover and Judge Hughes there are many men who control corporations of fabulous wealth and employ able lawyers of extensive and powerful influence.

"The leaders of the oil industry alone represent enormous wealth and they not only feel that President Hoover is their friend but that Judge Hugres, who acted as their adviser and has fought their battles for them before some of the government bureaus, is and will remain their friend."

'CAMPAIGN DEBT'

Doherty also quoted a New York newspaper which said Hoover appointed Hughes to "pay a campaign debt."

Senator Norris remarked that he was "opposed to Mr. Hughes' views. He represents with ability and conscientiousness, the viewpoint of big business, of monopolies, of trusts and combinations. These views have become a part of the man.

"We are approaching some of the most important decisions ever presented to the Supreme Court. The Radio Corporation claims a vested right in the air. Mr. Hughes, as attorney for this corporation, represented such doctrines before the court. If it is decided that way by the Supreme Court, it will enable trusts and combinations to control every avenue of human activity.

"I admit this will not appeal to people who have different ideas from mine. Those people are in power and evidently are going to carry out their theories."

The committee's roll call showed Senators Deneen, Illinois; Gillett, Massachusetts; Robinson, Indiana; Steiwer, Oregon; Waterman, Colorado, and Hebert, Rhode Island, Republicans, and Overman, North Carolina; Ashurst, Arizona; Walsh, Montana and Stephens, Mississippi, Democrats, voting for confirmation.

PHOTOGRAPHER DIES IN CRASH

Lloyd A. Schaeffer, 37, a Sun-Telegraph photographer, is dead today and John W. Bert, 23, also a photographer for the Sun-Telegraph, is in Pittsburgh Hospital, seriously injured, the result of a collision of Schaeffer's automobile with a street car in Aspinwal early yesterday. Schaeffer was recognized as one of the outstanding newspaper photographers in Pittsburgh.

Schaeffer was driving Bert to the latter's home in First street, Blawnox, before returning to his home at 1034 Penn street, Sharpsburg, when his machine collided with a car in Freeport road, at Center avenue.

Funeral services for Schaeffer will be held Wednesday from the home of his brother, William R. Schaeffer, 305 Twenty-first street, Sharpsburg. He also leaves another brother, Harold M. Schaeffer, and a sister, Mrs. R. Hartley, of Brooklyn. He was a member of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Sharpsburg.

Shunk Brown is in the governor fight to a finish and with Samuel S. Lewis, a Grundy supporter, preparing to file nominating petitions, the proposed harmony ticket seems farther away than ever.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis is not to be considered out of the governor's race, it was reported today. Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong is one of his most prominent backers, and Mayor Charles H. Kline is said to be favorably inclined to him. If a fight develops there is a possibility that both will be in the Davis camp, regardless of arrangements made by other state leaders.

MOTORS HERE

Gov. Fisher motored here from his home in Indiana, making his headquarters at the University Club. After receiving a degree at the University of Pittsburgh commencement exercises, he attended a luncheon at the club. His conference with Mr. Mellon started sometime later.

A. Boyd Hamilton, head of the executive committee of the Republican State Commitee, also arrived in Pittsburgh today. He visited Mellon and is planning to see the governor late today.

SUBSTITUTE DRY LAW OFFERED

Proposal Has Temperance as Object; Graham Backs Plan as 'Compromise'

By WILLIAM S. NEAL,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Laying of a foundation for a compromise between the moderates and drys of the nation by substituting a "temperance system" for the present prohibition policy was disclosed today by Representative George S. Graham (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, as the real purpose of the committee's dry repeal bill hearings which begin February 12.

FAVORS SUBSTITUTED

Graham, a noted lawyer and a liberal, announced he favors the proposal introduced in the House by Representative Sabath (Dem.), of Illinois, to change the eighteenth amendment to leave Congress and the states free to adopt new prohibition systems.

Banning absolute repeal of the Eighteenth amendment from serious consideration, the 79-year-old committee head declared the antis must provide a substitute better than prohibition.

On this basis, he said, the first real House hearings on prohibition repeal bills in a decade will assume real importance, despite the ridicule heaped by drys upon them.

With both liberals and drys centering their attention upon these hearings purposely set by Graham to begin on Lincoln's birthday—other developments in the capital's prohibition row included:

Senator Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana was to introduce his resolution for a complete investigation of prohibition and demand prompt action by the Senate.

ASKS BIGGER FUND

Bishop James Cannon Jr., militant dry, called upon Congress to vote whatever money is needed "to crush rebellion" and make the liquor buyer equally guilty with the seller.

House sent to Senate the Williamson bill transferring the prohibition bureau to Justice Department, with indications it will be delayed many weeks because of the tariff.

Rising to a question of personal privilege, Senator Jones (Rep.), of Washington, author of the "five and ten" law, denied charges of Representative La Guardia (Rep.), of New York, that he had blocked an investigation into prohibition enforcement in his state. Jones read and inserted in the record a letter to LaGuardia, rebuking him for "false personal attacks."

gineered the sale of "protection" to bootleggers and slot-machine operators in Somerset County.

The jurist denied even knowing some of his co-defendants, with whom he is accused of conspiring, and he supplied a much different report of his meeting with Foster Ziegler, alleged Somerset bootlegger.

'GIFT OF TROUT'

Berkey said Ziegler came to his office to present him with some trout. Claude A. M. Welsh, government's star witness, had testified that this was the meeting at which Berkey engineered the sale of protection to bootleggers to supply funds for Berkey's political campaign.

"Ziegler called a second time because he was interested in having a road paved, and asked me to get in touch with the highway department," Berkey added.

SECOND DAY ON STAND

Judge Berkey began his testimony late Friday. Friday afternoon he recited his record as president judge of Somerset County courts for 10 years and as state banking commissioner for several years.

Defense attorneys say they will not call all the 75 witnesses under subpena, and have pared down the list as far as possible.

so far from Africa? And what does "Jerry," the big chimpanzee feel, when he, also from Africa, hears that roaring. He knows what it means.

JERRY and the lion would doubtless laugh, like good atheists, if you told them that a superior being, beyond their comprehension, has transported them from Africa across the Atlantic, and out to the Pacific merely by signing "W. R. Hearst" at the bottom of the cheque.

WELL drillers are at work on this ranch, for a big company, and, following the formula "to him that hath shall be given," will doubtless find plenty of oil.

WHEN you buy land out here, you know you will buy health, and fertility, and you may buy oil, gold, copper, heaven knows what.

HOWEVER, don't despise the East. When you buy in Chicago's Loop, or North Michigan avenue, or in Park avenue, New York, near Fifty-seventh street, you know you will make money. And with that you can buy everything except, perhaps, happiness.

HOOVER BEGINS GULF STREAM FISHING

President, Facing Sullen Weather, Gets 'Ducking' Angling From Small Boat

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

LONG KEY, Fla., Feb. 10.—President Hoover brought out his heavy fishing tackle here this morning and went fishing in the Gulf Stream.

With Justice Harlan F. Stone, of the United States Supreme Court; Mark Sullivan, writer and newsppaerman, and Dr. Vernon Kellogg, the chief executive began his angling vacation from the stern of the Goofus Boy, small fishing craft, shortly after they had completed breakfast aboard the Saunterer, chartered from Jeremiah Milbank for the trip.

The anglers faced sullen weather during the day, and at times encountered short, light showers in their search for game fish.

Shortly after dawn today, the four Pullman cars bearing the holiday party were sidetracked at this fishermen's camp and soon thereafter the President and Mrs. Hoover and their guests were aboard the four houseboats upon which they will spend the next week.

HOOVER DONS FLANNELS

The two smaller boats from which the party is doing its actual fishing are named Goofus Boy and Hoo Hoo.

After breakfast President Hoover changed from his blue double-breasted business suit into flannels and as the boat pulled away from the dock he came on deck and waved to the small crowd which had gathered.

Mrs. Hoover, who also came on deck, attempted to communicate by a series of signs with her secretary, who was aboard the Kilkenny. Both waved vigorously for a moment and then laughingly gave up the attempt.

The Havana special discharged the Hoover party at 6 o'clock. It was around 7:30, however, before they left the siding for the pier where the Sounterer and the other three houseboats at their disposal were waiting. The President and his friends walked a block along a sand path fringed with palm trees to reach the dock.

GUESTS IN PARTY

There was little demonstration, for Long Key is a camp dedicated solely to those who are somewhat fanatic in their devotion to the sport of Izaak Walton. The railroad station, a small group of cottages from which the fishermen go forth every morning and a narrow strip of sand connecting up the Florida keys complete the picture.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, Associate Justice and Mrs. Stone and Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan went aboard the Saunterer. Lawrence Richey, member of the White House secretariat, and Mrs. Richey took Dr. Kellogg, old-time neighbor, aboard the Kilkenny, a Department of Commerce boat the Hoovers once used. Dr. Noel T. Boone, the White House physician; Capt. Alan Buchanan, the naval aide; Miss Myra McGrath, the President's personal stenographer, and Miss Mildred Hall, who is Mrs. Hoover's secretary, also put out on the Kilkenny. The secret service followed on the Dixie and the Terrigan, two other commerce boats.

They will remain offshore for the entire week, enjoying the first privacy of their White House incumbency. Sailfish, tarpon, kingfish and such game fish will be their objective.

DR. MAKAR SEIZED AT VERA CRUZ

Ambassador to Be Held Until Communist Activities in Country Are Traced

International News Service.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 10.—Dr. Alexander Makar, recalled Soviet minister to Mexico, today was ordered "detained" at Vera Cruz until police and military officials have thoroughly investigated the plot to assassinate President Ortiz Rubio on his inauguration day.

The Soviet minister and his wife went to Vera Cruz Saturday night to board the line steamer La Bordelise for Le Havre, en route to Moscow.

The orders for his detention were issued by the War Department today.

Dr. Makar will not be permitted to board the ship until the investigation into the alleged Communist plot to assassinate the President has been completed, it was stated.

Earlier today the Soviet envoy telegraphed to the caretaker of the Soviet legation here, vigorously protesting against his arrest in Vera Cruz and the search by police officials through his baggage the diplomatic seals on which had been broken.

Just prior to the issuance of the order for the diplomat's detention it was learned that a squad of detectives from military headquarters had searched the Soviet legation in Calle de Eliseo last night and had arrested Juan Gonzalez, a Mexican employe there.

Daniel Flores, youthful would-be assassin who wounded President Ortiz Rubio and others in the presidential party, has admitted, according to police, that he was a member of a Communist organization.

In the note breaking off diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia last month, the Mexican government bluntly declared that the Moscow government could not disavow responsibility for the actions of Communists in Mexico and other Latin-American countries.

POPE, FASCISTI STRAIN ENDED

ROME, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—On the eve of the first anniversary of the signing of the Lateran treaties there are at least three indications of greatly improved relations between the holy see and the Fascist state.

First, the vatican's instructions to parish priests to refrain from anything resembling political activity and over-zealous polemics in their weekly bulletins to parishioners.

Second, the praise which Osservatore Romano gave the movement sponsored by Fascism for the physical and moral training of Italian youth. It is understood that Augusto Turati, secretary of the Fascist party, gave the pontiff ample assurance that young Italians no longer would be trained specifically in the martial sciences or girls and young women be inducted into the strenuous athletic training criticized by the Pope.

Third, the warm approbation which the Roman Fascist press has given to the Pope's open letter of last week, condemning persecution of Christians in Russia.

Popolo di Roma devotes most of its first page to the Pope's letter. The paper expressed the hope "that in a day not too far off all civilized nations will realize their duty to intervene in defense of that which is holy and honest."

SENATORS URGE TARIFF SPEED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Leaders of all factions joined in an appeal in the Senate today for speedy disposition of the tariff bill, before that body since September 9.

Asserting the "country is anxiously awaiting action," Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, said the Senate should not adjourn on Lincoln's birthday, but should meet "every day until this bill is passed."

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee, agreed the bill should be expedited, and appealed to Senators to attend sessions to prevent "frequent unnecessary roll calls" and to refrain from discussion of irrelevant matters.

For the Republican Independents, Senator McMaster, of South Dakota, said the measure should be speeded up, but added that if the Republican Old Guard had not defeated the Borah resolution last June, to limit the revision to agriculture rates, the bill would have been out of the way by Christmas.

BLONDE DEATH CHARGE STANDS

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 10.—Denying reports from New Castle, Pa., quoting him as saying that Deputies Lee Wright and Frank Chapman had been shot by fellow-officers in the capture of Irene Schroeder and her companion, Walter Glenn Dague, Sheriff Charles H. Wright, of Maricopa County, declared that if Pennsylvania authorities fail to convict the two suspects of first degree murder requisition papers will be sought for the return of the pair here.

"Irene Dague and Joe Wells were taken into custody here following the shooting of Chapman and Wright," Sheriff Wright said, "and we are holding Wells on a first degree murder charge. A similar charge has been lodged against both Dague and Irene in connection with Wright's death and a charge of felonious assault with attempt to commit murder in the shooting of Chapman, who was shot by one of his fellow officers as well as by the three bandits when they turned him out on the desert in their attempt to escape."

PORTER, STATE JURIST, DIES

Arrangements were being made today for the funeral of Judge William David Porter, 79, president judge of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania, who died last night in the West Penn Hospital. Judge Porter had been in ill health for some time before he entered the hospital Friday.

Judge Porter had resided in Pittsburgh for many years and made his home at the Schenley Hotel.

Judge Porter was born in Hancock County, W. Va., in 1850, and came to Pennsylvania when a boy. He was a son of James S. and Elizabeth Porter. He was educated at Beaver Academy, Mantua Academy in Philadelphia, and at the University of Pennsylvania, graduating from the law school of the latter institution.

He was admitted to bar in Allegheny County in 1872 and practiced in the local courts until his election as district attorney in 1890 and a year later was elected to the Common Pleas Court bench where he served as a judge until 1898.

On July 6, 1898, Gov. Daniel H. Hastings appointed Judge Porter to a vacancy on the Superior Court. He had served continuously in that position more than 30 years. In 1906 Allegheny College granted Judge Porter the degree of doctor of laws.

Judge Porter was unmarried. He was a member of the Duquesne Club. He leaves a brother.

HOLD GIRL, MEN IN GEM THEFTS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 10.—(AP.)—A pretty 20-year-old girl, bearing three bullet wounds in her leg, and two men were brought here following their arrest in Montgomery in connection with the robbery of a jewelry store and a pawnshop in Buffalo, N. Y., recently. Police said they found several thousand dollars' worth of jewelry in their possession.

Those arrested gave their names as Miss Sallie Joyce Richards, Joe Damser and Eddie Palmer, alias Eddie Plammermeak. All denied any connection with the holdups. The bullet wounds on the woman's legs were old. She declined to say when she received them.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Capt. William R. Connolly, of the Buffalo detective bureau, said last night that a girl and two men, arrested in Montgomery will be brought back here immediately to face charges of robbery in connection with the $20,000 jewelry robbery in the store of David Glickstein, on January 28, and three previous holdups.

Connolly said that the girl is Shirley Pollard, alias Rogers, 23, of Hamilton, Ont., former circus rider and Chicago night club entertainer.

Ohio Man Arrested For Hitting Woman

ALIQUIPPA, Pa., Feb. 10.—Vinko Kovacic, of McDonald, O., was held for court on a charge of aggravated assault and battery, preferred by Louise Crane, of Aliquippa. Miss Crane charged that Kovacic struck her following an automobile collision near Hookstown, Pa., February 4.

RADIO FAILS TO REACH WILKINS

By VICTOR OLSEN,
Wireless Operator of the Wilkins-Ellsworth Antarctic Expedition at Deception Island.

DECEPTION ISLAND, Antarctica, Feb. 10.—Via Deception Island Base Station and KUP, San Francisco Examiner Wireless Station.)—Every whaler in this part of the vast Antarctic is on the alert, but they report no success in their attempted communication with the S. S. William Scoresby which left here 14 days ago with Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins and his companions.

The whalers, in addition to frequently sending their radio bearings, are keeping a close lookout for the Scoresby.

We are all growing very uneasy over the failure to hear from Capt. Wilkins.

Radio communication here never has been as excellent as it is at the present time and we are experiencing no difficulty in hearing from the whalers and from other ships in the Antarctic.

All day there has been a raging gale, the worst storm that I have seen in this section. The seas are mountainous.

There is a very, very heavy wind of considerable velocity and a heavy fall of snow and sleet. In spite of this we can very plainly hear all radio messages.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Dr. Plato T. Durham, 58, widely known orator and professor of church history at Emory University, suffered a heart attack and died while playing with his 4-year-old daughter, Lucy, at his home here today.

CHANNEL PLANE CRASH KILLS 2

MARDEN, Kent, England, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Two passengers, one a woman, were killed near here this afternoon when a French Air Union plane dived to the ground and caught fire.

The plane, battling a heavy snowstorm, carried six persons. The other passenger was injured, as were the pilot, mechanic and steward. Those who survived were thrown clear as the plane fell. The passengers were English; those in the crew were French.

The plane had left Paris for Croydon Air Field at 10:40 a. m.

Son of Lady Astor Hurt as Horse Falls

BIRMINGHAM, England, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—While "Bobby" Shaw, son of Lady Astor, was riding in a hurdle race today, his horse fell and broke its neck. Young Shaw was understood to be suffering from a slight concussion.

Robert G. Shaw is the eldest son of Lady Astor by her first marriage.

Admiral C.F. Hughes Reported Improved

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—A medical bulletin issued this morning by Commander L. L. Pratt, M. C., said Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, had passed a restful night at his home here. Admiral Hughes suffered a mild paralytic attack last Thursday.

Four Hurt as Auto Crashes Into Signal

William O. Bascon, 27, and his wife, Margaret, 22, of 1314 Woodlawn avenue; Helen Graham, 20, of 1207 Rebecca street, and Florence Kildoo, 32, of 1118 West Ohio street, were injured when an automobile hit a signal light at Fortieth and Ohio streets, Millvale, early today. They were given treatment at the Allegheny General Hospital and then taken to their homes.

STABS HIS WIFE, KILLS HIMSELF

BUTLER, Pa., Feb. 10.—Andrew Matonak, 35, is dead and his wife, Mrs. Eva Matonak, 25, is in critical condition from stab wounds, inflicted before Matonak ended his life with a revolver at their home late yesterday.

Police say Matonak had been drinking, and went to the home where Mrs. Matonak was teaching nursery rhymes to their five small children.

Later, when she went to the basement, the man shot at his wife, but missed her.

After beating her with a pistol, Matonak stabbed his wife as she fled up the stairway. Then Matonak shot himself.

William F. Beatty, a Pittsburgh attorney, who was passing the home, took Mrs. Matonak to the hospital in his automobile and notified Butler police of the attack.

Plot to Wreck Train Fails, Inquiry Begins

Noted Leader Quits D. A. R. Over 'Blacklists'

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Dr. Valeria H. Parker, honorary president of the National Council of Women and prominent in the activities of other women's organizations, has announced her withdrawal from the Daughters of the American Revolution.

In her letter of resignation, addressed to the president general and the national board of management of the D. A. R. at Washington, Dr. Parker said:

"I have reached the conclusion that I can no longer support, even indirectly by a silent membership, policies which I believe to be mistaken and contrary to the purposes for which the D. A. R. was founded."

In discussing the so-called "blacklists" of individuals and organizations, Dr. Parker said:

"The lists have included the names of many distinguished citizens, leaders in social, educational and religious fields, whose unselfish services and reputation for integrity should have spared them such indignity.

"The denial of this circulation of lists in the face of generally known facts does not give me confidence in the administration of the national society of the D. A. R."

She further objected to an attack she said was made by the D. A. R. on the United States Children's Bureau.

Dr. Parker has served as director of the National League of Women Voters, National Congress of Teachers and Parents and the National Women's Christian Temperance Union.

GAR WOOD'S $50,000 EXPRESS CRUISER AT MIAMI AFTER EXPLOSION IN ENGINE ROOM RIPPED STERN AND SET BOAT AFIRE

Parents Storm School, Protest Grade Shift

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Two score parents of striking pupils at the Lovett School milled about in the corridors of the building today in an effort to seize two class rooms and teach their own children, rather than have them transferred to a distant school.

A police squad was ordered to eject the militant fathers and mothers should their invasion reach the violent stage.

The march on the school followed a protest arising from the transfer of the sixth and seventh grade students from Lovett to the Burbank Junior High School, far from the homes of the pupils.

The parents said their children's lives were endangered by the transfer as they had to cross 16 railroad tracks. When Supt. William J. Bogan refused to set aside the transfer more than 50 pupils were kept at home.

Mass meetings resulted last night in a decision to march on the Lovett School and set up a new teaching staff composed of parents. The latter found themselves unable to enter those rooms today and confined their efforts to heckling teachers in other rooms.

Supt. Bogan today declared truant officers would be ordered out against striking pupils and their parents unless the former attended classes tomorrow.

that individualism which is the heart and soul of America.

Asserting that the American people had changed the slogan from "let George do it" to "let the government do it," he criticised the tendency of calling in government boards and commissions to do jobs that industry and communities could better do themselves.

HONOR STUDENTS

Students graduating with "high honors" were Rosella Kenarik, Isadore Amdur and Joseph Sugarman, and those "with honor," Sylvia Berman, William McIlroy, Jr., Florence E. Brown and Edna Flanagan.

Recipients of honorary degrees, besides Gov. Fisher, who was named a doctor of laws, were Herbert Osborn, director of the Ohio biological survey, doctor of laws; Thyrsa W. Amos, Pitt dean of women, doctor of laws; Carl Seymour Color, educational director of the Westinghouse and Manufacturing Company, master of science; Dean H. Edmund Friesell of Pitt dental school, doctor of science; Otto Emery Jennings, curator of botany of Carnegie Museum, doctor of science, and Merle Thorpe, doctor of laws.

A posthumous degree was awarded Dominic A. Ventomiller, a graduate who died last Thursday.

The degrees were presented by Chancellor John G. Bowman. Dr. Hugo Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, offered the invocation. The University band and a male chorus furnished a musical program.

Honorary ushers elected by their predecessors from the Junior and Sophomore classes, as showing the best combination of scholarship, leadership and service to the University were:

Class of 1930—Grace Austen, Ann Bloomgren, Gertrude Campbell, Fannie Mae Charlesworth, Berniece Greer, Mary Ann Johnston, Gertrude Kromer, Margaret Segal, Helen Sekey, Anna Louise Semmelrock, Lawrence Bachmann, E. A. Batchelder, Sidney Eiges, James Lindsay, Norman Park, C. J. Phillips, Charles Ray, J. L. Solomon, Robert Taylor, Paul Zehfuss.

Class of 1931—Cynthia Dean, Sarah Drum, Naomi Ericson, Margaret Hall, Alice Kelley, Florence Luman, Hermine Ruoff, Olga Sekey, Alice Walton, Virginia Wickersham, Edward Baker, Milan Getting, R. Hobbah, Robert Kleeb, Thomas McMurray, William Petty, John A. Read, Jr., Charles Seidle, John St. Peter, J. A. Thomas.

CANCER STUDY WINS ACCLAIM OF SURGEONS

Coffey-Humber Discovery Held Great; Recognized By Medical Journal

BY GOBIND BEHARI LAL
Universal Service

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—In both San Francisco and Los Angeles the attention of the medical profession and the laity is focussed with enhanced interest upon the cancer research of Drs. Walter B. Coffey and John D. Humber.

It was learned that the Journal of the American Medical Association also has lent its timely support by publication of a communication by Doctors Coffey and Humber in its first issue of February.

While sounding an editorial note of caution that the Coffey and Humber cancer work was still in the earlier experimental stages, the editor of the Journal greets their work as "of great interest as revealing the character of the cancer tissue."

Doctors Coffey and Humber state in the Journal briefly what has already been published in the Hearst papers about their suprarenal cortical extract treatment of cancer.

FOLLOWS NEWSPAPERS

That the medical journal should follow rather than precede in the publication of the first authentic and scientifically expressed account of a new medical research departure was regarded a novelty by many of the surgeon members of the Pacific Coast Surgical Association which closed its meeting at Del Monte Saturday.

Gratification over the manner in which the newspapers throughout the country had presented Doctors Coffey and Humber's report on their cancer research to the surgical association was widely evinced today.

Dr. Coffey in a voluntary statement said:

"If the public press would follow the attitude and competent handling of your journal on scientific subjects, the time would soon arise when the medical men would not hesitate to appeal to our American press for publishing anything that has the slightest promise of benefit to humanity."

Dr. J. Tat Mason, newly elected president of the Surgeons' Association and other surgeons of note expressed similar views.

SECOND CLINIC

In Los Angeles Dr. John D. Humber conducted a second clinical treatment of cancer cases.

Dr. Coffey in San Francisco spent the day in conference with representatives of the medical profession as well as civic leaders interested in cancer research.

Negotiations were still under way, it was revealed, through the University of California Medical College or the Hooper Research Foundation, for the adequate carrying out of scientific laboratory and clinical confirmatory work.

Dr. Humber went from Del Monte direct to Los Angeles, where he and Dr. Coffey a week ago had opened a cancer clinic in cooperation with eminent Southern California doctors.

Dr. Coffey gave the following entirely voluntary statement regarding the accounts in the San Francisco Examiner and other Hearst newspapers and carried by Universal Service, of the presentation by himself and Dr. Humber of their report on cancer research:

"I have read in the Examiner the report of the meeting of the Pacific Coast Surgical Association held on Saturday morning at the Hotel Del Monte.

FAITHFUL VERSION

"I am very thankful that your journal gave a full and faithful version of the report that was presented by Dr. John D. Humber and myself concerning cancer work before those scientific gentlemen.

"It is quite natural that the scientists feel some hesitancy that any publicity should be given through the daily press before such work as ours is acceptable to the scientific medical world.

"However, your paper in its article has given the exact remarks that were made by us, and emphasized that our work is purely experimental, and that the time has not yet arrived for us to give any views as to its future possibilities that will be unfolded only through laboratory and clinical experiments that we are planning to launch.

"Again I would state emphatically that it was a judicious and scrupulous publicity on a scientific problem where still great work remains to be performed.

"If the public press would follow the attitude and competent handling of your journal on scientific subjects, the time would soon arise when the medical men would not hesitate to appeal to our American press for publishing anything that has the slightest promise of benefit to humanity.

"Such publicity will also educate the public to look upon the medical profession as a scientific body endeavoring with the best that is in human power to contribute towards the benefit of mankind.

"As for Dr. Humber and myself, we carry on our work—in a spirit of welcoming all constructive criticism and calmly ignoring merely petty and destructive criticism."

P. & L. E. Agents Will Hold Banquet

The silver anniversary of the Agents' Association of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad will be marked with a banquet tonight in the Fort Pitt Hotel at which time the Rev. A. M. Billman of the First Reformed Church of McKeesport will speak. A short business meeting will precede the banquet, when the result of the annual election will be announced. Fred Foster, president of the association, will preside.

Natural Gas Men In Sales Meeting

Representatives of natural gas companies from all parts of the United States were in Pittsburgh today for the opening of the two-day conference on regional sales. The conference opened in the Hotel Schenley. The conference was arranged for the purpose of promoting the use of natural gas.

Several hundred leaders in the natural gas industry are here for the conference. R. A. Cameron of the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

ROBBED TWICE BY SAME MAN

For the second time within a week the same Negro held up Jack Walte, of 635 Anaheim street, manager of the Kroger store 1840 Fifth avenue, he reported to police today.

While Walte was in the store this morning the Negro entered, pointed a revolver, took $140 and fled. Last Wednesday the Negro robbed him of $60 in the same manner, he said.

Will Honor Edison On 83rd Birthday

FT. MYERS, Fla., Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Preparations were being made here today for the observance tomorrow of the eighty-third birthday of Thomas A. Edison, world famous inventor. Dr. Hamilton Holt, president of Rollins College, will make the dedication address at the unveiling of the Edison plaque.

Three hundred Zionists heard Louis Lipsky, of New York, national president of the Zionist Organization of America, in an address last night which climaxed a day of activity staged by the local group in the Y. M. and W. H. A. Building, Bellefield avenue.

Lipsky declared that active participation of American Jews is assuming greater significance in the Zionist program. Included in the day's program were meetings of the regional Jewish National fund conference, the Zionist regional administration council, and a dinner in honor of the visiting executive.

Rabbi Goodman A. Rose, of the Beth Shalom Congregation, introduced Lipsky, who recently returned from a conference of Zionist workers in London. Other speakers were Dr. M. M. Lichtenstein, president of Zionist Region No. 5, and Emil Steinbech, president of the Pittsburgh group.

Night Lieutenant At 'Lunch,' Thief Takes Auto

Peter Lehney, night lieutenant at the Oakland Police Station, drove to his home at 102 Oakland court for his "lunch" at 2:30 this morning. When he left his home after his repast, he discovered his automobile had been stolen. In reporting the theft to automobile detectives he stated he had left his uniform coat in the machine.

5 MASKED MEN BEAT STUDENT

GREENSBORO, N. C., Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Charles Kellenberger, Jr., 17, a sophomore at North Carolina State College, Raleigh, was attacked and severely beaten by five masked men Saturday in his dormitory room at the college, it became known here.

The young man, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Kellenberger, is at the home of his parents here with serious injuries. He has severe bruises on the head and body, and his physician said he was possibly injured internally.

Kellenberger, telling of the attack, said he was asleep when five masked intruders broke into his room. They attacked him, he said, one of them striking him with a blackjack and knocking him into unconsciousness.

He said he knew of no motive for the attack.

WIDOW DENIES POISON PLOT

ELDORADO, S.C., Feb. 10 (AP)—Mrs. James P. Gentry, 56, and her parents were jailed here today, accused of engineering a plot to poison Mrs. Gentry's husband and collect $4,000 insurance on his life.

Although she was questioned for more than 20 hours, Mrs. Gentry steadfastly maintained her innocence. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lake Proctor, have not made a statement. Mrs. Gentry was held on a first degree murder charge, and her parents were charged with being accessories to the alleged conspiring.

Gentry suffers said he was after arsenic tablets to add $4,000 to the value of his death certificate. His body was exhumed and Mrs. Gentry and her parents were arrested last Saturday after the coroner reported finding arsenic in Gentry's stomach tissues.

SEEK MISSING MAIL FLIER

BALDETTE, Mont., Feb. 10 (AP)—Residents of Baudette and settlers of this far north country mobilized today to search for a missing airplane piloted by Maurice Mellor, which disappeared late Saturday while flying over Lake of the Woods with a cargo of mail and supplies.

LAST MONTH

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Feb. 10 (AP)—A month has passed since Maurice Graham, veteran mail pilot of the Western Air Express Line took off here on his regular flight to Salt Lake City, Utah, and was swallowed up in a snowstorm, presumably in Eastern Nevada.

Western Air Express officials for weeks refused to believe Graham was dead, but the passing of 31 days without word from him virtually has erased hope.

The search, however, goes on. Pilot Jimmy James of the Western Air Express, is here with orders from his company to "find Maurice." Julian Anderson, veteran prospector, will leave today for the Groom Mine country, 75 miles north of here, in a spring wagon carrying supplies for an extended search.

Kitchen Made Fresh Foods

Pork Pies

each 25c

A peep beneath the crust reveals tender pieces of pork, potatoes and peas. It looks grand and tastes grander. All you need to do is reheat in the oven.

Chicken Croquettes

3 for 25c

Made from chicken—not veal or pork. This is a popular dish for luncheons and parties of all kinds. Home made varieties cannot compare with these croquettes for looks and taste.

Stuffed Peppers

2 for 29c

Good-looking and good tasting, too. Half a pepper filled with a cheese mixture and half a hard boiled egg moulded in the center.

Our prepared food department is a far cry from the corner "delicatessen" of yore, where one hastened in emergencies for baked beans, cold ham and potato salad. Modern ways of living have created a demand for prepared foods. The woman in business has no time to spend over the cook stove, but she is wise enough to insist on serving well-prepared fresh foods in variety.

The 161 foods sold in our prepared food department fits into this scheme of things admirably. Fresh meats, fresh fish, fresh poultry, fresh vegetables, fresh salads, and desserts are here in great variety. Each one is skilfully prepared from McCann's quality foods. We maintain a large kitchen presided over by two chefs and 16 assistants. These people are releasing many hours for "other things" both for the woman in business and the woman who doesn't like to cook.

47TH ANNIVERSARY

This beautiful new Patrician pen . . helps Waterman's celebrate their 47th anniversary

It's the sort of pen that only an old established house—with so fine a reputation for skilled, unerring craftsmanship—could bring out. A pen that is decidedly 1930 (or maybe 1935) in its exquisite jewel-like colors—Emerald, Turquoise, Jet, Nacre or Onyx for choice. Hand-crafted with the precision of a fine watch—and with the perfect writing quality and easy flow of ink that comes from 47 years of knowing how. Here's style. And here's a pen! Boxed, the Patrician is $10.00. A matching mechanical pencil is $5.00.

No. 7 at $7.00—offering the famous Waterman's range of seven (readily identified) points—each one scientifically adapted to basic handwriting characteristics. Ninety-seven per cent of all pen users will find among them the one point exactly suited to their hand. Try them all and find yours.

Then remember all the other famous Waterman's products—the No. 5 at $5.00; and other pens and pencils at most reasonable prices, a wide variety of desk sets, and Waterman's ink which makes any fountain pen write better.

Good dealers everywhere sell Waterman's pens. Every Waterman's is guaranteed forever against defects. Service stations are maintained at the addresses below for the purpose of making good our guarantee and for servicing our pens as required.

BRADY RETRIAL SITE ARGUED

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 10.—(AP)—His reserve reduced almost to the breaking point by three tumultuous weeks in a court room, John W. Brady, former court of civil appeals justice, today had only the outlook of further suspense after a jury discharged Saturday had failed either to convict or acquit him of murder for stabbing Miss Lehlia Highsmith, 28, court stenographer.

His lawyers and those for the prosecution were to confer today with Judge J. D. Moore on a motion of District Attorney Henry Brooks that the case be transferred to Georgetown, near here, for retrial.

The judge declared a mistrial Saturday after J. R. Keltner, foreman of the jury which for 96 hours had held the case, announced in reporting the count was 11 to 1 "for conviction" in spite of Judge Moore's instructions that he reveal only the numerical standing.

Keltner, it was revealed as the jurors separated to go home, was for acquittal. Nine favored the death penalty and two voted for life imprisonment.

The foreman declared he had tried to agree with his colleagues but could not do so without surrendering his convictions.

Families Entertain, Unaware of Fire

Two families were entertaining friends in their respective apartments in a duplex at 137-139 Roup street last night, unaware that the building was on fire. Neighbors, seeing smoke and flames issuing from a third floor gable, summoned firemen without notifying the occupants. It was the arrival of firemen that informed the hosts of the trouble. Isaac Wormser, who resides on the third floor, was absent at the time. The other occupants are the families of Mrs. Catherine Driscoll and of J. S. Keague. Battalion Chief H. J. Reihrauch estimated the damage at $1,000.

Dainty for Youngsters

Pattern 1839

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Here's an adorable little dress with a yoke that is just a wee bit different from the usual. The frock is so very easy to make and so lovely when finished that it may be made up in several kinds of fabrics and a variety of colors. There are bloomers too.

Printed or plain materials will be extremely attractive, either dimity, voile, pique, percale or wash silk. The dainty ruffling may be lace, embroidery, organdie or the same as the fabric of the frock. Two tiny buttons trim the points of the yoke.

Designed for sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 4 requires 2¼ yards of 36-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model. The pattern has ample and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size. A perfect fit is guaranteed.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipt of FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

Our NEW SPRING BOOK of PATTERN STYLES is now ready. Price FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

5 YOUTHS HELD IN HOLDUPS

Five youths, one who testified he was a striking Green Cab driver, were held for court today on charges of robbery in connection with a number of Wilkinsburg and East End holdups recently by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court.

The suspects said they were Russell Bond, 18, of 7429 Susquehanna street; Kenneth Curnow, 18, of 419 Rosedale street; U. Berger, 20, of 1412 Coal street, Wilkinsburg; Allen Groves, 18, former cab driver, 7337½ Finance street, and Thomas Harding, 17, Negro, of 7309 Tioga street.

The quintet admitted to Magistrate Jones that during the past several months they had held up a number of gas stations and confectionery stores, including that of Louis Gua, 2401 Beechwood boulevard, and a gas station at 4060 Beechwood boulevard, as well as "sticking up" college students nearby. The five were arrested last week.

90 Horses Killed As Plant Burns

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 10.—(AP.)—A spectacular fire that swept the John C. Moorehead Transfer Company last night burned to death 90 horses and destroyed the building which covers half a city block.

Several carloads of hay that had just been stored in the building was burned along with wagons and other equipment.

$18,000 Fire Ruins Store in Bolivar

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 10.—When fire of undetermined origin broke out in the two-story frame building of the Bolivar Trading Company store at Bolivar early today, Firemen from Latrobe, Derry, Homer City and Blairsville fought the blaze four hours. The building was destroyed with loss estimated at $18,000.

Forty Millions In U. S. Wear Glasses

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Dr. Harry E. Pine, president of the Illinois State Society of Optometrists, today said that approximately 40,000,000, about one-third of the population of the United States, are wearing glasses.

The society met in its twenty-second annual convention.

Pointing out that 72 per cent of the American public suffer from eye strain, Dr. Pine said a large part of this is preventable and due to lack of proper care during infancy and childhood.

Striking Miners Fight, 2 Arrested

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 10.—The first clash in the coal strike, sponsored by the National Miners' Union, in the West Virginia Panhandle occurred last night at Triadelphia. A free-for-all fight between men working in the Body mine and members of the organization and committee of the National Miners' Union resulted in the arrest of Mike Muceti, of Bellaire, O., and Francis Signoretti, of Cleveland, O., both organizers. They were held under bond by Justice of the Peace John W. Farmer, charged with inciting to riot.

Hopes to Reach 100 On Moderate Diet

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—G. P. Blackiston, who on the coldest day wears no overcoat, hopes to live a century or so. His recipe is little food, lots of water and sleep and no tobacco or liquor. He is 50, 6 feet 3 and weighs 198. A fruit salad or an apple is often his menu for one day. Once he went two weeks without eating.

DETROIT FACES 20 KIDNAPINGS

DETROIT, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—The details of 20 actual or attempted kidnapings engineered by gangsters who were not averse to torturing and killing their victims were assembled today for reference in connection with the most involved investigation of the Detroit police department since the Belle Isle rum-running scandal of a year ago.

Starting as the trial of a detective on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer, the police trial board has found itself confronted by a mass of testimony providing a virtual review of the Detroit crime picture for the last three years.

The city's epidemic of kidnapings and extortions was brought into the foreground once more by the testimony of Detective Sergt. Max Waldfogel, Saturday, in which he said that before the crime and bomb squad was created, there were no kidnapings in Detroit worth mentioning.

Thieves Rob Two East End Stores

Two store robberies were reported to police in the East End today. At a chain store, 5810 Bryant street, the manager, W. P. Hamilton, reported that $5 in cigarets was taken. At the J. T. Walker store, 531 North Braddock avenue, the loot was $27 in tobacco. Entrance was gained in both cases by forcing windows.

Thousands of used cars are bought and used with perfect satisfaction. See the Used Car "buys" advertised in the Classified Section.

Old Quart of Rye, Sealed in Show House, 'Used'

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—In 1904 fire damaged the Casino Theater Building, including Jake Wolff's cafe. During repairs a quart of rye was sealed up in a column at a ceremony attended by Lillian Russell, John L. Sullivan and other notables.

The theater building is being razed. Wolff obtained a permit for transportation of the quart to his hotel. It has been drunk in toast to the guests at the sealing exercises.

CHAMBER FUND DRIVE OPENS

A drive for sustaining funds for the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce was opened today by members. Thomas A. Dunn, first vice president and chairman of the drive, will direct the workers in carrying on the campaign among leaders of local firms.

Frank J. Chesterman, vice president of the Bell Telephone Company and a member of the board of directors of the chamber, will have charge of the membership canvass of the drive, which will be conducted February 18 to 22.

'Ghost Train,' Filmland Stars Await Radio Fans

By DARRELL V. MARTIN
Sun Telegraph Radio Editor

WHETHER one of the screen's funniest facial characters can send the radio audience into convulsions of laughter with his voice will be determined tonight at 7:30 when Wallace Berry entertains as the Filmland program, WJAS. With him will be Dorothy Sebastian and Lew Cody.

John Thomas, baritone, will sing "The Trumpeter" for the General Motors Family Party, WCAE at 9:30.

From backstage at the Pitt Theater, KQV will broadcast the second and third acts of "The Ghost Train" at 8:30. Marconiphones will pick up the sound effects as well as the shouts of the audience.

"The Ghost Train" itself is particularly weird. The action takes place in the waiting room of the way station at Clandeel, in England, where a strangely assorted group of passengers find themselves [illegible].

There is a mystery connected with the old ghost train that appears at midnight, and what they shall look upon it must not be told. A band of smugglers take advantage of the native superstition to ply their nefarious trade. What happens during which [illegible] is heard and the deafeningly [illegible] fading into the distance provides the action of the play.

To the five readers who write the best description of the broadcast in 200 words, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph will award five box seats to the Pitt. Address your letters to the Radio Contest Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., not later than Thursday noon.

We Now Present

Only the announcer is allowed in the studio when "Cheerio" broadcasts. Amos and Andy are particular, too.

Katherine Butler Sheraden—Jessica Dragonette is said to receive $700 a week.

Senator David A. Reed of the American delegation at the naval conference will speak over WJAS from London tomorrow.

T. V., Mt. Lebanon—The WEAF transmitter is at Bellmore, L. I. The WJZ transmitter is at Boundbrook, N. J.

Virginia Harrison will sing for the Rochester Civic Orchestra tonight.

TODAY'S TID BIT

Did you know that the KYW aerial is suspended over an artificial lake of water to further activate signals? The same arrangement will be made for the new KDKA transmitter at Saxonburg.

DEDICATE NEW CHURCH

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Feb. 10.—The Rev. Dr. Ellis B. Burgess, of Pittsburgh, president of the Pittsburgh Synod, made the address at the dedication of the new Christ Evangelical Lutheran Church here yesterday. The edifice was erected at a cost of more than $100,000. It comprises the main church auditorium, a large balcony, Sunday school room and the parsonage.

Services will be continued throughout the week. The Rev. W. H. Shepner is the pastor. This evening will be young peoples night. Addresses will be made by the Rev. Frank Richter, superintendent of the Old Peoples Home, Zelienople, and Dr. E. Clyde Zander, president of Thiel College, Greenville.

One Killed, 16 Hurt As Trains Collide

MADRID, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—A railroad engineer was killed and 16 persons were injured yesterday in a collision between the Andalusian express and the Alicante express in Alcazar de San Juan, an important railroad junction in the Province of Ciudad Real, south of here. All the victims were Spaniards.

Railroad officials blamed the accident on snow, which threw the Andalusian express off schedule.

URGE CANAL UP FRENCH CREEK

FRANKLIN, Pa., Feb. 10.—"We are determined to prove to government engineers there is enough tonnage in prospect, and enough more by way of development, to make the French Creek and Allegheny River route for an Ohio River-Lake Erie canal, the practicable way," Loren D. Schoppe, secretary of Franklin Chamber of Commerce said. The Lake Erie-Allegheny River Canal Association has engaged an engineer to make a survey for tonnage figures and manufacturing development, to be submitted before July 1.

The slack watering program is going forward in the Allegheny River, and is in service as far as Kittanning. It is the aim of the river development commission to have slackwater navigation to Warren, Pa.

SHINING OR SAVING—WHICH ARE YOU DOING?

Are you shining your teeth or saving them? Many dentifrices help in simply cleaning and whitening teeth. But only PEBECO goes further—definitely retarding decay by checking the destructive mouth acids. You can expect PEBECO to taste different from ordinary dentifrices because it performs that extra function. Try PEBECO one week—then ask yourself if your teeth don't look better and your mouth feel more comfortable than ever before.

"What is Girl's Greatest Beauty?"

Famous Screen Stars say "Lovely Skin"

"No girl is alluringly beautiful unless she has the very softest, smoothest skin," say 45 Hollywood directors—and the fascinating screen stars agree.

Moreover, Hollywood has found, no girl ever rises to stardom unless her skin shows flawless in a close-up.

These are the reasons why 9 out of 10 Hollywood stars care for their skin with Lux Toilet Soap. It keeps the skin so velvety-smooth!

ALICE DAY

Vivacious Alice Day, whose skin shows so lovely in the innumerable close-ups of the talkies, says: "I find that Lux Toilet Soap is wonderful for my skin—it keeps it so softly smooth."

MARCELINE DAY

And Marceline Day, her charming sister, says: "I'm frank in saying that this delicately fragrant white soap leaves my skin as satin-smooth as the finest French toilet soaps do!"

Sally Blane, too, delightful little Radio Pictures' player, says: "Beautiful smooth skin that isn't afraid of the camera's close-up is very important to a star, and Lux Toilet Soap is certainly a wonderful soap for the skin!"

Are you using Lux Toilet Soap? Luxurious as fine French soaps at 50c and $1.00 the cake—yet only 10c.

LEWIS TO SEEK SENATE SEAT

CHICAGO, Feb. 10 (AP).—Condemning existing methods of prohibition enforcement, protesting against American entry into the league court, and demanding changes in tax, aid and government expenditures, James Hamilton Lewis of Chicago, former Democratic United States senator, has agreed to be a candidate for that office.

Mr. Lewis was chosen last week by a sub-committee of the party's state committee to seek the Democratic nomination at the coming April primary.

"This nation is temperate in the habits of its mankind and it prays that these may be induced by free religion and enforced by law," he said in his statement of acceptance. It protests against any system of laws or procedure that invokes trespass on the homes, invasion of the family, violation of the privacy of life and the mortally wounding of citizens as a method of secured law enforcement. Such action is not political morality but national tyranny."

The candidate declared that farmers were being deceived "by specious promises of relief."

Turning to the league court he said:

"While all Americans favor co-operating with any association to the purpose of world peace and brotherhood of man, we protest against the forcing of the United States into any foreign controlled tribunal which from precedence or interest can involve the United States into discredit of wars."

WALL ST. HIT BY BROOKHART

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10 (AP).—Senator Smith D. Brookhart, of Iowa, told a labor mass meeting yesterday that the "stock gambling crowd of Wall street" had nullified the federal reserve law through the system of redeposits. He urged the establishment of co-operative banks by a farm-labor coalition, and declared he was opposed to "government by injunction."

The meeting was called to protest against court injunctions issued in Philadelphia and Northampton counties against hosiery strikers who have been engaged in picketing. Resolutions were adopted calling for the defeat at the polls of United States Senator Joseph R. Grundy, of Pennsylvania, advocating state and national legislation to limit the power of courts in issuing injunctions in labor disputes and pledging support for a progressive league labor party.

"The stock gambling crowd of Wall street," Senator Brookhart asserted, "have nullified the federal reserve law through the system of redeposits. Capital, through investment in chain stores, chain banks and chain industries, is destroying the farmer, the small merchant and labor. The deposits of the farmer and the workman have been turned over to gamblers.

"The United States ought to be the most prosperous land in the world. Why do we not have it? Simply because under our present system great interests are taking money out of the pockets of the producers and putting it in their own.

"To stop stock gambling we must adopt a 5 per cent sales tax on all stock resold within 60 days. To save the small manufacturer and the small business man we must adopt the co-operative system."
operative system."

Other speakers included Emil Reiv!, national president of the Hosiery Workers' Union, and Charles Kutz, Altoona, Pa., chairman of the Progressive Labor Party of Pennsylvania.

Says Dr. Leyrer

Bright eyes, clear skin — signs of health

Sleep Soundly and Awake Refreshed

Flaxolyn clears the intestinal canal and helps induce sound sleep that rebuilds, rejuvenates, supplies new energy.

DR. LEYRER

Dr. E. J. Leyrer, of Philadelphia, says: "If you want to keep physically fit, with Natural color in your cheeks, a spring to your step, and lightness in your heart, keep your system free from the poisons of waste.

"Herbal Flaxolyn is the best formula I know for this purpose. It TONES THE BODY TO A HIGHER KEY OF HEALTH."

Father and Son Make Heartfelt Statement

The son, Robt. A. Clark, Merchantville, N. J., says: "Dr. Luntz's Flaxolyn is the only tonic that has done me good. The indigestion I had for 3 years, and the constant gas after eating, disappeared before I finished two packages of Flaxolyn."

The father, I. K. Clark, Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I used to be nervous, and had bad nights. Woke in early morning, couldn't get to sleep again. Flaxolyn enables me to get a good night's sleep, EVERY NIGHT."

"Flaxolyn Assists Nature"

"Flaxolyn assists Nature in restoring a harmonious condition, says Dr. E. Thayer Ward, of Cleveland. "People to whom I have recommended Flaxolyn for constipation, stomach troubles, headaches, nervousness, readily testify to its beneficial results."

OPPOSE CROSBY ON HOME RULE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Opposition has developed to President Hoover's choice of an Army man, Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, to replace a civilian commissioner for the nation's capital, on the ground that it "robs voteless Washington of its last vestige of home rule."

Crosby was selected to be in charge of the District of Columbia law enforcement machine as President Hoover's "guarantee" that the capital would be free of organized crime.

A meeting of Washington's civic and business leaders was called yesterday by Edward J. Murphy, president of the Board of Trade, to meet Wednesday to discuss the Crosby selection.

The Board of Trade and the Chamber of Commerce have advised Mr. Hoover of their opposition to Crosby because he is an officer of the military service. Crosby will retire next month as chief of the cavalry before assuming the role of district commissioner. The opposition, however, has cited court decisions which it contends hold that a retired officer still is under the jurisdiction of the military and therefore is not a civilian.

Crosby nomination must be acted upon by the Senate. The President has not forwarded it to the Senate pending Crosby's retirement from the military service.

Washington is governed by Congress and three commissioners appointed by the President, one of whom is required by law to be an engineer from the Army Engineer Corps. Crosby, however, is to take over the commissionership in charge of police. There also will be the regular engineer commissioner.

KEYES ONE YEAR IN PRISON

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Former District Attorney Asa Keyes, who for 25 years was instrumental in sending hundreds of persons to prison, yesterday had completed his first year in jail.

It was in the evening of February 8, 1929, that Keyes was convicted with Ed. Rosenberg and Ben Getaoff of conspiracy to ask and receive bribes in connection with the Julian Petroleum stock oversissue.

The former prosecutor is being held in the county jail here pending decision on his appeal on a one-to-14-year sentence to San Quentin.

Warn Dog Owners To Take Out Tags

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 10.—Dog licenses in excess of 11,000 have been issued in Washington County but there are still about 5,000 owners who have not secured the necessary tags. Field Agent J. Y. Mounts, has given notice that prosecution of these owners will begin at once. Rabies has developed in four sections of the county.

New Divorce Law In Cuba Allows 16 Grounds

HAVANA, Feb. 10.—(AP)—A new Cuban divorce law recently passed by Congress, became effective yesterday. It provides nine radical changes in the old laws.

Under the new law there will be 16 valid grounds for divorce instead of four. It furthermore declares that killings in the case of unfaithfulness are punishable by death though formerly unfaithfulness was considered just grounds for homicide.

Most of the grounds for divorce are greatly reduced in time, desertion formerly requiring extension over a period of 10 years, but now only four. The reduction of time is true in all nine changes.

Hear Damage Claims For Hickory Road

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 10.—Property owners along the Washington-Hickory road via Gretna have been asked to meet with the County Commissioners to discuss property damage. About four miles of this route will be improved next summer if damage settlements can be effected.

That section of the road nearer Washington has been completed. The next four miles will take the highway practically into Hickory and will furnish a shorter route into the Hickory and Burgettstown districts.

A used radio will give you worlds of enjoyment. See the bargains advertised in the Classified Section.

GIRL SHOT DEAD AT BEER PARTY

MOUNT VERNON, Wash., Feb. 10.—(AP)—An argument over the twist in a bulldog's tail here yesterday resulted in the fatal shooting of Miss Dorothy McMurtrie, 24, Bellingham telephone operator, and the critical wounding of her brother, Harold.

J. P. Pickett, of Anacortes, Wash., barber and part Cherokee Indian, whom witnesses said did the shooting, was arrested after he had taken the girl to a hospital in his car.

The argument took place during an alleged beer drinking party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nortin, near Anacortes.

Mrs. Nortin, the witnesses said, was knitting a blanket for one of her two bulldogs. An argument over a slight twist in the tail of one dog followed and Miss McMurtrie and Pickett's wife took opposite sides. Harold McMurtrie and Pickett quarreled.

Witnesses told officers that Pickett rushed to his car and returned with a .32 caliber pistol, firing on the McMurtries as he entered the door. Two bullets lodged in Miss McMurtries' abdomen, and her brother was hit four times.

KILLS WOMAN, CUTS UP BODY

MUSKEGON, Mich., Feb. 10.—(AP.) Having admitted that he shot a young woman, dismembered her body with an ax and buried it in a shallow grave "because she would not live with me," Forest Weaver, 28, was expected to plead guilty in circuit court here today, to a charge of murdering Gladys Erhardt, 20, whose body was found late Saturday night in a wood near here.

Weaver, whose eccentricities had caused his family apprehension for some time, was slated for a quick sentencing unless his sanity was questioned by authorities.

Gladys Erhardt had been married four years to Ronald Erhardt but was separated from him last spring. Weaver became acquainted with her a month ago. Friday afternoon Weaver and the young woman went to the wood near his home to take pictures of children skiing. Weaver's brother, George, 18, saw them go to the wood but did not see Mrs. Erhardt return. Saturday George followed their tracks and discovered the grave. He notified Muskegon officers, who went to the wood and discovered the mutilated body about midnight Saturday night. Weaver's father, J. O. Weaver, Muskegon city maintenance foreman, told the officers to "arrest my oldest son."

SOVIET FIRE KILLS SIX

LONDON, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Six workmen were killed and 15 injured when fire partially destroyed a huge grain warehouse in Rostov-on-Don today, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Riga.

Looters raided the premises after the fire was extinguished, but Soviet officials caught them red-handed in the attempted pillage and shot eight of them, the dispatch added.

MOSCOW, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Counter-revolutionary elements are suspected of having fired the huge granary at Rostov-on-Don, which was destroyed with a loss of six lives and tremendous property damage.

The Soviet authorities are investigating the fire.

Day to Run Again For Congress Seat

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—A third attempt to win the Republican nomination for congressman-at-large will be made in the April primary by Stephen A. Day, son of William R. Day, former associate justice of the Supreme Court and secretary of state in President McKinley's cabinet.

In 1920, Day ran second in Cook County, including Chicago, to the late William E. Mason.

IF RHEUMATIC EAT NO SWEETS

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly, keep the feet dry, avoid exposure, and above all, drink plenty of good water and avoid eating sweets of all kind.

Rheumatism is caused by body waste and acids resulting from food fermentation. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this poison from the blood. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this waste and acids which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove waste matter, also to stimulate the kidneys, thus often ridding the blood of rheumatic poison.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

Something New for Over-Stout Women

You can wrap a 250-pound woman into this beautiful garment and bring her down to the most shapely figure. For it is an exquisitely designed and beautifully worked and finished piece of apparel. You may call it a corset or supporter and yet it is a delight to the eye and a contribution to comfort never before attained. It is

The W. S. Rice Corrective Supporter and Brassiere

The front and back are so designed that those great layers of fat that bulge over the abdomen and roll in waves down the back to the waist, are all smoothed out and gently but firmly kept in place to show 10 to 15 pounds reduction.

It lifts up and supports the bust, snugly rounds over the hips, curves the waist line to symmetrical appearance and brings the entire figure into slenderizing proportion.

On Free Trial

Made in the famous W. S. Rice factory at Adams, N. Y., and designed by a noted corsetiere, it needs but a try-on to prove it the first and only perfect Reducing Corset ever made for stout women.

In every neighborhood and community are women who have undergone surgical operations leaving weak places that sometimes break apart with most unfortunate results. A simple attachment of air cushions to the conformer gives perfect support and protection.

Mrs. J. A. Gilligan, the personal representative of W. S. Rice, is now here to give the ladies of Pittsburgh every opportunity to fully test this wonderful Reducing Corset.

Put it on and see how charmingly it feels, how perfectly it brings you into shape, how nice and comfortable you feel, how easily you breathe, how actively you become, how you can bend over without strain, walk upstairs like a girl, and wear modern gowns with all the appearance and freedom of a perfect figure.

It is made by W. S. Rice, Inc., in the largest and most complete factory of its kind in the world. And if you have been so unfortunate as to have undergone a surgical operation that has left the abdomen weak, a simple attachment of air cushions gives perfect protection.

Griffith to Begin Lincoln Film Soon

D. W. GRIFFITH is ready to go on with his production of "Abraham Lincoln." Drifted in to see D. W. Stephen Benet, author of "John Brown's Body," also there. Mr. Benet together with Mr. Griffith wrote a beautiful script for the picture. I read the ending and its martiferent. Be that as it may, Walter Huston who will portray Mr. Lincoln should be a histrionic revelation to the screen, if the photographs of him live as vividly in celluloid as they do in artistic prints. Mr. Griffith goes into production in a week or so.

Modern Ideas

COLLIER, SR., IN HARRIS COMEDY

William "Willie" Collier, Sr., father of the young film actor Buddy Collier, is featured in "Harmony at Home," the talking comedy, which is the current attraction on the Harris screen. The production is based on the stage play of a decade ago, "The Family Upstairs."

Collier, Sr., appears as the head of a middle class American family who strives to bring peace and harmony to the hearthstone. Which is some job in this instance considering a wife who talks too much, a young son who is dance crazy and a young daughter who insists on playing the piano or reciting every time her big sister's fellow comes to call.

The elder Collier's voice registers well—but that is expected for he is a veteran of the stage. He also shows a good flare for comedy and helps crowd the laughs into the production. He is versatile, too. There is one spot where he goes to fetch his son home from a dance hall contest and ends up by winning the contest himself.

Marguerite Churchill, in an oldest daughter role, and Charles Eaton, as a fellow who works in a bank, bring in the romantic angle.

The production viewed by eyes and ears not overly critical, is merry entertainment. A comedy of family life it makes appeal to all members of an family. But it does have a theme song!

Master of Ceremonies Victor Graff presents "Garden of Roses" on the stage. It offers vaudeville features that include a dance team, a couple of comedians and a feminine singer. The Harris Co-eds go through their paces.

The Kick-of-the-Month

W ...

FOR YOUNG PART

SHE hung up. So they wanted to see her first. A new film. The older managers knew her, knew what she could do, and what she looked like. What she could look like, because of course, she looked better on the stage. Younger. And it was for a young part that they wanted her. Twenty-eight the agent had said. Well, she could look 28. Even off the stage. Oh, not now. But dressed with a becoming hat or in the evening. And 28 wasn't so awfully young. It was really almost 30 and she wasn't much older herself. Thirty-seven. Practically 36. And she looked 36. Thirty-two? Thirty-seven. But she could look 28 on the stage. If only these people knew that. For she wanted the job.

MONTHS SINCE LAST

SHE had to have it. It had been how many months since the last? Well, never mind that now. They wanted her at last. But she didn't like them wanting to see her first, as though she were a beginner. After all, everyone knew she was a good actress. Everyone? Well, these were new people, and they had to protect themselves. Just as she did. And, of course, I must read the play. She had had to say that. It was part of the game. In the old days they just sent her the play, and if she liked it she took it, and that was all. Well, it was different now—better be thankful for anything. Still, she wished it was a firm that knew her. These people had never seen her act, perhaps they had never even heard of her. Nonsense. They wouldn't be sending for her if they hadn't. But were they? Or was it just that the agent had urged her name on them. Just see her, anyway. No, no, she mustn't think about it that way. They wanted her, of course they did.

YOUNG WIFE PERHAPS

SHE wished she knew more about the play. It helped. She would know what to wear, how to talk. The agent said it was a comedy—high comedy. It would be a nice part then. A young wife, perhaps, or a young widow. Gay, sophisticated. Nice clothes. She would go to that new place, she would insist on that, have it in her contract. They might refuse, but they would agree to anything if they wanted you. Clothes, salary, anything. Salary. How much should she ask? It had been so long since she had done anything important. And this was an important part. But if you asked too little they thought less of you. But if you asked too much? And she couldn't lose this chance. She couldn't. Well, wait and see how they feel. If they wanted her cheap she could seem to come down. "You see, I like the part so much, and that means a lot, doesn't it?" She could do it gracefully.

WOULD BE FRIENDLY

IT WAS nice to look forward to the appointment. They would be pleasantly friendly—they always were when they sent for you. They probably wouldn't talk business today anyway—just give her the play to read. "It's a great part—you'll like it, but better read it first." "Thank you. I'll read it tonight, and let you know tomorrow." "Fine, but could you read it this afternoon, and let us know tonight? We want to get this settled right away."

But she ought to be getting ready. What ought she to wear? She hadn't much choice. The gray? She hated gray, it made her feel dead. The black? Black was always right, and it was a good dress. Three years old, but good. She knew what she ought to wear. Beige. A soft pinky beige, with a lot of fox. Fox was flattering, young. The black would have to do. What about that white frill? Not smart, but—no, it looked a makeshift. The pearl beads looked nice, and her hat, thank God, was new. Was it really so becoming? They had exclaimed over it in the shop. "That is your hat, Madame." But they always did that. Makeup? It made you look older. Or did it? She never could be sure. The mouth, of course, and maybe a little on the eyes. Careful. It made you look tired, too. And a little, a very little rouge. There. Twenty-eight, even in the daylight. A charming young wife of 28.

LIGHT! UNKINDLY LIGHT!

FOUR o'clock. The actress sat in the office. From a window behind the desk a north light struck at her sharply. The producer was not there; the young man in his place was the author of the play. If only she knew something about it. This light bothered her, it was so gray. She mustn't think about it, though; she must look bright—interested.

The author was speaking.

"It was for the part of the girl you were to see me?"

"I...the agent said the lead."

"Yes, that's it. The girl."

"The agent didn't say, but it's the part of a young wife, is it not?"

"No. No, she isn't married, she's just a girl."

"About 28, I understand."

"Twenty-two."

Twenty-two. It was a mistake then. The agent had made a mistake. But had he? It was high comedy, they would need an experienced actress for that. That was it, of course. And she could look 22. Why not? With the proper lighting. And her hair. She could cut her hair again. She smiled. "Twenty-two?"

"Yes," said the author. "And she is a young 22. I mean that she is immature, untouched. Just well, just young."

LITTLE LINES—SO MANY

YOUNG. All the little lines were standing out under her eyes. She could see them before her, quite clearly.

"She sounds charming," she said.

He didn't answer that. Well—try again. She must try again.

"The agent said it was a high-comedy part." ... "Yes."

High comedy is difficult; it takes a lot of experience, doesn't it?

The author stirred uneasily. "I suppose it does," he said.

"Yes," she said, "I haven't read the part, but I imagine it needs someone who can look young, but who has the necessary technique."

"As a matter of fact, I—we feel for the sake of the play we will have to make some sacrifice in that line to the physical requirements. You see she must be, she must be—" He made a vague gesture.

"I see," she said. There was a pause.

"I'd like so much to read the play," she said.

He hesitated. "I'd be glad to have you, but I haven't a script in the office just now." Then he brightened and got up. "I'll tell you what I'll send you a copy as soon as one comes from the typist. We have your address?" ...

"Thank you," she said.

"Yes, we'll do that. We'll do that."

"Then—good afternoon," said the actress.

"Good-bye," he said, and opened the door.

"YOUNG TWENTY-TWO"

SO THAT was it. A girl of 22. "And a young 22." Oh, why hadn't she got up then and left? But she couldn't have. How could she? There might have been a chance for her, and she had had to be sure. Twenty-two. It had been cruel to send her.

Still, the part would need experience and he hadn't really said she wouldn't do, had he? He might have been very much interested; you couldn't always tell. Maybe he would send her the play after all. Maybe he would telephone her. "I'm sending the play over. Could you give me an answer in the morning?"

Twenty-two wasn't so young. She could look 10 years younger. With the right clothes and the right makeup. Of course she could. Twenty-eight, thirty-two—three, four, five, six, seven. Thirty-seven. Thirty-eight, thirty-nine, forty. Forty, forty. Twenty-two from forty. "O God, dear God! Don't let me cry. Don't let me cry in the street."

"It's the best thing in the world for CHAPPED HANDS" says this engineer

"MY WORK goes on regardless of the weather. And I never could adjust a transit with gloves on. Consequently I used to suffer with terribly chapped hands every winter. But this year a doctor friend of mine advised me to try Noxzema. I use it regularly now and it sure has saved me a lot of torture. Believe me, I think it's the best thing in the world for chapped hands."

Mr. Clarence P. Hewley,
Ozone Park, L. I., N. Y.

Thousands of people who are exposed to the cold and dampness have had the same experience in healing and preventing chapped hands and lips with Noxzema Cream.

But this is not surprising. Because Noxzema contains all the bland, soothing, healing medication necessary to relieve the smarting instantly—to soften the dry, rough skin—and to heal the tiny skin cracks overnight.

Noxzema is a clean, snowy-white cream and is not sticky or greasy. It cannot soil or stain. Get a jar of Noxzema Cream today at any good drug or department store.

People who give Noxzema Skin Cream the "acid test" are its most enthusiastic boosters.

NOXZEMA "Feel It Heal"

STAGE AND SCREEN

FUN QUARTET ACTIVE IN WARNER

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"No, No, Nanette," new attraction in the Warner, which introduces another stage musical comedy in movie makeup, also introduces a new Lucien Littlefield—a Littlefield who kicks up his heels and goes into a dance; a Littlefield who shows marked development in his talents for comedy.

Mr. Littlefield appears as a wealthy Bible publisher, who is unsophisticated enough to think that he can go around paying the bills of pretty and young women without getting into difficulty with his very oldfashioned wife. Moreover, he goes into the show business, backing a production that is to star the actress-daughter of an old friend of his. All of which brings on the complications, for though his intentions are pure and innocent as a baby's first tooth, old fashioned wife doesn't think so. And at the suggestion of a friend she sets private detectives doing the bloodhound act. (This friend is personified by Lilyan Tashman, who, by her portrayal, becomes the screen's nicest trouble-maker.) Then more difficulties arise for poor Mr. Bible Publisher when his show girl's song-writing sweetheart appears.

THE HAPPY PATTERN

However, everything is ironed into a happy pattern at the final fadeout. For which thanks are due the playwright, the director and the fellow who invented Technicolor.

An interesting sidelight on the film is that it demonstrates that while the movies may depend on the stage for many musical subjects, it can furnish its own comedy players. Besides Mr. Littlefield, there are three others of this type who long have been identified with the movies. They are Louise Fazenda, who has overcome her microphone fright; Zasu Pitts and Bert Roach.

As usual, this Zasu of injured and hysterical voice has the role of a maid. Yet, and though she has the least to do of the four, she is as funny as any of them. She merely has to appear to create a smile. When she opens her mouth she is a big guffaw.

AGAIN, THE BIG REVUE

The picture story finally works itself into that big-revue-in-action state, with the song, dance and Technicolor coming in big doses. Songs bob up also at unsuspected moments earlier, in the plot. Some of these, though not very new to the ears, are very tuneful. Take "Tea for Two" and "I want to be Happy" for examples.

Bernice Claire, from the stage, and Alexander Gray, the gentleman who not so long ago made vocal love to Marilyn Miller in "Sally," have been featured by the movie people. And they do well, too, with their romancing and songs. But it is the comedy quartet of Littlefield, Pitts, Fazenda and Roach, Inc., that gets most of our applause.

DRAMA, MUSIC IN STAGE BILLS

Tonight in the Shubert Alvin "Journey's End" opens its limited engagement. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday. The all-English cast includes Henry Mowbray, Reginald Mason, Fred Monti, Edward Woodings, John Williams, Ralph Nairn, Leslie Barrie, Royal Beal, Lionel Pape and Henry Von Zynda.

"The Vagabond King," will be presented in the Nixon tonight. Rudolf Friml, composed the music, and W. H. Post and Brian Hooker, wrote the book and lyrics, in transforming Justin Huntley McCarthy's play, "If I Were King" into an operetta.

Following a run of two seasons in New York, Ziegfeld's "Show Boat," which was originally produced in Pittsburgh, will again be seen in the Nixon, opening Monday evening, February 17. The engagement will be limited to one week, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

"The Ghost Train," mystery melodrama, will be presented by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt, opening tonight. This will be the second production of the play in that theater under Mr. Sharp's direction, it having been given in his first season here.

FLOOD CONTROL PLAN ASSAILED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—The $325,000,000 flood control plan adopted by Congress to save the Mississippi Valley from destructive floods has proved an "engineering white elephant" which will cost billions of dollars if carried out in its entirety, Representative Reid (Rep.), Illinois, chairman of the House Flood Control Committee, declared today.

His prediction was made as the committee began hearings to reopen the entire Mississippi flood control question in Congress.

Adoption by Congress of an amendment insisted upon by ex-President Coolidge as a measure of economy is responsible for the prospective vast increase in cost of the plan, Reid said. The amendment provided that the government would pay damages in floodways only when used in time of extremely high water, but the courts have decided the government must first purchase the land, he said.

"The plan of Maj. Gen. Jadwin will cost several hundred millions in Missouri alone if the land is worth what the people claim it is," said Reid.

Play To Be Staged By Luther League

"The House of a Thousand Thrills," a mystery play, will be presented Wednesday night in the Carnegie Music Hall, Carnegie, by members of St. John's Luther League of Carnegie. The players are directed by Helen Tyler Russell.

Three Children Ill Grieving for Father

The three children of Charles Riddle, 27, of 1733 Laporte street, have become ill grieving for their father, who disappeared February 3, Mrs. Riddle told the Bureau of Missing Persons today. Riddle, a radio repairman, left his home to repair a radio set and has not returned.

Fire Sweeps Home Built by Miner

Lacking a source of water supply, Turtle Creek and Wilmerding fire departments vainly tried to save the home and household goods of Albert Leitzinger in Shaver's Grove, Patton Township, by using chemical apparatus, yesterday. Leitzinger built the dwelling himself, devoting his spare time after his work at a mine, and had completed the structure only six months ago. The damage was estimated at $10,000.

Canadian Tourist Traffic Increases

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 10.—(AP.)—W. D. Euler, minister of national revenue, announced today that 4,508,808 foreign automobiles carried tourists into Canada during 1929. This was an increase of 863,353 cars over 1928.

YOUTH ADMITS THEFT, HELD

After he had admitted complicity in the holdup of the Island Hotel, at 1804 East Ohio street, North Side, and the American Quick Lunch, at 27 Boggs avenue, Mt. Washington, Patsy Stanizzio, 18, of 116 Elm street, was held for court today by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones following arraignment in Morals Court.

On December 1, last, Stanizzio admitted to the court, he and two other youths held up the lunchroom and took $116. The others, according to police, were arrested a short time ago and were held for the next term of court.

Stantzzio also admitted that on September 10, last, he and two other youths held up the Island Hotel and took a sum of money. His alleged associates on that job have not yet been apprehended, police testified.

Editor To Address K. of C. On Lincoln

Michael Williams, of New York, editor of the Commonweal, will address a Knights of Columbus gathering to be held Sunday night in the Harris Theater, Diamond street. The meeting is in observance of Lincoln's anniversary and is to be held under the auspices of the Fort Pitt General Assembly, fourth degree, Knights of Columbus.

Truck Injures Horse And Mounted Officer

Mounted Patrolman Charles South was knocked to the ground when his horse was struck by a truck at South Twenty-first and Sidney streets today, police reported. Both South and the horse escaped with minor injuries.

The driver, Nick Ordakowski, 23, of the Ward Baking Company, was pronounced under the influence of liquor by Dr. Daniel E. Sable, city physician, according to the police. A charge of reckless driving was brought against him.

112 TRAPPED IN RANKIN VICE-RAID NET

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

SOMEBODY stole Luke Barnett's watch the other day and that professional jokester was perturbed.

That night the Amen Corner gave a testimonial dinner for Luke.

Senator Frank Harris made a speech. He told Luke just how much all his friends thought of him.

"And in conclusion," the Senator orated, "we would like to give you this little present—"

He gave Luke the watch.

We have more information about Pittsburgh glassworkers of years ago. They not only substituted pieces of string for the buttons of their workshirts, but their shoestrings were two-inch affairs and tied low. This was to prevent a workman from tripping on his shoestring and tumbling into "The Hole," as once happened.

There were blowers and cutters and, peculiarly, many of them have migrated into public service. Dannie Winters, the city controller, was a cutter. Ed Arthur, the police lieutenant, was a blower—in fact, a double-thick blower, which meant that his chest was bigger than the next fellow's. And there were Simon Merkle, now of the Board of Viewers; Louie Weil, the dog-license clerk; Louis Hahn, superintendent of the Diamond Marketh0use; Frank Bracey, the South Side philosopher of politics, and Paddy Riley, former alderman of the Seventeenth Ward, who is now in the county's Weights and Measures office.

THE great plants in those days were D. O. Cunningham's at Twenty-sixth and Jane streets; Cunningham & Co., Ltd., at Twenty-third and Mary streets; Phillips' in South Twentieth street, and the three plants of McKee & Co., which rambled from Twelfth and Thirteenth streets to Sarah street.

Mr. Winters was then, as now an important figure. The wages of the blowers depended upon the sizes in which he cut the rollers—the bigger the cut, the bigger the wage. If the cuts were small, the blowers knew that Mr. Winters was not in good humor. Generall he was generous.

Glass workers were well paid as a whole, some earning more than $360 a month (this when a dollar was a dollar), and many of them refused to work in the hot summer months, content with living on their winter earnings.

Some of the workers made a hangout of Matt Weiss' saloon in Smithfield street. In fact, the oldtimers will tell you that they blew the biggest rollers there and Mr. Weiss himself was wont to complain that his floor seemed forever covered with broken glass.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.

NEWSPAPERS report that many society people are going on the stage. I don't like it. They have no right in our territory and unless they quit, I shall jump immediately into society and take along Clark & McCullough, Sophie Tucker, and George Jessel. What do you think of that?

William H. Jack, a New York prohibition agent, filed suit for $25,000 on account of a broken leg, which he sustained in making a raid. He claims that the cellar stairway, at the address raided, was in bad condition. That's a shame and I hope he wins the suit. It will teach the owners of buildings about to be raided, to put in a brand new stairway, or maybe an escalator. Give the boys real service.

In Pierre, S. D., a farmer who suffered from sciatic rheumatism, was caught unawares by a ram, who butted him on the base of the spine and cured his rheumatism. This has great possibilities, we might discover that a kick in the head by a horse will stop a headache, or having a cow step on you will probably relieve your indigestion. After a while, we won't need a doctor at all in case of sickness. We'll just go over to the zoo, pick out our animal, and have it over with.

"CHICKIE"

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Chickie Bryce, only daughter of a devoted father and mother, is attending business college when the story opens. Arthur Sontag, a classmate, takes her to a dance and she confides to her friend, Mary Blake, that the avenues of romance are opening to her. Chickie's father fears the pitfalls ahead of his daughter, but his wife allays his fears. Chickie imagines she is in love with Arthur. Mary and Chickie blandly discuss love and marriage; Mary says it's too sordid for her, but Chickie thinks it will be all kisses and "walking on the mountain tops with her sweetheart by her side." Arthur stops calling on her and she feels heartbroken. She forgets him, however, in the excitement of getting a place in an office. There she meets Janina, a cynical girl whose philosophy of life astonishes her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER V.

JANINA had received a wide, even a brilliant education. She spoke, besides her own tongue, French, German and Russian. She read extensively. Yet for all this, she remained intensely primitive and crude.

Janina was a free soul—modern to her fingertips. She boasted that her past went back to the Garden of Eden.

Sitting on the window ledge, smoking a cigaret, she was accustomed to say: "As you know, Eve was the first feminist, the first rebel, a scouter of tradition, a mocker of double standards. You will recall that the first lady of the land was ejected from Paradise for disorderly conduct. All honor to Eve! Fruit hung in the garden; she ate it. And I likewise, Mother Eve!"

This was one of her favorite speeches.

Chickie, bursting with vivid curiosity, told all this to Mary, adding many a "Janina says this; Janina says that; Janina was telling us——"

Mary drank in this wisdom hungrily. They weighed, with hushed, excited wonderment, the worth of Janina's philosophy. They discussed this matter of popularity with a hot intensity as though it were the one purpose for which they were born. As financiers reckon the worth of other men by their money pile, Mary and Chickie classed their associates according to the number and brilliance of their masculine followers.

Once Chickie even told Jimmy all about Janina. Jimmie came over most every night. Often he would lift the covers off the pots. If he liked what little Jennie was cooking better than the dinner waiting on his mother's stove, he would get out a knife and fork and sit down to the table with them. Jonathan thought the world of Jimmy.

Now that Chickie was working, he used to wait for her at the corner. They walked up the block together.

Poor and Proud

Repeats What Janina Said About Her

This night Chickie had her gold hair drawn into a big psyche on the top of her head with two ridiculous Chinese pins stuck in like green swords.

She did it to be fancy, she told Jonathan when he roared at her.

It made her small, sweet chin very pointed—her eyes enormous. Jimmy sat on the wicker davenport staring at her.

Chickie stretched her neck slowly. "Aren't I the most gorgeous looking girl on the earth, Jimmy darling?"

"Sure you are! You always were!"

"And I so poor and proud and pure. I'm like to die of loneliness!"

Jimmy's eyes narrowed. Then he laughed: "Well, where'd you get that—"

Chickie shrugged. "Well——" Janina knows—"

All unsuspecting she breezed forth with Janina's hard wisdom—even told him one of Janina's caustic formulas for winning and holding the truant male in leash.

When she began he teased her, but as she went on Jimmy's face hardened. "Look here, Chickie—you don't want to listen to that—"

"But, Jimmy, a girl has as much right, hasn't she—"

"Hell—"

Chickie laughed: "Of course! I suppose you've never kissed a girl—oh, no!"

He caught her by the shoulders. His eyes were all tight and black. "Look here, Chickie, well, let me tell you, the man doesn't live that's worth your even thinking things like this—why—say—"

Makes Date

Promises to Go Out With Department Head

Chickie laughed because his mouth trembled and got white. She ran her fingers through his hair, whispering "Darling old Jimmie," as though he were her grandfather, "darling old Jimmy—dont' you worry."

The next afternoon she worked late. Harry Lewis, the nice, mild-looking fellow, the head of her department, stopped at her desk. "Still at it, Miss Bryce? Say—been to the theater this week? Suppose we go Saturday?"

"Why—" Chickie hesitated. "Oh, all right."

She was breathing quick with excitement when she went to the dressing room.

She didn't see Janina until Janina said: "Oh, so Harry's fallen! Good luck, baby! You're on your way now!"

In Janina's eyes was a little spark of malignant triumph. It made Chickie at once uneasy and defiant.

In the next three days she found Janina glancing at her with the same quiet exultance. She wondered, "What is Janina thinking?"

Saturday at noon Janina said: "Have a good time, little one."

"Always do!" Chickie called back flippantly.

But she was on edge. She said to Mary: "Wish I wasn't going."

"Why?"

"I don't know."

"Don't get stage fright. You may fall in love with him."

"Never!"

"Anyway—it can't hurt to go out with him just once."

"No—." Yet Chickie's reluctance grew. She kept thinking of the malice in Janina's eyes. When Jonathan, nervous as an old woman, with his arms about her shoulder, grew preachy, she forgot to tease him.

"Look here, Chickie, I want you to come home right after the show."

"What makes you say such a thing, Jonathan? Where should I go?"

"Well, you might go somewhere and dance. And that's right with Jimmy and with boys you know. Not with these strange young men."

Chickie brightened. "Ho!

KELLY TO TALK IN N. BRADDOCK

Congressman Clyde Kelly and Judge Frank P. Patterson of Common Pleas Court, will be among the speakers at the fourth annual banquet of the Lincoln Club of North Braddock, to be held Wednesday night in Elks Temple, Braddock. Other speakers will be State Senator W. D. Mansfield, Representative Michael A. Musmanno, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, Chief County Detective George W. Murren, Clerk of Courts S. J. Topley, Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park, Burgess Fenton Mitchell of North Braddock, and Attorney Benjamin Lencher. Councilman Michael Stretavski of North Braddock is in charge of arrangements.

ICE BREAKS, BOY RESCUES PAL

A hero at six—such is the record of William Page, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Page, of 64 Union avenue, Avalon. He owes it to Irwin Erdner, 5, who lives in Erdner avenue, near William's house. The two are pals.

William and Irwin like to play near the water. The only thing that resembles a body of water is a small, deep pond in the vicinity of their homes. The boys paid a visit to their "lake" last Thursday. It was frozen over, and Irwin wanted to see how strong the ice was, according to William. Against his pal's advice, Irwin launched himself upon the smooth and seemngly firm surface.

With a snap and crack, the ice broke and Irwin went through.

William crawled out on the ice, grabbed Irwin by his arm and pulled him to safety.

William's brother, Robert, who is only four, witnessed the rescue.

When neighbors ask Robert to recount the story and William overhears them he breaks in with:

"Ah, Bob ran home bawlin' when he saw Irwin fall in."

Heros are bashful.

Speakers Announced For Lincoln Dinner

Phil Engelskirger, commander of the Pennsylvania department, Grand Army of the Republic, and Federal Judge W. H. S. Thomson, will be the speakers at the annual Lincoln's birthday dinner of the Veteran Guard of Allegheny County. The dinner will be held in Memorial Hall Wednesday night under the auspices of the Federated Patriotic Orders, allied with the G. A. R. W. William Ruhe, president of the Veteran Guard, will preside, and John E. Sautter, president of the Federated Patriotic Order, will be toastmaster.

St. Canice Lyceum Plans Card Party

A card party will be held Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock by St. Canice Lyceum in the school hall, Orchard place, Knoxville. Bridge, euchre, "500" and old maid will be played. An electric radio will be presented as the first prize. The committee in charge consists of James Ferry, Fred Burger, Charles Alcorn, Edward Kelly, William Ganter, Denny O'Brien and Luke Brennan.

Bellevue Class to Meet Tomorrow

The Alpha Bible Class, Bellevue Presbyterian Church, will meet at 7 p. m. tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Etta McCandless, 24 North Howard avenue, Bellevue.

POLICE SEIZE LIQUOR IN RESORTS

Proprietors, Visitors Freed On Bail; Hearings Until Thursday; Cabarets Hit

One hundred and twelve persons today are awaiting hearings as a result of week-end vice raids by Rankin police.

Three cabarets were raided by a squad headed by Chief Michael J. Jordon.

Three proprietors were charged with keeping a disorderly house and the others were charged with visiting a disorderly house.

The owners were released on $1,000 bail bonds, and the visitors on $10 forfeits for appearance before Burgess Thomas Tierney.

The hearings are listed for every night this week until Thursday.

Moonshine liquor was confiscated in each place visited, police said.

'BLACK-AND-TAN' RAIDED

The largest place raided was the cabaret owned by John O'Hare, Third street, the alleged proprietor. Eighteen young girls and 67 men were arrested.

At the Black-and-Tan House of Anthony Litchko, 307 Fifth street, Litchko, three white women and five Negroes were arrested.

Nineteen persons were arrested when police swooped into another establishment.

PLANS 'TALKIE' OF REPTILES

Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the New York Zoological Gardens, is planning to make a "talkie" of reptiles and animals, he said. Dr. Ditmars, in an address in Carnegie Museum yesterday, said that the rattlesnake has a beautiful voice for the "talkies" while the majestic lion records very badly.

The rattlesnake already has "performed" over the radio and his warning sound was picked up by radio operators at sea and fans in all parts of the United States, Canada and South America, Dr. Ditmars said.

The lecturer said his motion picture would be for use in theaters at first and later for colleges. He explained that already motion pictures and "talkies" have been made of a fight between a cobra and a mongoose but this was not a real version of the famous battles between the two.

Dr. Ditmars explained the study of snake poisons and serums and said that through the development of serums, 10,000 lives have been saved annually for the last 10 years.

New Advertising Course Provided

Edwin H. Stuart, president of the Stuart Typographic Service, will be in charge of the new classes in advertising at the Pittsburgh Academy, which will begin this week, Tuesday and Thursday nights, it has been announced. His special class will be in "Layout and Design." To supplement this course one in advanced typography will be offered under the direction of George Kinnard, general manager of the same concern. There will be classes in English, salesmanship, good taste in dress and public speaking.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Do you believe that the work of this country could be accomplished in a five-day working week?

ETHEL METCALFE, South Hills, mail clerk: "Yes, it could. It is my opinion as well as others, that the working class would greatly benefit by a set period of two days during the week. These two days would give the man or woman worker time to build up new energy for the next five day stretch of work. This conserved energy would accomplish a great deal of work."

Miss Metcalfe

LOUISE WILLIAMS, East End, shopper: "Our county is a wealthy one. Our workers are efficient and often produce more than can be consumed, so why hesitate in introducing the five-day week? With the producers looking forward to a period of vacation at the end of every week, more work will be done and done well. If the employes are treated right they will treat their employers likewise."

Miss Williams

MADGE WACKER, Swissvale, stenographer: "Only the non-progressive business man shys at the five-day working week. He is hard to convince that the shorter period for working is the better. Well, that's not unusual. His grandfather thought that the eight hours working day would ruin business. It didn't and neither will the five-day week. I believe that even more work will be done in those five days."

Miss Wacker

MARIE WOOD, North Side, alternater: "The happy and satisfied workers do more work than the disgruntled variety. If we give the worker two days out of every week in which to do as he pleases he will become happier and more satisfied and, therefore, produce more in those five days than he would in six or even seven. The shorter working period is far superior to the longer one in every respect."

Miss Wood

DOLORES ESWEIN, North Side, clerk: "Already the five-day week has proven beyond all doubt that it is more effecient than longer periods. As knowledge increases working days and hours decrease. Look how long the working class used to slave. Today they work approximately eight hours a day and a half day Saturday. Let's carry it a bit farther and work only five days. All necessary work could be accomplished in that time."

Miss Eswein

ETHEL FORBES, East End, secretary: "A lot has been said regarding the five-day working period. Its good and bad qualities have been pointed out, but, taken all in all, I think the five-day issue has more good points than bad ones. The only way to settle the whole thing is to put the scheme in practice. That it will prove beneficial both for the worker and business, I have no doubt."

Miss Forbes

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.

CHANGING prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Department of Justice is just like a dog scratching his fleas from one part of his body over to another. He has relocated 'em, but as long as he is a dog they are going to be bothering him some place.

When this shift is made, I'll bet that Mr. Andrew Mellon will feel like a man that's been laying in a ditch by the roadside and somebody come along and removed a loaded Mack truck from off his chest.

PRATHER NAMED MASTER IN WILMERDING VOTE CONTEST

COURT ORDERS HEARING HELD DOWNTOWN

Disturbances by Opposing Factions Forestalled by Action; Long Affair Seen

Former Judge Thomas J. Prather was today appointed master in the Wilmerding election contest hearing by Judge Harry Rowan, of Common Pleas Court, who at the same time ordered that the hearing be held in the City-County Building rather than in Wilmerding.

Fears had been expressed that disturbances by sympathizers of opposing factions might result if the hearing was held in that borough.

DATE NOT SET

Prather has not yet set a date for the hearing but notices will be posted in Wilmerding shortly, it was intimated.

The case grew out of the petition of Attorney J. B. Meyer representing 40 Wilmerding voters who alleged that the elections of James Volpe and Charles H. Ray, Wilmerding councilmen; Henry Biggs, justice of the peace, and O. R. Shiring, tax collector, were null and void because, they charged, 250 unqualified voters had cast ballots for the men.

In an answer to the petition which was first heard by Judge Thomas J. Ford, Attorney Oliver K. Eaton, representing Volpe and his associates contended that half of the signatories of the petition were not qualified as voters. Judge Ford denied a motion to quash the proceedings.

LONG AFFAIR SEEN

Volpe and his associates allege that 500 other voters, representing part of the ballots cast for opponents, were unqualified.

It is likely, according to Prather, that the hearing will be a long drawn-out affair. Depositions of several hundred voters and other witnesses will have to be taken.

AUTOS KILL 2, HUNT DRIVER

Two persons are dead and five others injured seriously as a result of automobile accidents in the Pittsburgh district yesterday and this morning.

County detectives today were seeking the driver of an automobile which struck Louis Tettsloff, 52, of R. F. D. No. 7, Bellevue, on the Jacks Run road near Brighton road early yesterday. Tettsloff was removed to the Suburban General Hospital where he died a short time after being admitted.

Mrs. Mary McLaughlin, 55, widow of 2915 Walnut street, McKeesport, died in the McKeesport Hospital last night from injuries suffered when hit by an automobile in Fifth avenue, McKeesport, Tuesday. Police say the woman stepped from the curb and was struck by an automobile backing into an open space to park.

FIVE INJURED IN 3 COLLISIONS

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Feb. 10.—Sergt. J. A. Blair and Private J. M. Burnsworth of the Parnassus detail, state highway patrol, today were continuing investigations into the injury of five persons in three motor accidents, in two of which three cars crashed. One driver fled.

Anna Marie Stitt, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stitt, of near Arnold, was unconscious when carried from the wreckage last night, after the automobiles of Stitt and Walter Nicholas, both southbound in the New Kensington-Vandergrift road, collided with the machine of a hit-run motorist.

The child sustained probable internal injuries. Her sister, Theta, 7, suffered lacerations; their mother was bruised. They were taken home.

Mrs. Pauline Goldsmith, wife of Samuel Goldsmith, of 1410 Fifth avenue, Arnold, was cut and bruised when the cars driven by Goldsmith, Charles Dohman, 1008 East street, Tarentum, and Henry Leskovich, of Harwick, collided in the Freeport road near the New Kensington Bridge. Dohman was arrested, police say.

Matthew Hujo, of Glassmere, suffered a crushed leg when struck by a machine which police say was driven by Floyd Bryan, 708 Third street, Breckenridge. He was taken to the Citizens General Hospital.

Bryan was arrested for reckless driving.

AUTO MISHAPS INJURE FIVE

J. H. Callahan, 40, of 5210 Second avenue, is in the Allegheny General Hospital with a possible fracture of the skull, suffered yesterday when his automobile collided with two other machines at Sixth street and Duquesne way. Dave Luterman, 21, of 407 McKee place, and Walter J. Emanuel, 44, of 217 Baywood street, drivers of the other cars, were arrested, according to police.

Knocked down by a hit-run motorist in Rodi road, near Lenhart, Edward Ramler, 38, of Manor, was getting to his feet when struck and seriously injured by a second machine last night. John F. Logan, of Monroeville road, Turtle Creek, driver of the second machine, took Ramler to the Braddock General Hospital where it was said his condition was critical. His skull probably was fractured, the hospital report stated.

Herbert Bumner, 62, of 1326 Sheffield street, North Side, was injured when his automobile went down a 30-foot embankment at Wall bridge in the Pitcairn-Trafford road last night. He is in the Braddock General Hospital.

Mrs. R. Gormley, 46, of 921 Blackadore avenue, was bruised last night when hit by an automobile at Kelly street near Homewood avenue.

Alberta Muzyk, 8, of 1010 Madison avenue, was cut and bruised this morning when an automobile driven by her father, Alex Muzyk, struck a pole at East and Milroy streets.

AIMS AT RADIO, SHOOTS WIFE; TWO HELD

Victim Declares Wound Was Accidental; Husband And Friend Detained

Harry Lavelle, 64, of 505 Allegheny avenue, and Samuel Tapino, 38, of Crafton Heights, were today held for further investigation by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court on suspicious person charges, pending outcome of the wounds sustained by Lavelle's wife, Rose, 33, who was shot last night, police said, in her home.

Mrs. Lavelle, with a bullet wound in her left shoulder, was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital. A few minutes after she had been taken there, Lavelle walked into the North Side Police Station, where he was arrested on a suspicious person charge. The husband, according to police, told them that he had shot his wife accidentally.

Sam Tapino, 38, of Clairtonica street, who left the Lavelle home five minutes before the shooting and who was arrested as a witness, said that Lavelle had been drinking, police reported. The couple quarreled, according to Tapino, when Mrs. Lavelle refused to turn off the radio at her husband's demands.

At the hospital Mrs. Lavelle explained that her husband drew a revolver and threatened to "shoot out" the radio when she stepped in front of it, police say. Mrs. Lavelle expressed belief that her husband was not aware that the revolver was loaded when he pressed the trigger.

CLASS MAKING MODEL PLANES

"Hey, you fellows, my plane will glide farther than yours."

The speaker is liable to be any one of the 105 aviation enthusiasts that meet at Gimbel's store every Saturday to study airplane model construction.

The class, instructed by E. L. Phillips, a teacher in Schenley High School, is the dream of every schoolboy—no books, no pencils and only "home work" the pupils find convenient to do.

Members of the air-minded group are divided according to their ability to construct an airplane model. Some do elementary work on small planes, while others are permitted to work on the more difficult task of constructing large models. The construction of a miniature plane is their ambition, for they may be selected to represent Pittsburgh in the national airplane model contest at Detroit this summer. The contest is sponsored by the Airplane Model League of America. The class at Gimbel's is the Pittsburgh Division of the Junior Aviation League.

The boys must enter an elimination contest. The eliminations will be staged at one of Pittsburgh's air fields.

2 DRUG CLERKS COWED, $300 TAKEN

Masked Pair Loots Store; Six Pedestrians Robbed; Bellevue Man Routs Two

No trace had been found by police today of the bandits who held up a drug store and five pedestrians, or the robbers who looted six places late Saturday and yesterday.

Two masked and armed bandits escaped with $300 after holding two clerks at bay in the W. J. McGill drug store at 4831 Liberty avenue, Saturday night. The robbers obtained the money from a register.

F. C. Arment, of 6932 Standish street, was confronted by three men in front of his home and robbed of $2.

HIGHWAYMEN ACTIVE

Returning home from work, Andrew Stein, of 924 Climax street, was robbed of $28 by a highwayman who confronted him in Michigan avenue. Other holdups reported to police were those of Frank Burke, of Leland street, Carrick, who was robbed of $11 in Schenley Park; Patrick Grallish, of 914 Reedsdale street, from whom $8 was taken, and M. E. Luck, of 626 Madison avenue, Bellevue, who routed two bandits when they attempted to rob him at Edgerton and Linden avenues.

A sneak thief walked in the Kenmore Gasoline Station at Broad street and Hamilton avenue, and stole $79 from a safe which was open, according to police.

M. Abraham, of 1204 Vickroy street, reported the theft of a typewriter and a check writer from his office when he discovered the robbery yesterday.

STORE ROBBED

From the store of Samuel Meyers, at 6502 Frangstown avenue, cigarets and cigars valued at $100 and $6 in cash was stolen. The rear door of the place was jimmied.

Forcing the rear door of the drug store of Charles Rhea, at 5524 Wilkins avenue, thieves rifled the cash register of $15.

Eight dollars and a watch valued at $20 was stolen from the home of Mrs. George Forker, at 7211 Meade street. Entrance was gained by forcing a side window.

Playing good samaritan to a stranger he had met on the street cost John Murlock, of 509 Union avenue, $130, Murlock told police. Murlock invited the man to his room and when the stranger had left Murlock discovered his loss, police reported.

ROB HARDWARE STORE

Revolvers, handcuffs and bullets were stolen this morning by thieves who broke into the hardware store of Samuel Langsam at 2623 Penn avenue. A brick was used to shatter the glass in the front door of the store. Langsam estimated damage to the window at $23 and the loot at $111, in addition to $25 stolen from the cash register.

James J. Svete, of 4035 Cambronne street, reported to police today that $15 in jewelry had been stolen from his house during the night. The front door had been jimmied, he said.

ALTHOUGH many people are leaving Pittsburgh these days for warmer climes I hear that several society folks have house guests who arrived last week end and, of course, the season will brighten with luncheons and dinner-dances in their honor. The guests are all from St. Louis, Mo., and are Janet Gardner, who is visiting Elinor McIntire, daughter of the James Duncan McIntires of Stratford avenue, and Susan Singleton, house guest of Ellen McClay, daughter of the Samuel McClays, of Devon road. As you know, Elinor, Janet and Susan were all members of the Sheldon-Horne bridal party in St. Louis last month.

Mrs. Stephen B. Sheldon, mother of the recent bride, the former Kathleen Sheldon, also arrived during the week end to assist her son-in-law and daughter, the junior Bernard Shea Hornes, in opening their new home in the Pennsylvania Apartments. The young Hornes returned from their wedding trip to Bermuda about 10 days ago.

THE ENGLISH TWEED SUIT WITH A FRENCH EDUCATION

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 10.—The tweed suit has become awfully smart since it left England and came to finishing school in Paris. It has acquired elegance, sophistication, charm, beauty and all the other desirable attributes that we associate with polished perfection. Except for the seriously active sports, gone is the jacket and skirt of heavy thick tweed with its uncompromisingly plain lines, devoid of grace and a stranger to chic.

In its place is a delightful creation of fine supple tweeds with skirts that combine utility with grace, and jackets that contrive to be both jaunty and elegant, with a wealth of intricate detail and cut on subtle lines. And this season's sartorial revolution has completed the evolution of the tailored tweed suit which, with a harmonizing blouse, has also graduated into the ensemble class. The evolution of a mode is a fascinating study, and has academic value also, because the mode is an accurate reflection of the times in its occupations and other activities. You may have noticed this when perusing a book dealing with historical subjects. A study of the illustrations of various historical characters will verify the relationship between the mode and the times.

AND now for one of the new smart tweed suits as interpreted by the house of De Flavlis. The model shown is one of the most attractive of the many attractive creations included in the recent mid-season showing of this establishment. It is of fine red and brown tweed on a biege ground with piping and buttons in beige on the jacket. A scarf collar passing through a long slit at the neckline in front forms an amusing fastening. The straight skirt has a single inverted pleat in the front. With the skirt is worn a beige satin blouse with appliques of the tweed at the waistline and cuffs.

THE smart caped coat was worn in the recent mannequin parade at the Palais de Glace. It is of heavy herringbone tweed, obviously English in origin, in light brown and beige. The lines are trim and snug and altogether flattering in silhouette. The cape is shallow and rounding over the shoulders and the matching belt is placed at a moderately high waistline.

Why 85% of America's leading hospitals use Kotex absorbent

Greater comfort . . . remarkable absorption . . . less bulk and weight . . . are reasons why 85% of leading hospitals now use Kotex absorbent

PROPER sanitary care is more than a matter of personal daintiness . . . it's a matter of actual health protection.

So it's highly significant that 85% of America's leading hospitals select Kotex absorbent. Women may use Kotex, safe in the knowledge that their sanitary protection is the kind approved by doctors . . . that the greatest hospitals could offer nothing finer.

Why Kotex is more hygienic

Its amazing absorbency makes Kotex safer in many ways. Kotex absorbs away from the surface. The surface is kept soft, fluffy and delicate. This is not only more comfortable, but more hygienic and far daintier.

Because Kotex absorbs so thoroughly, bulk and weight are not needed. You've no unpleasant consciousness of sanitary protection . . . no nervousness . . . no worries. There's no "packing," because Kotex is made of air-cooled layers of Cellucotton absorbent wadding.

Remember that Cellucotton is not cotton—but a cellulose product which performs the same sanitary function with 5 times the absorbency of the finest cotton.

There are many reasons why Cellucotton makes a superior sanitary pad. Several are noted at the right. Please read them—then try Kotex. Kotex Company, Chicago, Illinois.

KOTEX IS SOFT . . .

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Safe, secure . . . keeps your mind at ease.

3—Fastidious . . . the sign of true daintiness.

4—In hospitals . . . Kotex is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.

5—Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly by a special process.

Health Better Than Riches

"Before I was married, my mother and sister and I did all the farming work on a 64-acre farm for eleven years. I married a farmer and now in addition to my housework and the care of my children I help him with the outside work on our farm. After my last child was born, I began to suffer as many women do. Our family doctor gave me medicine but no results. One day he told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. LOVEJOY

By BEATRICE BURTON

Lovejoy Thinks That Tom's In Love With Norrie

CHAPTER XXIX

IT WAS [illegible] midnight when Steve brought her back home. He stopped [illegible] a half block away from the house to let her out.

"This [illegible] sort of thing I can't stand," he said quietly when he had turned off the motor and laid one of his arms across Lovejoy's shoulders. "This sneaking [illegible]. I love you and I want to be able to tell the whole world about it. And if you care about me as much as you say you do you'll get a divorce and marry me."

Lovejoy [illegible] the back of the [illegible] the big [illegible].

This [illegible] Tom's house her very [illegible] Why couldn't [illegible] with her [illegible] did he [illegible] the evening [illegible] leaving [illegible] him?

"Listen [illegible]," she said. "We [illegible] a wonderful time today [illegible] spoil it by arguing [illegible] the middle of the [illegible] I'll have to [illegible] when I get [illegible].

They had had a splendid afternoon and evening. It had had [illegible] at the Seahorse Hotel where the orchestra had played the Prince of Wales' favorite [illegible] "If I Had You."

They had driven 40 miles up the river to a roadhouse named The Four Chimneys. And there they had danced between the courses of a dinner that they did not [illegible] and after each dance they had drunk highballs.

On the way home they had found a dark little lane that ran between cornfields and woods. They had stopped there for a few minutes and Lovejoy had let Steve kiss her as much as he wanted to, and under the spell of the moonlight and the highballs she had told him that she loved him.

But the [illegible] was gone now and Lovejoy was cross and sleepy.

She set one [illegible] on the step of the car.

Offers Everything

"You make me think of King Henry the Eighth, Steve," she said with a yawn and a little laugh. "He always wanted to marry his sweeties and make honest women of them!"

Steve shook his head.

"I don't understand you, Lovejoy, when you talk like that," he answered. In the darkness his eyes searched her face. "I'm offering you everything I have in the world, and myself along with it—and you just snap your fingers at me. You laugh at me, don't you?"

"Of course I don't laugh at you, Steve," said Lovejoy, getting out of the car. "I'm just trying to make up my mind what to do about you and me and Tom. So please don't hurry me and worry me."

The thing to do, she had decided long ago, was to let things slide. To let them go on just as they were going on.

I don't have to pull my whole life to pieces just because Steve Oglebay is in love with me, she told herself as she walked along the dark, quiet street a minute or two later. I can see him once in a while like this and have a good time with him without hurting anybody. Nobody has to know about it, even.

She turned her head to look at him. He was standing beside his automobile, watching to see that she got home safely.

Something that he had said that afternoon came back to her all at once.

Lovejoy, the rottenest creature on earth, he had said, is the married woman who has little sneaking love affairs on the side.

She stopped at the foot of the front steps, took her handkerchief from her bag and wiped her lips with it.

The front door stood wide open, and there were lights in the back of the house.

The new radio was filling the big dim living room with the soft music of "If I had You," played by some far-away dance orchestra.

She remembered how Steve had murmured the words to her that night as they danced, his lips moving against the crown of her hat.

"I could show the world
how to smile
I could be glad—all of the while
I could change the gray skies to blue.
If I had you—"

She knew that she meant blue skies to Steve Oglebay, beyond all shadow of doubt.

No man is around trying to marry a divorced woman with a child, these days, unless he worships the ground she walks on, she said to herself, and she turned off the radio.

"Who's there?"

It was Norrie Shane's voice. She came to the door of the living room and peered into the shadows where Lovejoy stood.

"Oh, it's not a burglar! It's just I!" Lovejoy sang out to her. "I suppose I have a right to turn off the music in my own house, haven't I?"

It was her own house, true enough. But somehow or other, she knew, Tom had felt comfortable and at home in it.

And so I bought every stick of furniture in it myself, she thought, watching on the wall tablets with their shades of gold-colored silk.

"Where's Tom?" she asked Norrie.

We were just having a midnight lunch in the kitchen," Norrie said with her quick smile. "The men all left about [illegible] ago, and I found I were simply starved."

Tom and I. Tom and I! How chummy and domestic that sounded.

Certainly nothing could have looked cozier than the kitchen did that night.

Shock of Jealousy

Norrie had spread a yellow linen cloth upon the table between the windows. She had made sandwiches and a pot of fresh coffee, and she had set Tom's pipe and tobacco jar on the window sill beside his chair.

A queer little shock of jealousy went through Lovejoy as she took it all in.

That coffee will keep you awake all night, Tom," were the first words that she said when she stepped into the kitchen, and she said them sharply.

Think so?" Tom sounded indifferent.

But there was nothing of indifference in the long searching look that he gave her as she stood in the doorway. It was a look that swept her from head to foot—and under it Lovejoy wondered why he couldn't see the kisses that Steve Oglebay had pressed upon her mouth a few minutes before.

"Great guns!" he exclaimed, setting down his cup. "What have you done to your hair?"

He came across the kitchen to her and pulled her hat from her head.

"You've had it dyed!" he said. "It's pink. So that's what you were doing with your time when you should have been home!" I asked you to get something ready for a meal tonight—"

"I beg your pardon, you asked Norrie to do it for you!" Lovejoy contradicted him. "So I decided to get out of the house and let her run your party for you."

Norrie kept perfectly still.

She had seated herself at the little table and was looking down into her coffee cup as if she were crystal gazing. Her lips quivered a little.

"Where have you been all day?" Tom asked, his eyes shifting to the Dutch clock that hung above the sink.

Tells Where She Was

Lovejoy opened her lips, shut them and then slowly opened them once more.

"I've been out gallivanting with Stephen Oglebay," she said jerkily. "I had dinner with him at an inn called the Four Chimneys and I just left him."

She waited for the explosion that was sure to follow.

But it did not come.

If Tom was surprised and infuriated he gave no sign of it except a tightening of his straight, well-cut lips. Then he smiled.

"If you don't believe me, here's a comb that I took from the women's dressing-room!" Lovejoy added defiantly. "You can look at it!"

She pulled a little gray pasteboard comb from her pocket and tossed it down upon the yellow tablecloth between Norrie and Tom. "The Four Chimneys" was printed on it.

"I knew you wouldn't mind my going out with Steve," she said with fine sarcasm, "when you were having a good time at home."

To her utter amazement, Tom shook his head.

"I don't mind what you do—as long as you're doing the thing that you want to do," he told her with that quiet firmness of his. "And if you expect me to go out and shoot Steve Oglebay, you're all wrong."

Somehow or other Lovejoy got out of that bright kitchen—and after a while she found herself upstairs in her own gray and orchid bedroom with the night wind bringing the scent of dewy grass and flowers up to her as she sat staring into the mirror of her dressing table.

Her face looked white and haggard in the strong light above it, and her eyes were wide and shadowy and puzzled.

He's in love with Norrie Shane, she whispered to herself. That's why he doesn't care a rap what I do!

And she had been so sure of Tom! So sure that Norrie was nothing more to him than Hilda had been! So sure that he never would look twice at Norrie Shane!

Ideal Lovemate of Youth's Dream Is Only a Dream, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

IN OUR first romantic day dreams we picture an ideal, but thanks to the good sense of reality we rarely meet and marry them.

Flappers imagine that the only man they could possibly fall in love with and marry must be a grand, gorgeous Adonis with dreamy eyes, wavy hair and crooning voice.

Young Romeos imagine the only girl they would ever fall for and marry must be a stunning siren, alluring and languid, and as rich as she is beautiful—which would be some bankroll, believe me.

But when they do fall in love and marry, it is with some plain, sweet young person who is so dear to them they forget entirely all about the ideal they once pictured.

Mysterious Telephone Call Turns Out to Be Threat

IF I HAVE a phobia as some of our more wise men claim every one has it surely is connected with a telephone message especially a long-distance one. Dicky says that I start like a frightened horse at any ring of the telephone and quiver until the call is finished, and that when we are away from home I am secretly longing to speed the answering of any telephone I hear ringing. That of course is mostly teasing nonsense but it has an uncomfortable modicum of truth in it and never have I been so aware of that percentage of truth as when waiting to hear the voice of the unknown man from Toledo who had insisted upon talking to me.

I knew no one who lived in Toledo. I was certain of that and as I held the receiver to my ear waiting for the long distance call to be completed I hastily ran over the names of the men I knew outside New York city, whose acquaintance with me would warrant so persistent a demand to speak to me.

Hugh Cranfland, Allen Drake, Robert Bavarin. I discarded each name in turn for I happened to know the whereabouts of all of them. Not one was within five hundred miles of the city from which this call was coming.

"Mrs. Graham?" A man's voice sounded suddenly in my ears, a voice totally strange to me and I found my free hand involuntarily gripping the arm of my chair.

"Yes, I am Mrs. Graham," I replied after a second. "But—I do not recognize your voice."

"Considering that you've never heard it before that isn't so strange," the voice replied with a patent attempt at flippancy which made me say icily:

"Then you can have no possible reason for wishing to talk to me. Good-day."

"Listen to me!" The voice was so suddenly changed, so menacing, that involuntarily I put back to my ear the receiver which I had started to return to the hook. "Do you want every member of your family and friends to live the year out?"

He gave me no chance to answer this astounding question, even if I had been able to reply. For the moment I was incapable of speech, and by the time I pulled myself together, he was speaking again, the menace in his voice again tinged with flippancy.

"You don't have to answer that. I'm wise to all your outfit and what you think of them. But you listen to me now, or you'll be sorry every minute of your life. Are you ready?"

"I will listen to you," I said coldly, hoping he would not detect the choke in my voice. Never had I felt so powerless to resent insolence, and my cheeks were burning with humiliation, yet I dared not hang up the receiver as my outraged dignity and self-respect demanded I should do.

"I thought you would," he said, not sneeringly, but with a calm recognition of fact. "But I won't keep you long. In the first place you'll never see me nor yet hear me after this call. I'm just a go-between, a messenger boy, you might call me. Now the message is this—"

He stopped for a second, and I wondered if he guessed how terrified and breathless I was.

"You have something in your place that some friends of mine have taken a fancy to," he went on, the flippant note again prominent. "I'm not going to tell you what it is—maybe it's an oil painting of your grandfather, maybe it's a diamond ring belonging to a friend of yours or a will or deed made by a relative. You can keep yourself busy guessing while you're waiting to hear from my friends. It'll be better than working out a cross-word puzzle. But—make no mistake about this—" the voice was suddenly crisp—"when my friends send you word what it is they want and when they want it you'd better be ready to produce the goods on—the—dot. If you don't or if you dawdle around the police, you'll be one sorry lady, I can promise you that. You might tell all this to that lad Underwood. He's so good at cracking nuts, let him try this hard-shelled one. So long. Sorry I'll never hear you talk again. You have such a sweet voice."

The receiver clicked, and for a panic-stricken second, I stood with mine still held to my ear. I was alone in the apartment—and I knew that only Lillian was at home in the other suite, and that she was asleep. But even if she had been awake, I would not have gone to her with this perplexing problem.

There had been a distinctly sinister note, or so I imagined, in the unknown man's reference to Harry Underwood. If Lillian heard of it, her terrified anxiety concerning her husband's safety, lulled somewhat since his successful coup in breaking up the gang of conspirators known as Kenellos and foiling the plot to assassinate Prince Georges, would start up in full strength again.

If only Dicky were here!

Even as my mind framed the wish, my pulses quickened with joy at the thought that the renewal of our old loving comradery made it possible for me to go to him with all my perplexities as well as my joys.

But I realized that I could not wait for his counsel concerning one thing. I must act on my own initiative, and instead of replacing the receiver upon the hook, I "flashed" repeatedly for the hotel switchboard operator.

"That long distance call must be traced at once," I said. "I must find out from what number in Toledo it came, and, if possible, what the man looked like who made it. While you're starting the tracing, let me talk to the manager, please."

The Marry-Go-Round

If Men Wear Beards!

There are times when a woman feels almost relieved at the reflection that her "love-life" is over, and that she is safely settled down with a comfortable husband, who can no longer shock her aesthetic sensibilities or shatter her rainbow illusions.

If a recent dispatch from London, announcing that BEARDS are budding and blossoming on the chins of men and will soon be the vogue over here is TRUE, then this is one of those times!

Good-bye Romeo. Prince Charming, Don Juan—and all you beardless lovers! But WHY have men thought up this new "frightfulness"? Why are they retreating behind this venerable barrier of defense?

Are they tired of being a "temptation," and weary of being kissed against their wills? Or is this just a gesture? Just the last attempt to "show the world"—and women—WHO and which is the Dominant Sex?

Woman has helped herself to man's cigarets, borrowed his trousers, taken over his jobs, imitated his hair-cut and appropriated most of his sins. But she cannot grow a BEARD! That is the one last symbol of masculine superiority left to the He-sex!

Whatever their motive, "young men about London are abandoning the Ronald Colman mustache, and hastening to replace it with the Rip Van Winkle chin-wear." And THIS, if I am any prophet, is going to be pretty stiff blow to feminism.

There is something about a man with a beard which baffles and defeats woman from the start. She is confused in her mind with all the awe-inspiring figures of her childhood. With grandpa, the doctor, the bogie man, Santa Claus, King Solomon and Father Time! He is a living reminder of all the cavemen who ever wielded a knotted club over a lady's head.

Worse still, with his chin completely hidden, and only his eyes to betray him, he is a mystery, beside which the veiled ladies of the Orient are positively transparent. Behind that hirsute camouflage, how can a woman know whether a man is weakening or rebelling; yearning—or only yawning? Whether he is laughing with her or AT her?

* * *

It's not FAIR! For, if the eyes are the windows of the soul, the mouth and the chin are the door to the character. And, how can a girl know whether the total stranger who walks to the altar beside her is a caveman or a molly coddle?

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, February 11

THE sidereal operations for this day point to several perplexing situations, calling for clever manipulation. Be cautious in signing all writings and contracts. Do not speculate, and be on guard against surprise in personal matters.

Those whose birthday it is may have a successful year through their own wisdom, precaution and good management in all affairs. Some good prospects but many critical situations. Sign all documents carefully, shun all risks.

A child born this day may have many singular and superficial traits. It should be given a solid education in sterling qualities.

NOT SO DUMB

By HELEN KLUMPH

From Marion Davies' forthcoming All-Talking Picture by Wanda Tuchock and Edwin Justus Mayer, based on the play, "Dulcy," by Marc Connelly and George Kaufman.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Dulcy is an adorable blonde, always helping people—but usually into trouble. A serious quarrel with Gordon, her fiance, results from her determination to help him put over a business deal. Over his protests she goes to the train with him to meet Forbes, a financier, and invites him and his family to her house for a week-end. Gordon finds, to his horror, that she has a new butler who is an ex-convict, and that she has also invited an utter stranger named Van Dyke, and a scenario writer, Vincent Leach, who was in love with Angela. Gordon faces ruin as Forbes seems irritated upon arrival. Angela appeared wearing real pearls. Dulcy managed, the first moment she was alone with Forbes, to enrage him to the point of apoplexy by declaring that Gordon had many important interests aside from the jewelry merger which he had discussed with Forbes.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VII.

DULCY hurried across the lawn joyously elated that her plans were working out with the precision of a perfectly-running machine; a machine of destruction, if she did but know it.

She paused a moment as she caught sight of Van Dyke practising golf shots with all the flourish of a tap dancer spurred on by applause. He was such a satisfactory guest! It was a relief to find one guest who was already enjoying himself so thoroughly. She must throw him and Mr. Forbes together, maybe he could make the older man enter into the spirit of games where she had failed.

"You're to play eighteen holes of golf with Mr. Forbes the first thing in the morning," she called to him cheerily as she went toward the house.

"Don't take 'No' for an answer; I think he is just timid."

Even in the depths of his despair Gordon, who came up just in time to hear her, could smile at the prospect of the overbearing Forbes being timid about anything. Dulcy was adorable! But she must be stopped! He shuddered to think of Forbes' rage if she persisted.

"Suppose," he suggested hopefully, "that tomorrow we just let everybody do what they want to."

Gordon's Idea

"You know, let everyone enjoy himself in his own way. Let Van Dyke play golf if he wants to, and let Forbes do just nothing if he prefers."

"Oh, but he'll have a much better time if he does what I've planned for him."

It was sweet of Gordon not to want her to go to any trouble to entertain Forbes, but she was willing to make any effort and keep right after him if he was the sort who had to be urged. Gordon didn't seem to realize as she did, how important it was to have Forbes in a good humor when they came to talk business.

As she rushed on into the living room to greet Vincent Leach, he hardly glanced up. He was intent on polishing his already glossy fingernails against the arm of his coat, and his brow wore the harrassed look of a man who was trying to get over the idea that he had big vital decisions to make.

But to Dulcy, whose all-embracing love of humanity took in conceited poseurs as well as the halt and the blind, he was one more valuable acquisition to a week-end already bursting with promise of excitement.

Her graceful little hands fluttered out in a gesture of delight as she told him:

"They're all dying to meet you!"

Leach's Arrival

Vincent Leach wore a bored air of "Why not?"

Condescendingly, he advanced toward her.

"Miss Parker, my dear lady—"

But Dulcy couldn't wait to tell him her news.

"I have a surprise for you" she gloated. "Wait until you see who is here. Come on out on the porch."

She rushed ahead of him and paused significantly as though her announcement was of great importance. The roll of drums that precedes an acrobat's climatic feat couldn't have been more startling to the small gathering.

"Here he is! Ladies and gentlemen, this is Mr. Vincent Leach, the great scenario writer."

Gordon wondered if there was ever a more ominous moment. Forbes looked at Dulcy puzzled and annoyed as if he were bewildered at the mere thought of such a catastrophe. A man can stand just so much, and if Dulcy had combed the whole wide world she couldn't have found anyone less welcome to his presence that this dandified talking machine.

Mrs. Forbes glanced at her husband in some apprehension, but she didn't intend to have her chance of meeting a real personage spoiled. And as Dulcy presented her, explaining that of course, she was much too young to be anything but Angela's stepmother, she beamed with pleasure.

Perhaps the consolation of this warmth made up for the chill of his reception from the men. Bill glowered at him. It suddenly dawned on him that this must be the man Angela had told him about. It was humiliating enough to lose a girl to any man, but to have this arrogant nit-wit for a rival was too much. Bill was fighting mad!

Dulcy was serenely oblivious to everything but the obvious delight of Angela and Vincent in seeing each other.

The Meeting

Angela lifted her eyes to his in a long, fervent glance, broken only when Dulcy whispered excitedly, "Didn't I tell you I had a surprise for you?"

It was as though the others didn't exist at all. Angela stood awed, speechless. She wanted to thank Dulcy, but she could do nothing but gaze tremulously at Vincent.

Dulcy couldn't allow them to monopolize each other for long, she reminded herself. Mr. Forbes didn't seem much impressed, now that she stopped to notice it, but he would be when he heard how perfectly wonderful Vincent was.

"Mr. Leach showed us through his studio the other day," she told Forbes delightedly. "And he almost kidnaped your little girl to make a picture star out of her."

This seemed only to make matters worse.

"Mr. Leach is a scenario writer," she explained in an awed tone.

Vincent needed no further encouragement to explain himself.

"Not scenario writer," he corrected her importantly, "scenarist. It's the more modern term. The scenarist of today is quite different from the scenario writer of yesterday."

Not noticing the gathering clouds in Forbes' direction, Dulcy encouraged him.

"Of course," he explained casually, as though to make light of big achievements, "it's a man-sized job. But I just kept on and on until—you see?"

"What?" asked Bill, only to be promptly and audibly hushed by Dulcy.

Forbes Gets Angry

"You know, I have been doing so many stories of my own lately, I think I'll try something of Shakespeare's next. You know the old fellow had quite a sense of drama."

Forbes was almost apoplectic with rage. Not that he cared about anybody patronizing some dead one, but the infernal cheek of this human cartoon simpering at Angela as if he owned her. He would have to keep closer watch of Angela in the future. First thing he knew he would have some such scarecrow in the family.

"Didn't I hear that you were interested in pictures?" Vincent asked.

Forbes didn't often permit himself the use of profanity; he saved it for such moments as these. But he was so incoherent with rage no one could understand him.

"I said I make jewelry," he explained, the words issuing from his mouth like bullets.

"Well, of course," Vincent granted with an air of great generosity, "that's very necessary, too, in its way."

Gordon could not restrain himself any longer. He went to Dulcy's side and clutched her arm nervously. Even Dulcy could see that something should be done to relieve the situation.

"Let's play a rubber of bridge before dinner," she suggested eagerly. "It's so nice and soothing."

Forbes' protests that he didn't want to play bridge, that he had never even heard of the game, were unavailing before the flood of Dulcy's enthusiasm.

"And why don't you and Angela go out on the lawn to see the view?" she asked Vincent.

Forbes was powerless before her bland, beautiful innocence of what she was doing. Savagely, he reflected that he must get away from her. He turned and stalked toward the door.

"I'll come back, I think," he muttered, "if I can't find any way to escape."

The Bride's Note of Thanks

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

1. In mailing wedding announcements should they be mailed to the guests who were present at the wedding or only to those friends who were not present?

2. If the guests are thanked for the wedding presents should a note of thanks also be written them later? MAY.

WEDDING announcements are sent only to those friends who are not invited to the wedding. The fact that they were invited is the point, not whether or not they were present.

2. Yes, this is most important. The day that the bride receives the present she should write a note of thanks and appreciation to the friend who sent the present. This means that, when she leaves for her wedding journey, she will have written notes of thanks for all presents that she has received, except, perhaps, for those that were sent on the day before the wedding or on the day of the wedding. Of course guests sending presents as late as this will not expect prompt thank-you notes. The bride may, in this case, make arrangements with someone in her family to write a note to the sender, explaining that the gift has been received and that the bride will herself write a note when she returns from her trip.

Signing the Hotel Register

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

Recently my husband and I motored to the city. As my husband had a business appointment he left me as soon as we arrived in the city and I had to go to the hotel to engage a room for us. I signed the register "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith." Was that correct?

2—How should I have registered if my husband had not been with me?

3—How should an unmarried woman sign a hotel register? V. L.

YES; under this exceptional circumstance, this would be correct.

2—Mrs. John Smith, Chicago.

3—An unmarried woman uses her title: Miss Sarah Smith, Chicago.

A helpful thing to remember is that a woman, a married woman, a widow, a divorcee or an unmarried woman should use, when she signs a hotel register, the formal form of her name that is on her visiting cards.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Stammering Often a Habit

SOMETIMES stammering is brought on by some injury or disease. Usually it begins early in life, even with the first attempts to talk.

DR COPELAND

It is influenced very much by surroundings, or by any emotion. Fear or fatigue will be found to make it more pronounced. Young men and women are extremely sensitive to this difficulty of speech, when once it has become a fixed habit.

There is a difference between stammering and stuttering. In the latter there is a sort of spasm, particularly when an attempt is made to pronounce the explosive sounds necessary for naming the letters b, d, g, k, p and t.

The treatment for this difficulty of stammering is a matter of education. In the case of young children who have no serious physical defect, or a disease like St. Vitus' dance or paralysis of the muscles of speech, it is possible to overcome stammering through patient and persistent effort.

If it is found that a young child has difficulty to pronounce certain words, he should be thoroughly examined to see if he has any discoverable physical defect. Enlarged tonsils and adenoids may bring on this trouble. Intense nervousness and a deformity in the nose or throat are often accompanied by speech defects.

The cause should be ascertained and corrected. Then the child should be encouraged to overcome the speech defect. He should never be made fun of or criticised. Gain his confidence and do everything in a sympathetic manner to assist him to gain his self-control.

Memorizing short poems or prose is a very good practice. Reading aloud, very slowly at first, and being made to correct each error of speech and pronunciation, will help him to gain self-assurance. This comes very gradually, but it is the only way to give the child poise. By reciting to one or two friendly persons the child is given confidence and he will gradually overcome the difficulty.

Both stammerer and teacher will have to exercise much patience. To the young man or woman coming into maturity, such a speech defect is extremely mortifying, and the habit, for it is a habit, should be broken when the child is young.

RUM FLAG SHIP VANISHES

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 10 (AP).—The fate of the motorboat Grey Ghost, known as the flagship of the rum fleet on Lake Erie, was in doubt today with conflicting rumors that she had gone down and that she was in drydock somewhere along the lake.

Ten days ago word was received here that the Grey Ghost had been sighted fast in the ice off Pelee Island with the body of a man frozen to the wheel. The man was supposed to be Leo Leonard, sought by Cleveland on a rum running charge.

An airplane flew over the lake in the vicinity of Pelee Island but was unable to locate the craft and it was assumed that it had foundered.

The rumor that the Grey Ghost was in drydock was not confirmed. The location of the dock was not indicated.

EXILE RETURNS, RAKES CROWN

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, Feb. 10.—(AP).—Only a few hours after returning to Spain from nearly six years' exile in France, Miguel De Unamuno, one of the foremost of Spanish intellectuals, delivered a vigorous broadside against all monarchies, dictatorships and clergies. Senor Unamuno ended his exile only yesterday, crossing from Hendaye, France, to Irun.

In his first speech he showed himself to be very little changed from the stormy petrel of Liberalism that he was before the De Rivera dictatorship exiled him.

Declaring that he was the enemy of any kind of dictatorship, from Communist to Fascist, he said he was of the Liberal faith that recognized only God, country and the law. Then he made a bitter attack against the resigned dictator, Primo De Rivera, who passed through Hendaye yesterday on his way to San Remo, Italy, for a vacation, while Unamuno himself was eating his last breakfast before quitting French soil. He particularly attacked Primo for having claimed credit for victory in the Moroccan campaign against Abd El Krim.

He made his onslaught against monarchies almost within earshot of the summer palace of King Alfonso.

Man, 106, Beaten By Stranger He Befriended

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 10.—(AP).—Badly beaten by a man he said he had befriended by giving him a room without charge, William Everett, 106 years old, Omaha's oldest resident, was in a local hospital last night suffering from injuries which hospital attendants said they feared would cause his death. He said the man struck and kicked him when he reprimanded him for refusing to work.

"Back in the '70s I could have thrashed him," Everett told police.

SEIZE SCHOOL, MOTHERS' AIM

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP).—Mothers of striking pupils in the Lovett School sounded their marching cry today.

In a meeting that did not break up until early today the mothers pledged themselves to seize the school this morning, lead 100 children into the vacated classrooms and teach the classes themselves.

This decision to carry out their plan followed an order from Superintendent of Schools Bogan to keep the parents and the striking children from the classrooms.

"Nothing but force will stop our invasion," was the mothers' reply.

The strike began several days ago at the parents' direction when they were aroused over a transfer of pupils from the Lovett School to the Burbank Junior High School. The transfer made a number of pupils cross 16 tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad.

JAIL ESCAPER ELUDES NET

WARREN, Pa., Feb. 10.—(AP).—The net laid down by state police and city and county officers for one of two men who escaped from the county jail here early yesterday after shooting and wounding Sheriff H. H. Jefferson, today had failed to trap the fugitive.

Owen Taylor, 23, was the escaper. Taylor and his brother, Harold, 25, were arrested about eight weeks ago, in connection with a series of robberies in this vicinity. The brother believed to have been the man who wounded Jefferson, was captured by a posse.

Jefferson surprised the pair in the sheriff's home. He was shot in the left hand. The sheriff answered the fire with a shotgun and believes Owen Taylor was wounded.

Young and old can eat just as much Velveeta as they like—cooked, sliced or spread for sandwiches

*Digestible as milk itself!

Now this new cheese treat

So wholesome everyone can eat it freely

SMILES of delight, after the first taste! New tempting cheese flavor . . . new creamy goodness.

Velveeta is its name—this delicious new cheese food created and patented by Kraft-Phenix. It's just as good for you as it is good . . . so easy to digest!

Every bit of the health-giving properties of rich pure milk is there. Milk sugar, calcium, phosphorus and the other valuable minerals lost in the usual cheese making.

All the added benefits of these vital, health-giving qualities, coupled with perfect digestibility and rare, mellow flavor!

Velveeta is a cheese food for many uses. As a spread, it's smooth and easy as butter. For slicing you've only to chill. It lends enchantment to any recipe calling for cheese, because it blends so happily. The way it toasts brings joy to your heart.

Let a half pound package of Velveeta head your market list today. Your grocer has it.

A distinguished authority says this of Velveeta

"Every element of the original milk is in Velveeta. As a food, it is more complete than ordinary cheese and as complete as milk. All the milk sugar, calcium, phosphorus and other milk minerals are retained. So too are the Vitamins A, B, C and D. Velveeta meets a real nutritional need. Containing proteins other than casein it is exceptionally easy to digest. Children can eat it freely as soon as they can handle food."

EIGHTY-FIFTH ANNUAL STATEMENT

To the Policy-holders:

I wonder if you know how important you with other Policy-holders have collectively become in the economic life of the world. You think of your life insurance as an important factor in your plans for yourself and your families but I doubt whether you yet comprehend what you are actually doing for the world at large.

I am speaking to you now as a part of the 70,000,000 people insured in all companies in the United States and Canada. I am speaking to you as part owner of the $19,000,000,000 which has actually been assembled for the protection of beneficiaries under the $110,000,000,000 of coverage which now exists. Never before in the history of the world have individuals voluntarily, privately and co-operatively pledged such a sum for mutual protection or for any purpose.

This coverage exceeds the total resources of all the banks in the United States and Canada, including savings banks, by about $34,000,000,000. It is equal to all the resources of all our Foundations and Endowments for Education and Research, multiplied many times. Our educational, medical, scientific and charitable institutions are in the hands of trustees whose powers are wisely limited by the terms of the instruments on which the trusts rest. The Trustees of these foundations seldom have any very wide discretion as to how funds under their control shall be distributed. Neither have we.

Outstanding life insurance ($110,000,000,000) is the greatest trust ever created. It, too, is managed by Trustees. The Trustees are the Directors of the various companies with whom continuously sit certain familiar figures. They are Life, Death, Disability, Necessity and Old Age.

Death has heretofore been a terrible figure because life was not organized against him. Now life is so organized. Death will ultimately come to all of us. Nobody doubts that and nobody can change it. The terror of Death (I am not now considering any religious question) lies in his cruel, remorseless and uncertain stroke. In that has been his victory.

Life Insurance faces Death not as a Terror but as a fact, and deals with him just as it deals with bonds or real estate mortgages.

Let me show you how vital those $110,000,000,000 are. Back of these pledged billions lie three great forces.

First—the $19,000,000,000 in cash and securities in hand;

Second—the seventy million people who have contracted, directly or indirectly, to pay future premiums;

Third—the power of compound interest.

Together they make that $110,000,000,000 the most vital and useful force in all sociology.

Now try to visualize what is coming. Outstanding Insurance will become $200,000,000,000, $300,000,000,000, possibly much more, but it will always have those three great forces, the first two correspondingly increased, behind it. Because of its peculiar relation to the weaknesses and needs of human life it is and always will be worth more than a like sum in cash. To illustrate—

Death sits with this great Board of Trustees and Death still strikes but, in your case, not as of old. Life also sits with the Board and by quickly translating individual productive power into cash it despoils Death of his old and faithful servitor, Poverty.

Disability, crueler than Death, also sits with that Board and demands and receives stipulated sums when the bread winner fails and becomes a burden.

Necessity and Old Age also sit with that Board and are covered by the underlying instruments.

All these benefits are specified in the Great Deed of Trust: the policies in force.

Some of you, most I hope, will agree when I say that Life Insurance has come to be the most important beneficial enterprise in the manifold problems of living.

My main point is that you, beginning with your individual needs and obligations, have not only minimized the terrors of Death, Disability and Old Age, but you have come, as a group, to be one of the largest holders of useful securities in the world.

You are the only group that ever existed having the courage and sanity in the current problems of living to rob Death of his terrors by dealing with him as an ultimate fact.

As a group you are not capitalists, yet you have become the greatest of capitalists.

Following your impulse of self-protection you have created the greatest of all beneficial institutions.

Seeking to banish the need of charity from your own household, you have shown how the need of charity may be completely banished from every household.

Merkle Plays Up Again. Hofman Starts Debate. Similar Incident Here.

Novel Cue Test Killed. Arc-Lamp Track Meet. All-Buffalo Title Fight.

RECORDS UPHOLD PULLIAM'S RULINGS.

WHEN Artie Hofman, former Cub and Pirate outfielder, recently awoke from a slumber that beat Rip Van Winkle's by a whole year, asserting that the famous Merkle play on September 23, 1908, had been scored incorrectly and that Harry Steinfeldt instead of Johnny Evers should have received credit for the put-out that cost the Giants a pennant, he set New York critics and fans to discussing the incident all over again. They've been writing newspaper articles and letters by the dozen, some corroborating Hofman's belated version and others insisting that his memory is faulty.

Hank O'Day

In the revival of a discussion that first put the baseball world in an uproar more than 21 seasons ago, several of the writers say they have a hazy recollection of a similar play in Pittsburgh only a short time before Merkle pulled his costly blunder in failing to touch second base. It is also recalled that the same umpire, Hank O'Day, officiated, and in this connection it is charged that the late Harry C. Pulliam, then president of the National League, was inconsistent in allowing a protested Pirate victory over the Cubs to stand but throwing out what should have been a win for New York.

VETERAN Pittsburgh fans will readily recall the local game in question by reason of the hubbub it raised at the time. It was played at old Exposition Park on September 4, 1908. Vic Willis and Three-Fingered Brown pitched nine scoreless innings in a slab duel and Willis had blanked the Cubs again in the tenth.

Fred Clarke opened Pittsburgh's half of the tenth with a single and was sacrificed to second by Tommy Leach. Clarke was held at third by Charley Starr coaching when Honus Wagner got a single on a hard grounder to Evers, and Honus ran to second on Johnny's wide throw to the plate. Warren Gill, Pirate first sacker, was hit with a pitched ball, filling the corners, and Ed Abattichio fanned for the second out.

CHIEF WILSON, popular Bucs rightfielder in those days and whose total of 36 three-baggers in 1912 still stands as the record for both major leagues in a single season, then strode to the plate and cracked a clean single to right, on which Clarke romped home with the winning run. The Pirates made a break for the club house and hundreds of fans swarmed upon the field to pay homage to Wilson.

During the excitement Evers called for the ball, touched second base and asked for a force-out on Gill on the ground that the latter had not run to second. If the out had been allowed the side would have been retired, Clarke's run would not have counted, and the game would still have stood as a scoreless tie.

Chief Wilson

UMPIRE O'DAY, however, refused to call the out demanded by Evers. The Cubs sent a protest to league headquarters, but it was disallowed. Nineteen days later the Browns pulled the same play on Merkle and the Giants in New York, and this time their protest was upheld and the game declared a tie instead of a victory for the McGrawites. But President Pulliam was not inconsistent, as is now being charged. The explanation is that in the Pittsburgh case, O'Day reported that he had turned his back to the diamond and had not seen whether Gill touched second or not, whereas in New York he not only saw the play but called the out and so reported. President Pulliam could not allow a play the umpire had not seen, neither could he do otherwise than uphold the arbiter in a decision actually made that involved only a question of judgment.

MERKLE never lived down the derisive term of "bonehead" but as a matter of fact, in similar situations many other players besides Gill and the Giant first baseman previously were guilty of the same oversight getting away with it only because until the brainy Evers and the other wide-awake Cub champions came along their opponents were not smart enough to see the opening or the chance to make a run-scoring play on it.

The Cubs had the play all doped out and were waiting for a chance to spring it when Gill, a green recruit purchased from Oklahoma City and farmed to Grand Rapids for a short time, gave them their first opportunity. It was only from that angle that Merkle was more open to criticism than numerous others who committed the same blunder. That is, the Pittsburgh play only 19 days earlier should have opened his eyes to the common error, particularly as he was dealing with the same opponents and the same umpire.

HARRY SWACINA, who was tried at first base by the Pirates in the latter part of 1907 and the first stages of the 1908 season, has turned to umpiring and will work the spring exhibition games for the Mobile clubs of the Southern Association.

George Sutton

Another old player well known in these parts who is planning a shift to a new role in the South is Wilbur Good, former Leetsdale citizen, who began his career at Johnstown in 1904. Good is dickering for the purchase of the Macon club in the Sally League, which he formerly managed, and figures on being both president and manager.

THE calling-off of the proposed national 18.2 balkline billiard tournament, arranged for this month in St. Louis when the world championship round robin fell through, deprived cue fans of a chance to see whether the veteran George Butler Sutton could come back with a sufficient degree of success to cope creditably with the leading players of the present day. Sutton, who won the 18.2 championship more than a decade ago, has passed the 66-year mark, but recently he shaved off his fancy goatee and flowing mustache and declared himself again a contender for the title. He was an entrant for the St. Louis tourney, but the cancellation of the affair killed an opportunity for an interesting comparison of one of the best products of the old school of billiards with the topnotchers of the modern game.

PLANS for the night relay track carnival to be held under the auspices of New Castle Senior High School the latter part of May are being made on a broad scale by Ralph H. Gardner, faculty manager of the department of athletics. All of the high schools in the Western Pennsylvania district have been invited and it is estimated that from 50 to 75 will participate.

The school's field is well adapted to the proposed night track meets, as flood lights were installed last fall for football. There are concrete stands seating 5,600 and additional knock-down bleachers that will take care of 4,500, providing a total seating capacity of 11,100. The lighting system is such that the quarter-mile track and the seats are brilliantly illuminated.

THOUGH the meet proper will be open to senior and junior high schools only, Manager Gardner says he will gladly feature a college relay race if he finds it posible to do so. W. S. Haddock and Joe Wagman have agreed to act as referee and clerk of course, respectively, and Elmer Layden will be starter.

"Track sport is a great thing," says Manager Gardner. An al-

DETROIT GETS SEVEN TALLIES IN ONE FRAME

DETROIT, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The Detroit Cougars routed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 8 to 1, in a National Hockey League game here last night and made a scoring record by piling up seven of their goals in one period.

After two periods of ragged playing, at the end of which the score stood 1-all, the Cougars turned loose an unbeatable offense, crumbling the Pirate line for seven goals. Three of them by Herbie Lewis. Cougar wingman. Lewis previously scored a goal early in the first period.

Gordon Fraser, former Cougar player, scored the only Pittsburgh goal late in the first period. The lineup:

Pittsburgh		Detroit
Kerr	G	Mitchell
Shields	D	Hollett
Connell	D	Aurie
Morrison	F	Lewis
Darragh	F	Starr
Fraser	F	Hergesheimer

Referee—Hayes. Umpires—Hart and Hitchen.

TOMORROW—THE WATERFALL THAT FALLS UP.

RODGERS 10-6 FAVORITE TO WIN

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

A full week of interesting boxing shows in the Pittsburgh district gets under way tonight with the staging of the Benny Schwartz-Jackie Rodgers show at Motor Square Garden. This show, incidentally, has taken a grip on the fans and the club predicts that it will draw almost as heavily as the Bergt-Sammy Baker-Joe Tripp return battle in the same ring a week ago.

Shows also are carded tonight

Jackie Rodgers Benny Schwartz

at Washington, Pa., and the New Castle Jolly Bowl, as well as at Wheeling, W. Va. Hans Roberts and Young Joe Walcott box the main bout at Little Washington, with John Patrick Dougherty and Harry Spencer, middleweights, meeting in the eight-round semi-final. Babe Ruth, of Louisville, and Tommy Marcon, of Kansas City, box the main bout at New Castle, and Young Rudy, of Charleroi, meets Jackie Herman, of Wheeling, and Jimmy Thomas, local bantamweight, opposes Rose Fields, of Wierton, W. Va., in the feature battles at Wheeling.

Eddie Brannon, local lightweight, boxes the veteran Frankie Stellmack, of Cleveland, in the main event of eight rounds at East Liverpool, O., tomorrow night.

MAYBERRY BOXES DUNN

On Wednesday night Howard Mayberry, of Donora, and Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, battle in the windup at the Moose Temple, and, on Thursday, Billy Jones, of this city, meets Frank Florian, of Cleveland, at McKeesport, and Willie Davies, of Charleroi, boxes Vito Mazzeo, of Cleveland, at Junction Park, New Brighton.

Amateur shows are carded by the Pastorious A. C. in Lithuanian Hall, McKees Rocks, tonight, the Pittsburgh Lyceum tomorrow night and at Springdale, the Braddock Library and St. Vincent's College, Latrobe, Pa., Wednesday night. A smoker is being held for the St. Vincent students and the bouts will be one of the features.

ROGERS MADE FAVORITE

Despite the fact that he lost the decision to Schwartz in their first meeting at the Bridgeville Speedway last summer, Rodgers has been installed a 10-to-6 favorite to beat Benny in their return duel at the Garden tonight. Benny's boxing wizardry dazzled Rodgers in their first go. Twice in the bout Rodgers caught up with the fast-moving Schwartz and sent him to the floor, but each time Benny jumped up to resume the offensive. At the finish, Schwartz had handed Rodgers a neat boxing lesson. However, the Rodgers of today is a much improved ringman over the Jackie that Benny

ENS GETS SET TO LEAVE FOR PASO ROBLES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Departure of his first squad being set for one week from tomorrow night, Manager Jewel Ens of the Pirates, today was adhering to his plans as closely as possible, despite the status of Pitcher Burleigh Grimes, who has joined the holdout class.

Jewel Ens.

The holdout brigade, by the way, has taken on pretentious proportions in the past few days. The Pirates have at least Grimes on their hands while the Phillies are apt to start their training with several stars missing. Chuck Klein, Frank O'Doul and Pinkey Whitney, three big luminaries in the 1929 race, are not satisfied with their contracts. All three may be missing when the training bell rings.

GRIMES AT HOME

Grimes has returned to his Minerva residence after his short stay in Pittsburgh. The famed spitballer and his employers are far apart on the salary question and there is no assurance that the gap can be bridged before the advance party leaves.

Burleigh was slated to go with the batterymen, but if he is not signed he will not be permitted by baseball law to be a member of the party. The diamond rulers have decreed that players must be signed before they can partake of official training.

A sum believed to be in the neighborhood of $5,000 stands between the star pitcher and the owners of the team.

HIGH-SALARIED MAN

Burleigh is one of the highest-salaried players in the National League now, but he demands a substantial raise in his new contract. Both sides have put forth "our very best figures" and there the matter stands.

There seems to be an undercurrent of feeling to the effect that the two sides will get together again when both will make concessions looking toward a settlement.

Five Horses Left At Post, French Crowd Riots

VINCENNES, France, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Enraged because five horses were left at the post in the first trotting race on the program here yesterday, an immense crowd burned the parimutuels barracks, wrecked the grand stands, raided the bars and continued rioting until assured that entrance money and all bets would be refunded. Many were injured.

LOYOLA DEFEAT OVERSHADOWS PITT VICTORY

By JESS CARVER

You've heard the story of the tortoise catching the hare! Well, if you want to hear a new one, here's one about the hare catching the tortoise, when said tortoise should never have been caught!

In other words, it was because Loyola University of Chicago's basketball varsity, that highly-touted outfit that won 34 ball games in a row before being halted, used such a slow and deliberate defense that the Dukes beat 'em here Saturday night. Duquesne deserved the victory because they exhibited an admirable defense. It was a hard defense to crack, and Loyola wasn't up to cracking it. But, had the Chicago Irish mixed some speed with their plays and their accurate passing and expert handling of the ball, they'd have taken Duquesne.

Chick Davies

At any rate, the locals are about the most talked of team in the country today. They knocked off a ball club that the best quintets of the Middle West tried for two years to beat, without success. Purdue finally accomplished the feat a week ago, and the Dukes repeated the dose Saturday night. The victory is a tribute to Chick Davies' coaching, his perfection of a defense for Loyola's style of attack and his ability to keep his club in there fighting until the final gun, bringing the victory.

PITT DROPS IRISH

Duquesne's victory over Loyola outranked Pitt's second win of the season over Notre Dame. The Irish didn't look like much of a club when Pitt kicked 'em around here a few weeks ago, and they must not have been much better on their own court Saturday night. As was the case when they played here, their attack went floosie in the second half, a measly five points being credited to them. You can't win ball games that way.

I imagine Mr. Keegan, the Irish coach, spent a miserable day yesterday. He hates to drop two in one year to any team, and that goes double for Pitt.

Carnegie Tech found the path to victory as bestrewn with obstacles as ever, and lost another one, this time to Thiel. These Lutherans, under the clever tutelage of Paul Benson, have been the thorn in the side of more than one opponent this year, and added Tech to the list graced by Grove City, of teams that have been taken into camp.

What Tech will probably do now is to rise to the occasion and bump off both Wash.-Jeff and Penn State this week, thereby scrambling the tri-state situation to a point where it will be next to impossible to straighten out.

GENEVA AT WAYNESBURG

Be that as it may (and it undoubtedly is), it is up to Geneva and Waynesburg to open the week's activity by squaring off at Waynesburg in a Conference tussle this evening. Beaten thrice by Westminster twice and the Dukes, the Covenanters are all but out of the championship running, but they may be counted upon to stick in there till the very last. You never can tell when these high and mighty clubs are going to take a flop.

A win over the Yellow Jackets would boost the stock of the Loeffler men to a .500 basis, while if the Jacketa can cop the verdict, they will have won their first triumph

Sport Vignettes

Today's Vignettes column is devoted to one J. F. Mullaney, of Martins Ferry, O., a well-known sportsman, who has some stories to tell. . . . The first concerns one Dick Padden, former Pittsburgh second baseman and former resident of Martins Ferry. He was captain of Charley Comiskey's first pennant winner in Chicago, in 1900. . . . Some of the old Pittsburghers on this team were Fred Hartman, Frank Schibeck and Shugart. . . . Schibeck was playing short and was taken sick before a Sunday game in Detroit and Charley O'Leary, now coach of the New York Yankees, then a promising semi-pro player around Chicago, was sent in to play the position. . . . Realizing that the Detroit fans would "ride" O'Leary, Padden tried to get them on himself instead. . . . Things went along nicely for a few innings until a leather-lunged fan bawled out: "Hey, Dick, is that guy O'Leary the son of Mrs. O'Leary, whose cow kicked over that lamp that burned up Chicago?" . . . That was the finish of Charley. He started to boot 'em and had to be taken out. . . . Back in 1910, Mullaney was sitting in the Manley Hotel at Fairmont, W. Va., when Patsy Donovan, former Pittsburgh manager, blew in. . . . He was scouting for Brooklyn and wanted a line on Abe Kruger, a righthanded pitcher of the Uniontown club, who was burning up the league. . . . Mullaney told Patsy the pitcher was a great prospect, but liked his beer. . . . Patsy bought him for immediate delivery. . . . Then, with everybody in the coal country scanning the papers for Kruger's debut in the big show, he didn't get around to reporting in Brooklyn for 10 days. . . . The following winter Mullaney asked Abe about the delay. . . . "Well, you see, Mull," was the reply, "I started for Brooklyn every day, but there were so many saloons along the line that I always had to start over again." . . . Mullaney was up at West Point recently and brings back good reports on Cy Letzeiter, former Carnegie Tech halfback. . . . Cy is up in all of his studies and playing on the Plebe basketball team and they're counting on him for football next fall. . . . An end who was on the Army Plebe team last fall, by the name of King, has caught Mullaney's eye and he predicts the kid will be an all-America star his first year on the varsity. . . . He is a six-footer, weighs 190 pounds, and, according to Mullaney, is a wonder.—HARRY KECK.

PURDUE HEADED FOR BIG TEN FLOOR CROWN

PENN LEADS EASTERN LOOP TITLE RACE

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Coach Ward Lambert and his Purdue basketball team are well on their way toward accomplishing their share in the Boilermakers' greatest year in Big Ten athletics.

With the Western Conference football championship its first in the history of the organization as a starter, Purdue apparently is headed for the Big Ten basketball title. Led by Charles (Stretch) Murphy and Glen Harmeson, co-captains of the team, Purdue has built up a record of four straight victories to remain at the top of the heap.

Illinois, the puzzle team of the Conference, which started last week in pursuit of a share of second place, finally wound up in a tie for fourth position with Indiana and Northwestern. The Illini managed to nip Chicago, 28 to 25, but flattened out and dropped a 26 to 21 decision to Minnesota Saturday night.

Wisconsin and Michigan were idle all week, the former retaining possession of second place with four victories and one defeat while the Wolverines, through Illinois' downfall, were moved into third place. Northwestern also was idle and was forced to share fourth position with Indiana and Illinois.

Minnesota, emerged from the cellar a week ago by scoring its initial victory over Ohio State and adding Illinois to its short list of victims Saturday night. Ohio State dropped two games during the week, both to Hoosier basketball. Purdue started the week with the big victory Monday night and Indiana finished it up Saturday night. Chicago remained in the no-victory class, losing its only contest of the week to Purdue.

PENN BACK IN LEAD

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's Quakers were back in the pace-setting position of the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League today, but trouble looms from the New York sector, where Columbia is making gestures toward its first league championship since 1926.

A thrilling overtime victory over Cornell at Ithaca Saturday, 37 to 34, enabled Penn to regain undisputed position of the lead with three victories in as many starts. Columbia, beating Dartmouth in its only start of the past week, holds two triumphs against no league defeats. The two leaders meet in a "crucial" game here Wednesday night.

Dartmouth moved up to a tie with Princeton for third place by trimming Yale, 39 to 35, in another spectacular battle at Hanover, N. H. The defeat dropped Yale into the cellar with four losses and one win. Cornell is just ahead of the Elis with one victory in four starts.

High scoring honors for the week went to Lewis, of Cornell, who tallied 18 points against Penn.

W. Va. To Battle Detroit At Night

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 10.—Night football is to be indulged in by West Virginia next fall after all, Director Harry A. Stansbury has announced. He revealed that the game with the University of Detroit will be played at Detroit on Friday night, October 17, instead of Saturday, October 18. No previous West Virginia team has indulged in night football, although considerable of the Mountaineers' practice sessions are held under flood light conditions late in the season.

Director Stansbury announced that the Mountaineers will modify their lighting system in the stadium here for practice purposes, and thus get accustomed, in a measure, to the new system. No games will be played here at night, however.

Los Angeles Loyola Signs Tom Lieb

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—The athletic board of Loyola University here announced that Tom Lieb, former assistant football coach at Notre Dame, has signed a three-year contract to coach Loyola's gridsters.

Slattery and Scozza, Buffalo rivals, box over the 15-round route for the world light-heavyweight championship at Buffalo tonight. The title involved was discarded by Loughran when he entered the heavyweight ranks last year.

JIM SLATTERY FAVORED OVER LOU SCOZZA

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Two Buffalo boys, Jimmy Slattery and Lou Scozza, hold the center of the fistic stage this week. They meet at Buffalo tonight in a bout which will decide the world light-heavyweight championship so far as the New York State Athletic Commission is concerned. The bout is over the championship distance of 15 rounds.

Slattery, a master boxer, rules a slight favorite over Scozza, a rough and ready customer, who wears his opponents down with body punches. The distance favors Scozza, for there is considerable doubt whether Slattery can maintain his speed for so long a battle.

The state commission, in ruling that the bout was for the championship, relinquished by Tommy Loughran, added a condition that the winner must meet Maxie Rosenbloom, Harlem clown, within 60 days with the title at stake.

KANSAS CITY VICTOR

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—The Mother Chapter, of the Order of DeMolay, of Kansas City, with a score of 2,814, won the first prize in the first International DeMolay telegraphic bowling tournament held Saturday. It was announced by National Headquarters of the Order here last night.

Miss Fountain Pays $685 for $2 At Havana

HAVANA, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Miss Fountain won the first race at Havana yesterday and came close to establishing a new record for long odds in the pari-mutuel machines. The winner paid $685.60 for a $2 investment to win, $72.80 to place and $20.60 to show.

The betting commissioners, however, handling the bulk of the wagering at Havana, quoted Miss Fountain at odds of only 20 to 1.

The Great Shires Buys Gaudy Trunk

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Charles Arthur (The Great) Shires has not yet signed a contract to return to first-basing for the Chicago White Sox, but his new trunk indicates he intends doing so.

The new trunk—a special job—is about as modest as the great one himself. It is painted bright red and green, with little white stockings scattered around in whatever space remained after inscribing his name on all sides in nice big letters.

COLUMBIA GETS NEW SLATE OF GRID COACHES

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Head Football Coach Lou Little of Columbia University has announced a complete new slate of assistant coaches for the 1930 season. They are:

Baraheid Arthur Sampson of Boston, head coach at Tufts for the last three years.

Assistant backfield coach Herbert Kopf of Washington U., who was an assistant coach to Little at Georgetown University for five years.

Line coach Samuel Cordovan of Buffalo, tackle and guard of the last three Georgetown teams.

Head freshman coach Ralph Furey, Brooklyn, captain and end of the Columbia team of 1927.

Freshman backfield coach George Meiale, head freshman coach at Georgetown last year and quarterback of the Georgetown teams of 1926-27.

Freshman line coach Paul Liston, guard and tackle on the 1929 Georgetown team.

Open Tennis Up Before U. S. L. T. A.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—One of the most radical proposals in the history of tennis confronts the United States Lawn Tennis Association when it convenes in St. Louis Saturday to approve or disapprove open championship tournaments.

The proposal to sanction an open championship, as in golf, overshadows the other problems facing the tennis solons at their forty-ninth annual meeting. The adoption of the 1929 rankings is not expected to disclose any radical changes from those of the preceding list. Louis B. Dailey, of New York City, is slated to succeed Joseph W. Wear, of Philadelphia, as president.

PIRATE HOCKEY GAME SHIFTED

The Pittsburgh-Toronto National Hockey League game scheduled to be played here on February 20 has been transferred from Duquesne Garden to Toronto, according to a communication from Manager Frank Frederickson today.

The Bucs are carded to appear in Ottawa on February 18, and they will dispose of the joust with the Leafs before returning to Pittsburgh, to meet the Montreal Maroons on Saturday, February 22.

The Pirates played in Detroit last night, and the schedule juggling will necessitate their appearing in Fort Erie, New York, Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto before returning home.

Navy Log Reviews Break With Army

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 10.—(INS.)—The Naval Academy's log on the break in athletic relations with West Point, several thousand words long, is being sent today to every member of the Navy Athletic Association.

It was prepared by Comdr. J. H. Ingram, Navy coach, and gives a chronological summary of the controversy over the 3-year eligibility rule which was invoked by the Navy and caused its refusal to meet West Point on the gridiron three years ago.

Allison Captures San Antonio Event

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Wilmer Allison, Davis cup team player, tightened up in the fifth set of his match with Berkley Bell, Austin, Tex., tennis star, yesterday and won five straight games to take the match and the singles championship in the San Antonio County Club's first annual invitation tennis tournament by the score of 6-3, 0-6, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3.

RODGERS 10-6 FAVORITE

fought before, and his record of knockout victories in each of his last six bouts is the basis for the betting odds. It is generally conceded that he will have to knock out the tricky and elusive Schwartz, or come close to doing it, to win, so that the general expectation is that Rodgers will be in there punching away from the opening gong to get over a finishing wallop.

Between Rounds

Jimmy Slattery will have to be back in the best shape to avoid defeat in his 15-round battle for the vacant light-heavyweight championship at Buffalo tonight. For his opponent and fellow townsman, Lou Scozza, is a tough hombre to take. Lou not only is a good boxer but a hard hitter as well and state has lost much of his youthful sprightliness.

Ray Peralta, East Lynnwood (O.) pugilist is trying to sign Hans Schartz, local welterweight, for an eight-round window with Ted Yatsos at his club, February 25.

Six bouts make up the amateur card of the Pastorious A. C. in Lithuanian Hall, McKees Rocks, tonight. Beanie Kraft, heavyweight, will be one of the principals in the main bout, and Frank (Red) Gray, pal, brother of Al, will referee. The other bouts: Joe Kuperman vs. Craig; Amato, Johnny Leonard vs. Stanley Cifer; Tavis Compton vs. Tom Kane; Joe Belvedere vs. Max Elling and Young Pace vs. Sid Lavon.

The newly formed partnership between Jimmie (Red) Mason and Johnny Deutsch makes Harry Williams and Jack Wells, heavyweight rivals, who meet in the eight-round semi-final at Motor Boosts Garden tonight, stablemates. That's a funny combination, but is not likely to make them strive any the less for supremacy.

Joey Ratkish and Johnny Haggerty, both of Lawrenceville, meet in the second bout at the Garden tonight and Andy Andrucci, of the East End, and Frankie Portland, of Ambridge, in the opening bout.

Al Brown, New York Negro star, holder of the world bantamweight championship, retained his title by winning on a foul over Johnny Erickson in the fourth round of their scheduled 15-round bout in New York Saturday night. Brown was winning all of the way up to the time of the low blow.

BOWEN, MOORE ON STAR TEAM

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—College athletes monopolize the honors for all running events up to 1,000 yards on the annual all-America track and field team announced yesterday by Daniel J. If Handmade Remember!

Spit is a horrid word,

but it is worse on the end of your cigar

. . . the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency . . . join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

Thousands of men who would gladly trounce a spitter caught in the act continue, nevertheless, to accept cigars rolled by dirty fingers and tipped with spit! And remember more than half of all cigars made in this country are made by hand, and therefore subject to the risk of spit!

Certified Cremo protects you against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods developed by the United States Government during the war. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Your physician has in mind a cigar like Certified Cremo when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

Crush-proof...immaculate...foil-wrapped... Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly was thinking of when he said: "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

This meeting held in the club rooms of the Hotel Pitts burgher Saturday evening did much to clear the air of some of the recited charges and other matters being gossiped about.

The Herons outfit ably fought its way through Johnny Savage who was to be one of the smartest [illegible] soccer officials who has stepped into the limelight this season. Secretary McEwan made [illegible] that Frank Darkus was the accidental victim of a manager's conference. The game was won, Thoms Run 1 to 0 will be replayed Sunday afternoon.

GALLATIN'S VICTORY

Staging a [illegible] garrison finish [illegible] Gallatin eleven came [illegible] the assistance of the [illegible] League title by defeating the Corinthians 6 to 0 at Horning Field yesterday.

In it's recent cup tie victories in the West Penn and National amateur tourneys the upriver club staged its victory-rally late in the game. Seventy minutes had been played when Gallatin found itself with only one goal scored and its own citadel having some narrow escapes. This seemed to awaken Sickles and his mates to a sense of their responsibilities and with a whirlwind finish four goals were flashed into the Corinthians' net in 17 minutes.

The presence of the West Penn champions brought out the best crowd of the season to Horning Field, and the Corinthians gave the upriver cracks plenty to worry over in the initial period. Little Grilli garnered the only marker, smashing the ball from a scrimmage in front of Thompson into the net. Then Paterlini had a chance to help the Gallatin cause by means of a penalty kick but this chance was wasted.

SCHANG GOOD ON DEFENSE

Schang was playing a great defensive game and it seemed for a time as if the Curry boys were going to run up the score. Their passes at times baffled the visitors' defense but they must have flashed into the minds of the Sickles attack and Thompson had the mortification of picking the ball out of the net four times in quick succession.

The victory practically gives the upriver club the title. Rosa Sickles and Paterlini played bang-up soccer and held the Corinthian front line in check throughout.

In other soccer contests played yesterday, the Horning Rovers and Kramers played to a 2-2 deadlock. Cecil and Thoms Run battled to a 3-all tie, Cuddy Eagles downed Bower Hill, 2 to 1 and Harwick nosed out German Sport Club, 2 to 1. The lineups:

MID-ATLANTIC OPENS MAY 9

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 10 (AP.)—Representatives of clubs in the Mid-Atlantic Baseball League meeting here yesterday rejected a tentative schedule for the coming year. It was decided however that the season will open May 9.

The league officials also approved the substitution of another make of ball for the coming season for the type used last year.

The schedule committee of the league, it was announced after the meeting, will meet here Wednesday to re-draft the season's schedule. A full meeting of the league will be held February 23 to adopt the schedule and to conclude arrangements for opening the season.

It was not announced what caused rejection of the tentative schedule offered.

most unlimited number of boys can take part and it has so many events that lads who are not qualified physically for football or basketball often make outstanding track performers. A good meet, properly conducted is tremendously interesting. Any one who has not seen three or four boys coming down the stretch on even terms and fighting it out to the tape has missed a real thrill.

Elmer Layden

NOT often are both principals in a championship fight resident of the same city in which the contest takes place, but that will be the case when Jimmy Slattery and Lou Scozza come together in a 15-round bout at Buffalo tonight for the light-heavyweight crown that has been on the shelf gathering dust since Tommy Loughran entered the heavyweight division. Slattery resides on the South Side of Buffalo and Scozza makes his home on the West Side, so the town is certain to get the championship no matter which way the decision goes. Though unsuccessful in his futic efforts elsewhere, Slattery has been almost invincible in Buffalo rings, and if he runs true to form his speed and cleverness may give him an edge tonight if the bout lasts the limit, but victory for him is by no means assured. Practically every good man of the rugged type whom Jimmy has met has succeeded in battering him down, and in Scozza he will meet a most dangerous foe. Always a good puncher, Lou is said to have improved greatly in boxing ability, and if he can slow Slattery down with some solid hitting after the early rounds he will have a good chance to win through his greater walloping power.

The Knights of Columbus basketball team of New Kensington will stage one of its best attractions of the season when it meets the Duquesne Lafayettes, champions of the Allegheny County League, on the New Kensington High school floor Wednesday evening. The Kaceys are enjoying a big season, being one of the best independent teams in this section.

SHARKEY BOXES CAMPOLO

MIAMI BEACH, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Jack Sharkey was to get a real workout today in preparation for his bout here February 27 against Phil Scott, English heavyweight. He is scheduled to take on Vittorio Campolo, the Argentinian who boxes Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, on the same card.

Campolo's acceptance of an offer to use Sharkey's training camp at the Miami Beach Kennel Club, while waiting for the completing of his own camp at Coral Gables, was a life-saver for the Boston boxer, as he is extremely short of sparring mates. George Cook forsook him and Johnny Gross is suffering from sore ribs.

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, has sent urgent wires to New York and Boston for big sparring mates to test the Boston boy's blows.

Moise Bouqillon, of France, and Jimmy Maloney, Boston fat boy, will also work out today at the Sharkey camp, as will also Pierre Charles, the imported boxer who meets Tommy Loughran, but they will not spar with Sharkey.

While the Boston fighter was resting Sunday, Scott extended his boxing to six rounds, but omitted road work, indicating he had little surplus weight to drop. Dominick Patta and Jack DeMave worked with the Englishman. DeMave furnishing him with two fast rounds. He also boxed mildly with Bill Middlekauf.

Phil's left was working well and all three sparring mates suffered cuts on the lips.

Raoul Bianci, Argentine boxer, will join Scott's camp today.

GOPHERS NAME GRID COACHES

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Appointment of Fritz Crisler of the University of Chicago as head football coach at the University of Minnesota and Elton E. "Tad" Weiman as his first assistant was announced officially today by the board of regents.

Action of the regents was unanimous after they had listened to the recommendation of President Lotus D. Coffman. Crisler, assistant coach at Chicago, succeeds Dr. Clarence Spears, who resigned to become head coach at the University of Oregon.

Salaries to be paid Crisler and Wieman were not divulged. Dr. Coffman after a long discussion of the appointee's qualifications, said: "I think there has been too much vulgar display of salaries in the press now.

Pitcher Visotski Awarded to Giants

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(INS.)—Joseph Visotski, the pitcher over whom one major and three minor league clubs were in controversy, was awarded to the New York Giants through his Wilkes-Barre, Pa., contract, in a decision handed down by Judge Landis today.

The commissioner ruled that the claim of the Davenport, Ia., club had been voided and that therefore, Wilkes-Barre's sale of the pitcher to the New York Giants was valid. Davenport also had disposed of Vitoski, having sold him to the Jersey City club of the International League.

FINTEX MEETS LAFAYETTES TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN

The Duquesne Lafayettes champions of the Allegheny County League will be the attraction of th Fintex quintet in the only league battle arded tonight. The game originally scheduled at Duquesne University will be staged at Columbus Temple, marking the return of that popular hall as a basketball center.

USE TEMPLE FLOOR

Two clubs in the County League, the Fintex quintet and the J. J. Veronas, have made arrangements to finish their seasons on the Columbus Temple floor. The Veronas will stage their home games there on Tuesday nights, their first attraction being scheduled for tomorrow when the Elizabeth Independents are engaged in a league encounter.

Both the Lafayettes and Fintex teams have much at stake in tonight's contest inasmuch as a defeat for either club means virtual elimination from the second half of the County League fight. Both teams have added several new players to their roster. George Ramsay returning to the Lafayettes, while the Fintex management has obtained the services of Harry (Red) Sapira, Eddie Klein and Joie Drotar.

TWO IN CENTRAL

Two games are scheduled tonight in the Central Pittsburgh League, the Irene Kaufmann Settlement House playing at Canevin Club, while Trinity Cathedral appears at National Music.

In the Philadelphia Company League games at Fifth Avenue High School tonight, Duquesne Light plays at Pittsburgh Railways and Equitable Gas at Philadelphia Company.

The Commercial-Industrial League resumes operations tonight with Real Estate at Pittsburgh & Lake Erie and Potter, Title & Trust at Reick's.

A new team was formed with Letourner's partner, Paul Brocardo being teamed with Alfonso Zucchetti, Piemontasi's partner. Piemontasi was ruled out because of inability to ride the track.

W. & J. HOLDS OFF IN NAMING GRID COACH

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 10.—Wash-Jeff's athletic council last night declined at a meeting to name a head football coach for next season. A formal request from Bill Amos and Ray Ride, in joint control last season, that a head coach be named for next year, was not acted upon, members of the athletic governing body stating they desired a more complete survey of the unusual situation before taking action.

ASK SHOWDOWN

Ride and Amos, following their first year of gridiron tutoring on an equality basis, have found they cannot carry on with a division of authority. They have made it plain that personal friendship is responsible for their concerted request that a head coach be named to supplant the system of joint authority, which they insist has not proved satisfactory to them and which they fear may result in an open breach.

In their presentation to the athletic council the two coaches, who are given credit for producing a high grade team last season from "raw" material, made it plain that they were willing to carry on with one of them in supreme command, both apparently realizing that the council might dismiss both of them and engage someone else.

DISCUSS SITUATION

A representative of the "Gamboliers," the alumni athletic advisory body, met with the council and the situation was thoroughly discussed. It was learned that the present system of dual control was condemned as impossible, and it was agreed that a head coach should be named. It was also made known that the council did not consider the appointment of a new coach as head coach, but confined its deliberations to which of the two men already in control should be retained in the saddle as supreme football commander with the other in a secondary capacity.

Miss Ryan, Cochet Top Tilden, Partner

CANNES, France, Feb. 10.—(AP.)—Elizabeth Ryan, former Californian now living in England, and Henri Cochet, of France, defeated Big Bill Tilden and Fraulein Cecilie Aussem, of Germany, 12-10, 6-3, in the final of the mixed doubles of the Cannes tennis tournament. Both Cochet and Tilden played erratic tennis, the continued superiority of Miss Ryan over Fraulein Aussem giving her team the victory.

Wall Street Hears That Western Union Is Planning Split-Up

THE unexpected news that the Canadian Pacific Railway is to split its stock four for one caused a hurried search through the stock list for other issues that promise similar action. It is said on Wall street that the Western Union directors are discussing a split-up of the stock either on a four-for-one basis or five-for-one. The latter ratio is said to be favored. According to report the annual dividend on the split-up shares probably will be equal to $10 a share on the present stock as against $8 a share paid currently. The latter rate has been in effect since 1926. In the past the management of Western Union is said to have been opposed to a melon of any sort, but rumor has it that the rising price of the stock is likely to carry some weight in consideration of splitting.

The persistent weakness in Simmons Bed during the last few days puzzles traders who can find little excuse for it in the company's record over last year. According to Wall Street information, the Simmons Company completed in 1929 the most successful year in its history and new records were set in sales and earnings. The company's program of expansion was developed further and the basis was laid for additional possible gains in 1930. Sales for 1929 totaled $51,971,448, against $36,479,281 in 1928, an increase of 42.4 per cent. December sales gained 56½ per cent and November sales 60½ per cent. The gains were due partially to new acquisitions last fall, but a large part of the gain was in sales of Simmons Company proper. The annual report of the company to be made public about the middle of next month is expected to show cash and stock dividend requirements earned by a good margin.

THE Trans Lux Corporation reports that in spite of the October panic its movie ticker business has steadily increased. At the end of last October the corporation had 1,719 movie tickers in actual operations, at the end of November 1,730, at the end of December 1,741 and at the end of January 1,765.

There has been much comment regarding the abnormally heavy charges reflected in Pere Marquette's earnings for the final six months of last year. This was due to the policy of President Bernet of speeding up improvements and writing off all charges as soon as convenient. Naturally, in such periods, earnings will be low, but it is also true that when improvements have been completed charges will be reduced and earnings will mount as abruptly as they declined. In the long run this conservative policy works out to the benefit of the stock.

WHEN Otis Elevator new stock is listed, which is likely to be within a week or two, the shares will be available to those who were kept out of the old issue because of its high selling price. Trend toward higher buildings for apartments, hotels and offices, which is evident, not only in this country, but in leading cities in other large countries, should result in increased business for the company. In addition to new orders, repairs and renewals should mean steady business in the future. Unconfirmed reports in the past were that repairs and renewals were sufficient to pay the $8 a share dividend on the old stock.

Houses which have been accumulating Commercial Solvents maintain that although there was a slump in earnings in November and December, there was a substantial comeback in January and earnings for that month are likely to prove about equal with the first month of 1929. While the company often has been credited with doing the bulk of its business with the automobile industry, it is asserted that only slightly more than 25 per cent of the total comes from this branch. The work of broadening its facilities has been going on right along and the introduction of a number of new products should show some influence on the earnings in the current year.

Talkies Help Foreign Trade in Films

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE motion picture producers did the greatest export business in their history in 1929 and the talkies were largely responsible. This was good news for an industry whose leaders were somewhat dubious as to the effect of the new developments on foreign demand. The talkies also had the expected results of stimulating attendance in this country.

The gain in exports was accomplished in spite of the restrictions placed against American films in many European countries and the problems arising from supplying non-English speaking people now that the entire technique of production has undergone a change.

It is still possible that the American producers may lose ground in their foreign markets in the future but the results of 1929 put an exceptionally favorable light on the prospects of the film producers. The greatest revenues have always been secured in this country but the loss of foreign sales would have been a serious blow to the industry.

Sound Offsets Losses

THE desire of many foreign countries to build up their own producing organizations and the restrictions made against the exhibition of American pictures would have resulted in a pronounced loss in export sales had it not been for the talkies. While the exports to many of the continental European countries declined, shipments to England, Australia, New Zealand and other English speaking localities more than offset the losses.

N. D. Golden, assistant chief of the motion picture division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, recently stated that the wiring of foreign theaters was proceeding at such a pace that figures on the subject become out of date almost as soon as they are published. On December 31, 2,200 theaters outside of the United States and Canada were wired with sound devices. Of these about 1,500 were in Europe, 400 in the Far East, 250 in Latin America and 50 in other parts of the world.

Mr. Golden also stated that there is little danger of the industry encountering any more stringent restrictions against American films in the present year than they found in 1929. In France the exhibitors have sided with the American distributors in opposing further restrictions.

Exports Gain

PRELIMINARY figures show that in 1929, 282,215,480 feet of American films with a declared value of $7,622,316 were exported as compared with 222,622,316 feet valued at $6,473,990 during 1928. The increase of over 60,000,000 feet carried the total over the previous record of 273,000,000 in 1927.

The gain, in Mr. Golden's opinion, is primarily due to the growing popularity of sound and dialogue pictures together with the increased number of silent pictures sent abroad to supply houses which have not been wired. The gain in the shipments of silent pictures may be somewhat abnormal since some of it undoubtedly represents a desire on the part of American producers to market old silent pictures while the majority of theaters are still unwired.

The coming of sound pictures found the foreign producers technically behind the times. They were unable to make talkies and afraid to make large investments in silent pictures which might become obsolete before they had run through their natural life. This left the field open to American producers.

Gain in Latin American

IT is still difficult to measure the effect of the talkies on Latin American trade due to the small number of houses wired last year. Exports to our Southern neighbors showed a gain of 1,000,000 feet during 1929 to a total of 79,697,870 feet. As the demand for sound pictures grows in Latin America, producers are attempting to serve these markets with silent versions with sound effects and in some cases they are actually preparing to make Spanish dialogue pictures.

With two English-speaking countries in the Far East, Australia and New Zealand, exports of American motion pictures to this region increased over 8,000,000 feet during 1929 over 1928.

Popularity of sound motion pictures in these two English-speaking markets are primarily responsible for this increase.

Canada lent further support to the acceptance of the sound and dialogue motion picture in English-speaking countries by practically doubling her imports of American pictures during the year 1929. Africa, too, showed a substantial increase of nearly 2,000,000 feet during 1929 over her 1928 imports.

New Transamerica Officials Elected

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Elisha Walker was elected chairman of the board and of the executive committee of Transamerica Corporation. L. M. Giannini was elected vice-chairman of the board. A. P. Giannini becomes chairman of the advisory committee; P. C. Hale, vice president and James W. Bacigalupi was chosen vice-chairman of the advisory committee.

Lamont Hopeful On Business Outlook

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Secretary of Commerce Lamont said today there was nothing disturbing in the country's business outlook.

Employment conditions were improving, the future of the construction industry was hopeful and steel mills were operating 80 per cent, according to a survey just completed.

In making comparisons to last year Lamont said it should be recalled January and February of 1929 were exceptional months when records were being created in many lines.

Reports from Detroit, headquarters of the automobile industry, indicated conditions there were improving, he said.

According to his information, Russia is on a food-ration basis and is not expected to export wheat this year, he asserted.

Investment Bankers Open New Office

Singer, Deane & Scribner, Inc., investment bankers, announce the opening of an office in Ridgway, Pa., in charge of Albert G. Christy, who will ave the territory embraced in the north central part of the state. This is the fifth branch office, exclusive of New York City, opened by Singer, Deane & Scribner, Inc. The others are Uniontown, Greenville, Johnstown and Belle Vernon. The principal offices are in Pittsburgh.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Trading in railroad bonds featured the early dealings on today's market. Investment issues of seasoned types moved rather quietly, but displayed a distinctly firm undertone on moderate buying stimulated by the ease in money rates. Convertible carrier issues were actively higher in sympathy with the rise in rail stocks. United States governments were steady.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, odd omitted in sales column. United States bonds in dollars and their equivalents of dollars:

MARKET RISES, DROPS AND RALLIES

Stocks Alternately Blow Hot, Cold With Neither Side Having Advantage

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP.) — The stock market alternately blew hot and cold today with neither "bulls" nor "bears" able to gain any decided advantage. A rally of about an hour's duration was followed by a renewal of selling pressure against some of the recent speculative favorites, particularly in the merchandising and copper groups, but the general market stiffened again in the early afternoon when fresh buying operations developed in radio and some of the public utility shares.

One of the most interesting trade developments of the day was the publication of the monthly tonnage report by the United States Steel Corporation, showing a gain of 51,617 tons in unfilled orders. This was the fifth consecutive increase in bookings, although it was below some of the earlier estimates. United States Steel common, which sold as high as 183¾ during the morning, sold down to 181⅞ shortly after the figures were published.

REPORTS MIXED

The day's earnings reports were mixed in character. Gillette Safety razor reported a decline of about $2,750,000 in net income for 1929 due largely to readjustments necessary in connection with the introduction of the new razor. Jersey Central Railroad income for 1929 fell more than $1,000,000 below the previous year. United States Hoffman Machinery and Miller Company reported net profit of $19,864,374 from which $1,250,000 was deducted as a reserve for contingencies, which compares with $13,327,843 in the previous year with no deductions.

New Jersey Central and New York and Harlem each broke 10 points. J. I. Case, Johns Manville, American Tobacco B, Sears-Roebuck, Safeway Stores and Columbian Carbon sold down 3 to 4 points. Among the money stocks down 2 points or more were Montgomery Ward, American Water Works, American Can, Fox Film and Union Pacific.

RADIO IN DEMAND

Radio, which is believed to habor a large short interest, was heavily bought in the early afternoon, crossing 42 for a gain of more than 2 points. Columbia Graphophone advanced in sympathy, Auburn Auto jumped 13 points in light trading, and Brooklyn Union Gas, Eastman Kodak, Peoples Gas, Norfolk and Western, Western Union and Underwood Elliott Fisher sold 3 to 5 points higher.

Call money renewed unchanged at 4 per cent and was in plentiful supply, despite some calling of loans. The money rates held fairly steady, with business light.

Federal Farm Board Postpones Meeting

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Owing to the illness of Carl Williams, a member, the Federal Farm Board was unable to meet today to consider the feasability of setting up a stabilizing corporation to stabilize wheat prices. The board plans to take up the matter at a session tomorrow. In the meantime, members of the board are giving individual study to the proposed plan.

Atlantic Refining Nets $6.79 a Share

The Atlantic Refining Company and subsidiaries report profit for the year 1929 of $17,332,000. This compares with a profit of $16,849,000 for the year 1928. Both figures are after interest, depreciation, taxes, etc. After preferred dividends, earnings per share during year 1929 on average shares of common stock outstanding were $6.79 as compared with $7.72 for the year 1928.

Robinson Elected To Insurance Board

A. C. Robinson, president, eoples Savings and Trust Company, was elected to the board of directors of American Re-Insurance Company at the annual meeting.

Lake Erie Iron Ore Shipments Decline

Lake Erie iron ore shipments to interior furnaces during January totaled 289,339 tons, as against 383,703 tons in January, 1929.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Cotton opened barely steady today at a net advance of 6 to 11 points on a combination of the covering movement heretofore noted, fairly dear rally, while there was some foreign trade buying and commission house demand promoted by the fairly steady opening of Liverpool.

The advance met some further liquidation but it seemed to be quite readily absorbed with May selling up to 15.91 and October 16.06 or within 8 to 7 points of the best at the end of the first hour.

There was also realizing by recent buyers, but the market was steady and within 8 or 7 points of the best at the end of the third hour.

Liverpool cables said that covering and Bombay buying had been expected by trading in the market there and that Manchester reports was also to the effect that, only a small turnover in cotton goods.

The early advance extended to 15.87 for May and 16.12 for October, with active months generally showing net gains of about 11 points, different were fleeting while there was scattered trade buying as well as covering, but the volume of business tapered off late in the morning and the market at midday was quiet with prices showing fractions of 4 or 5 points from the best.

Irregularity Is Keynote; Hope Gains Ground

By B. C. FORBES

IRREGULARITY is the keynote in business, in employment, in trade, in stocks.

The undertone, however, is gradually becoming somewhat firmer.

THE two most important developments of last week were the severe setback declines in wheat and cotton and the introduction in the New York official rediscount rate and in Wall street money rates.

Speculation unquestionably is playing a part in depressing the commodity markets. It is hardly conceivable that the downward movement can be carried much further.

Spot cotton broke below 15 cents at New Orleans and at various other centers. This represents a loss of nearly three cents in less than a month. The staple is well below the price advanced to growers by the farm board, whose operations thus far have admittedly failed to establish confidence either in cotton or wheat quotations. Notwithstanding light exports and dullness in domestic textile industry, cotton looks cheap rather than dear at current levels.

It may well be that the spread of cheaper money will prove a stimulating influence on commodity exchanges.

NEW YORK money rates are generally speaking the lowest in more than 18 months. Following Thursday's cut in the federal reserve rate from 4½ to 4 per cent, call money did not go above 4 per cent; time rates were reduced ½ to 4½ to 4¾ per cent for short periods; commercial paper was down at as low as 4½ per cent, while bankers' acceptances were quoted 3¾ to 3⅞ per cent up to four months. At this time last year call money commanded 9 per cent, time funds 7½ to 7¾ and commercial paper 5½ to 5¾ per cent.

It was repeatedly pointed out in this column during the days of rising money rates, rising loans and rising stock prices that when the will to sell stocks should finally set in, cheap money would not of itself and by itself prevent the stock market from collapsing. Money assuredly is cheap enough now, yet the security markets have been able to do relatively little; simply because the will to buy is not overwhelmingly stronger than the will to sell.

CONDITIONS on the stock exchanges reflect reasonably accurately the economic conditions ruling throughout the country. While progress—substantial progress—is recorded in two or three conspicuous lines, notably steel and motors, little or no improvement is visible in various other directions.

Meanwhile, retail trade continues spotty. Special sales feature endeavors by retailers to turn merchandise into money at a quicker pace than is otherwise possible in the present mood of consumer. So far, however, price cutting has not been widely carried to injurious lengths.

BANK clearings show a reduction of 23 per cent over early February of last year. Railway car loadings are under one year ago and two years ago. Although some improvement in employment is officially reported, conditions compare unfavorably with 12 months ago. The general price level is the lowest in five years. January commercial failures were record-breaking. An increasing number of companies are conserving resources by reducing or omitting their dividend disbursements.

February thus far has not done better than maintain the gains made last month over December's poor showing. Yet sentiment becomes at least a trifle more hopeful as the stock panic recedes.

THE stock exchange traditionally is supposed to anticipate by several months the general economic trend. If it has been functioning accurately since the opening of the year, fairly substantial improvement in conditions may be expected. Stocks last year touched the highest point since the collapse. Bonds also reached a new peak for the year, although investment bankers complain that the public's appetite for interest-paying obligations still is quite sluggish.

The prevailing disposition among investors and speculators is to act cautiously until more definite signs appear as to how industry and trade are to move. Also stocks are now being selected for their earnings and dividend showing, not because of alluringly painted prospects.

WILL investment money go mainly into bonds or into stocks?

That is the question now uppermost in the financial world. My guess is that, notwithstanding the punishment many dabblers in stocks recently received, the temperament of the American people is such that stocks rather than bonds will be favored.

An irregular recovery still seems to be the market's most likely course.

Slight Gain Noted In Week's Building

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—New engineering and building contracts awarded in the Metropolitan district of New York during the week ending February 7, aggregated about $10,100,000, F. W. Dodge Corporation reports. This figure is an increase of about $850,000 over the previous week, and compares with $13,380,100 in the corresponding week last year.

CHICKIE

Funny old Jonathan! Fraid the wolves will pounce on cutie's little lamb?

Why was Jonathan always saying things like that?

But she scarcely spoke to Harry Lee as they journeyed uptown. But in the theater she stole a sharp glance at his mild, pleasant face, caught a friendly smile in his eyes.

What a little idiot she was!

As though a man wasn't just as harmless as ever, anything could be! Oh, Janina would laugh if she knew how stiff and nervous Chickie had been.

Dance Suggested

Chickie Declines and Insists on Going Home

She fluffed gay and sparkling. She sighed with admiration over the gowns the actress wore. And soon she felt at ease.

But when the play was over and he took her arm, saying carelessly, "Glorious night. Suppose we take a little ride to Coney Island. I've an idea you really are a wizard foot!" When he said that, she answered quickly and very flushed, "Oh, no."

He seemed insulted. She made it worse by adding, "Oh, I didn't mean it like that. Why—it's quite late now."

He remained stiffly silent.

In pure nervousness Chickie laughed. Her poise returned. She laughed again.

"Oh, well, Mr. Lewis don't be so huffy. You see it's like this: I'm father's only child. He's a queer old fellow. He'll sit up waiting for me."

And, of course, I didn't dream you were going to be so awfully nice and ask me to the beach, so I promised to come home early, and if I don't show up he'll ring up the morgue and the police and the Old Ladies' Home."

He forced a smile—with a touch of sarcasm. "You haven't brought papa up, right here, have you? Well—how's the Palace? That's neat to home."

If you don't mind, I'd rather not tonight. You see, as long as I told him I'd come."

"Oh, well." Then I suppose I'll have to freeze you to death with ice cream?"

She took it seriously. "Oh, I'd like that."

He burst out laughing, but they went and had a chocolate sundae.

At the door Mr. Lewis swept off his hat with the gallantry of a prince. "We'll have to put papa to bed before we go next time!"

Chickie caught the touch of grinning malice. As she went tiptoeing down the hall, Jonas than called, "Is that you, Chickie?"

Pride Hurt

Janina Jibes Chickie About Date

After she was in bed Jennie came paddling in the candle in her hand—face all gentle. Chickie wouldn't open her eyes. They were smarting with defeat.

Monday morning, Janina greeted her eagerly. "You didn't come out Saturday. The whole crowd was waiting. Go to the Palace?"

"No."

"Ah! You'd like to know I take it!" Chickie closed her eyes with a sigh mysterious and taunting.

But a few days later Janina whipped off her hat, her face alive with wicked delight. She stood at Chickie's desk, looking down at the golden head, raising an eyebrow and smiling. She seemed about to go into hysterics. "So you did, did you? Ah, you little cut-up! You did, did you?"

Chickie, sharpening her pencil, gave Janina a look of pity. "Why all the glee?"

Janina, with a full, tormenting laugh, sauntered to her desk, sending amused, half-contemptuous glances at her.

Then she tossed a note. On it was typed, all the letters in capitals: "CHICKIE BRYCE WILD WOMAN! LOOK OUT FOR HER. SHE EATS CHOCOLATE SUNDAES. HIP, HIP, HURRAY!"

Chickie crumpled the paper, tore it into bits.

The delicious incident furnished Janina with a hundred cruel little arrows that stuck sorely into Chickie's pride. Her lips curled with mockery.

"Poor, old Harry! Thought he'd come a-strutting triumphantly out to the crowd, with my lovely little golden girl on his arm! Thought he'd have them all green with envy!

"She feeds him ice cream! Ah! Papa's little baby. Tuck her in at night."

That made Chickie's heart burn. Janina and Harry Lewis sneering at Jonathan!

Sees Lewis

Janina Tells Her About Growing Reputation

And it happened that very afternoon, when she was forced to take some papers into the little glassed-in office, Harry Lewis took them leisurely, asking her questions, smiling, eyes twinkling. "Papa still sitting up late, Miss Bryce?"

Chickie turned sharply, winking, trying to pass it off lightly with a laugh, but it bit too deeply. Struggling to keep her lips from twitching, she said: "I made a great mistake, Mr. Lewis, to speak of my father to you." She rushed out of his office, quivering, lest the tears should run out of her eyes. She expected to be dismissed. She thought, "Now he'll tell that to Janina, too."

But nothing happened, except that Mr. Lewis became very stiff and business-like whenever she went to his office. He rattled papers, gave out crisp orders.

He didn't ask her to a show again.

One day, about a month later, a month of loneliness for Chickie, she and Janina passed him on the street.

Janina said: "Didn't get very far with that affair, did you?"

"On as far as I wished." Chickie answered with magnificent condescension.

Janina laughed quietly. "So? Well, whether you want it or not, you won't get very far with the reputation you're winning."

Chickie stood still. "What do you mean, Janina?"

"If you can't take a tip, Chickie, don't. If you think fellows like Harry Lewis and Chris Thomas—you went out with him once, didn't you?—are going to have their Saturday nights spoiled by a darn little pride.

"It was Chickie's turn to sneer. "I should worry about Harry Lewis or Chris Thomas!"

Janina grew winsome, laughing at Chickie. "Ah, but you do. That's the irony of being a woman. We're all on our knees to them. We've been put there by centuries of training. We watch their faces, glad when they smile, wretched when they don't."

Meets Munson

Popular Broker Asks If She Will Attend Party

Janina walked along in silence. Then she whispered, half taunting, in Chickie's ear, "Not much of a petter, are you?"

"What?" Chickie was suddenly all afire with shame.

Janina shrugged. "Oh, well, men and babies—you know both alike. We have to dandle them if we want to see them coo—"

Janina often talked like this. One day as she and Chickie stood chatting in the office, Janina broke off abruptly, her vivid face suddenly pale. Coming directly to them was a tall, magnificent fellow, with black eyes and a flashy, kingly air. Jake Munson. Chickie knew of him. She had heard endless gossip about him.

Munson was at the head of a big brokerage business, a man about thirty-five, wealthy, magnetic, a lavish spender.

Every girl in Chickie's office was wild about Jake Munson. They kept detailed tab on him. They knew who he was taking out, who happened to be driving a gray roadster he owned. When he gave a diamond wrist-watch to Amy Heaton every girl in the place learned of it before two months were past.

Janina withdrew into a fury of contemptuous silence when Jake Munson was discussed by these other girls.

Now she put out her hand, saying with a touch of eager humility—shutting Chickie out—"Hello, Jake! Haven't you forgotten about tomorrow night? Oh, say, did you hear about Bess?" Chickie was about to walk away when Munson said, "Aren't you going to introduce your friend, Janina?"

"Oh, sure! She's my particular discovery, Jake. My own little shrinking violet. Miss Chickie Bryce."

Chickie felt the man's rich, dark eyes dwelling kindly on her face. She wanted to say something easy, something superior and woman-of-the-world like, but Janina's taunt left her red and flighty.

Munson laughed. "A violet, Janina? What a treat in this day to come upon the vanishing species."

Janina bit her lips, her olive skin dashed red. She didn't say a word to Chickie as Munson left the office.

Not long after this Chickie passed Jake Munson on the street. With a delightful friendliness he stopped and began to talk. "You and Janina friends, Miss Bryce?"

"Yes, we work together." Chickie liked the warm vitality of his face.

He towered over her, smiling. "Well, then, we'll have to arrange a little party. You'll come? I'll tell Janina."

She went hurrying back to the office, aquiver with flushed elation.

Janina was in the dressing room. She put her arm affectionately in Chickie's, whispering with a soft malicious laugh: "Trying a fling at Jake? Better not, baby—take it from me you'll not get away with it. A good fire can melt a little snow. Watch out!"

DAILY TRUE STORY

The Great Lady

TO THE PEOPLE who motored through, Dornville was just another [illegible] little country town.

To the residents, the natives particularly, Dornville was of decided [illegible].

Old Peter Van Dorn had cleared the forest by the river with his ax [illegible] the Indians away with the flintlock. A settlement grew around his homestead. Great grandfather Van Dorn had built the present Van Dorn mansion. An officer and gentleman [illegible] George Washington, had been an honored guest there [illegible] times.

The present [illegible] Van Dorn was [illegible] highly respected [illegible].

Little Zella [illegible] Dornville's [illegible] resident.

Grandpa Van [illegible] was still the head [illegible] Zella's father [illegible] popular [illegible] folks said that [illegible] was lucky.

The Van [illegible] funds were low. The old man had sold off most of the [illegible].

Zella's mother was dead. Her maiden aunt, Harriett, managed the household and grandpa managed [illegible] enough to send Zella through the right schools, a finishing school.

Grandpa Van Dorn often confessed to the few of his trusted cronies that his only daughter and wife had disappointed him because they resembled his sister. The family rather than the wife's. But little Zella was quite like her revered grandmother. To other intimate tants who knew Mrs. Van Dorn well often spoke of the resemblance. Grandpa Van Dorn adored Zella and had insisted that she be named for his loved wife.

Nathan's Ambition

Zella's father didn't do much of anything. He hadn't been trained to it. He and his sister secretly hoped that Zella would marry Nathan Isaac. Nathan was wealthy.

Zella had other ideas.

And after Tommy Lang came on from the city to work in the Dornville Powder Co. office, Zella was sure that she had no idea of becoming Mrs. Nathan Blake.

Tommy wasn't popular with Zella's father and aunt.

"That young Lang chap," said Aunt Harriet, "may be all right, and then again he may not. He has no background. Came from the city, no one knows what sort of people he has."

"Tommy is nice," said Zella.

Aunt Harriet pottled up at the portrait of Grandmother Van Dorn.

"She was a great lady. She would turn in her grave at the thought of you marrying some nobody," she said.

"Grandma was sensible—everybody loved her," Zella said. If Aunt Harriett got that little underhanded crack she didn't let on.

"Mr. Blake can give you a life of security and luxury. Zella—he has been to see your father—we all approve of such a match."

"Except a little girl named Zella," she cried and then, "I don't want a life of security and luxury—I want a life of happiness."

Aunt Harriett said a great deal more.

Nathan Blake dressed in his best, also said a great deal to Zella, who thanked him politely, murmured about appreciating the honor, but insisting that she wasn't ready for marriage.

"But you are grown, you go about a lot, surely you aren't interested in that little whippersnapper of a clerk at the power house!"

Talk 'Planted'

One afternoon Zella was on the side veranda reading when she heard her father and her aunt inside talking and using her name. Zella did not suspect that they had planted this talk solely for Zella to overhear.

"I can't go to Zella about it," her aunt said.

"If I went to her about it she might regard it as a sort of a command. I don't want her to think all her life that she married solely to please us," her father replied.

"Not to please us—to save us—to save father," Aunt Harriett went on. "If we lost the old homestead and had to get out it would kill father, break his proud old heart. he brought mother here as a bride."

"I know."

"But I don't believe our funds will last through another season. There's not much land to sell. Of course Mr. Blake knows this, being a director in the bank. That is why he told you he would settle a big income on Zella soon as they were married. That income would save the place, keep father happy in his last years."

"It would," Zella's father agreed, and he spoke clearly to make sure Zella was hearing. "We can only hope for the best. I cannot tell her that she must marry Mr. Blake, and she may decide to do so, we'll hope for the best."

They moved away.

Zella sat for half an hour, staring out across the old lawn, and seeing nothing.

Tommy hadn't proposed. If he had, how would it help? She loved him, she knew that he loved her, but this love wasn't going to save the Van Dorn home and pride wasn't going to save good Grandpa from losing the home and breaking his heart.

Zella wrote to the girl who had been her closest chum in the finishing school, now Mrs. Harleyson, whose husband was in the theatrical business in New York. Zella told this friend just what the situation was.

"I used to do pretty well in our school dramatics," Zella wrote, "and perhaps your husband could find some small part [illegible] time where I could be earning [illegible] of an expense at home—I positively won't marry Blake [illegible] everything else fails."

That a Van Dorn could become an actress was beyond belief.

However, her friend sent her an encouraging letter and an invitation to come on and visit her.

It seemed that Mr. Harleyson had nothing to do with straight drama, revues were his line!

Mrs. Harleyson took Zella down to see the start of a rehearsal. They went several times.

One night they had a late luncheon in Mrs. Harleyson's apartment and Zella had put on one of her friend's bathing suits. The friend was at the piano and Zella was doing an imitation of one of the dances she had seen at the rehearsal. She was also singing.

"Zell, you peach," said Mrs. Harleyson, "you actually sing as well and dance better than any of those girls!"

"I'll say she does!"

"Look here, Miss Van Dorn, why the devil are you set on straight drama? You can make five times as much in a revue," Mr. Harleyson said.

"In your forthcoming revue, for instance?" Zella found courage to ask.

"Exactly—and I've got an idea, excuse me, I'm going back and find Oliphant."

Oliphant was the "doctor" who doctored up and pepped up scripts and songs and scenes.

Zella Rehearses

Two days later Zella Van Dorn, under the name of Sari Sanchez, was rehearsing.

She wrote to her grandfather. She explained to him that she knew the family funds were low, that she disliked being a cost instead of an asset in the family, that she positively detested Nathan Blake and that she had found work in New York.

"It is sort of literary, in a way, research and such things which I am able to do, thanks to the education you gave me," she wrote.

However, grandfather wrote her a nice letter. He was proud of her. If things went wrong, come home, if not, come as often as possible on visits.

Now, by the old rule Zella should become a great star. She did nothing of the sort. But she had two numbers, dances, and one song. They were featured. She was making a salary that amazed her.

She corresponded with Tom. She wrote vaguely about her work.

Tommy wrote not at all vaguely about his affection for her. He hoped to be in a position to marry her before long and he wrote her about it.

"We'll wait a while—but it won't be anyone else," she answered him.

Tommy went to see her and said he was proud of her and would keep her secret.

She's Discovered

Someone else found out about Zella. It was Nathan Blake. Nathan said he was going to Boston because he was going to New York, and because the widow Conklin, the local modiste, was going to New York to buy materials. Mrs. Conklin and Blake met away from home like this.

They went to a show—it happened to be the show where Zella worked!

That was a sensation to them. But they had to be careful. Blake couldn't admit having seen Zella.

Mrs. Conklin spread the news.

Aunt Harriett went to New York and investigated.

When it came vacation time Zella went home.

Aunt Harriett and her own father met her at the door and told her that it was unbelievable that she would come home after the life she had been leading.

Grandpa Van Dorn heard the noise and came out. They had kept all of this from him. Now he had to know. They sat in the big front room and told him. Aunt Harriett cried and pointed to the painting of the great lady, grandfather's wife, and said, "To think her granddaughter could stoop so low!"

Grandfather Van Dorn banged his cane on the table and said:

"Zella's grandmother was a dancing girl—her father played and she danced and they lived on the small coins tossed them. I was traveling through Europe then and fell in love with her. Little Zella here comes naturally enough by her dancing—by Godfrey I'm going to see her when her show opens again—why did no one tell me before?"

Zella finished the next season, then she married Tommy, who's father died and left him the majority of the powder stock.

Dornville people are proud of Mrs. Lang, proud of her handsome new home and they often say, "She's awfully clever, she used to be on the stage!"

Too bad grandfather didn't live to see little Peter Van Dorn Lang.

STRANGER THAN FICTION

From the Freeborn County Standard, Albert Lea, Minn.—

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Robinson extend their heartfelt sympathy in the death of their daughter, Miss Florence Robinson in Albert Lea.

From the Freeborn County Standard one week later—

Your correspondent wishes to make a correction. We are very glad to know that Miss Florence Robinson is still with us and was married to the man of her choice in Albert Lea December 12. We wish the young couple a long and happy life.

This frail's by far the meaner.

Sir—

Reading that a hieroglyphic addressed envelope reached the "Believe It or Not" editor, I decided to test for myself the enterprise of the postal department. So I dropped an unwrapped, unaddressed stick of chewing gum into a mail box. Three days later it was delivered to Will Rogers.

ONE GUESS AS TO WHAT THEY WILL DO ABOUT IT

(News Item.)

WASHINGTON—Alcohols used in paints and varnishes, which bootleggers have been converting into beverages, will be made more deadly than before by instructions issued by Prohibition Commissioner Doran.

"Bootleggers," says Doran, "will have to take the chance of selling a poisonous product or look elsewhere for their alcohol supplies."

Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., Is 120 Years Old Today

Officers of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., are receiving congratulations today in behalf of the institution itself. Today is the bank's birthday. It is 120 years young. Although it has all the lusty zest of youth, it is the oldest bank in Pittsburgh, in fact, the oldest institution of its kind west of the Allegheny Mountains.

It was on February 10, 1810 that the Pittsburgh Manufacturing Company began to do business, the activities of which included private banking. Two years later it took up fire insurance. After another two years the name was changed to the Bank of Pittsburgh, which had received a state banking charter, William Wilkins, whose term was 1810-19, being the president. Among other prominent pioneer names noted in the list of presidents are John Darragh and William H. Denny.

The bank has been through four wars, six panics and the great fire of 1845. In several of these crises banks throughout the country were adopting various expedients, among them being the suspension of specie payments. It is the boast of the Bank of Pittsburgh that it never had to do so, in consequence of which its notes at one time carried a premium and were on par with gold quoted above par.

Pittsburgh—any community—owes much to its banks. In fact, they are the ribs of the communal structure. In a large sense they belong to the community and are its treasure chest, created and maintained by it for the purpose of continuing the creative process effecting the community and of maintaining it. For 120 years the Bank of Pittsburgh has been serving that function intelligently and faithfully and it deserves congratulations for having rounded out another decade in the second century of its service in the army of builders of Pittsburgh.

Nature's Strange Creations

How Can You Explain This One?

IT LOOKS LIKE A HIDEOUS IDOL, BUT IS REALLY A TWO-TON DEVILFISH.

Strange and diversified are nature's creations, and very interesting must that Garden of Eden have been when they were all created and gathered there in one week.

Hopping kangaroos, underground moles, giraffes that reach to the high tree branches, elephants with noses that reach to the ground, fish that kill with an electric shock, gigantic pythons that drop down from the trees and strangle their victims, apes, chimpanzees and gorillas that hurt our feelings because they look so much like us, snarling jackals, hideous hyenas, eating dead bodies; ants that build skyscrapers taller in proportion than any built by man, worms that create the earth's fertile soil by passing it through their bodies, turtles that live [illegible] a thousand years, insects that die on the day of their [illegible], dermidae ostriches taller than a horse, able to run [illegible], thorhynchus, that nurses its young, lays eggs [illegible] ll like a duck.

These only a few of Nature's strange creations.

Here in the picture is one more puzzling.

It shows the head of a two-ton devilfish, sample of the extraordinary creatures, gigantic in size, that swarm off the northwest coast of Australia. You can imagine how full of life those ocean waters must be to support swarms of creatures like this. You can imagine what little chance a human being would have if he landed in such a swarm.

The picture shows the underside of the devilfish head. The huge mouth is fitted with powerful blunt cone-shaped teeth; they interlock and are used for crushing hard-shelled animals, scooped up by the ton from the banks and rocks to which they cling, clams a foot and a half wide.

There are hundreds of kinds of devilfish, tens of thousands of kinds of insects, millions of kinds of animals of all conceivable sorts, birds that fly above the clouds, strange creatures manufacturing their own electric light, a mile down in the depth of the sea.

Science says that these are the products of evolution. Life started, and the different creatures, influenced by their surroundings and the struggle for life, developed in different directions.

A tree-shrew, that you could hold in your hand, developed into the whale 90 feet long. That whale, as you will see by looking at his skeleton in the British Museum, still has the hip bones that he used when he lived on land. They are small now, rudimentary.

Man is supposed to have come up through the past by the path of evolution, gradually eclipsing and controlling the other animals. We are not forced to believe that.

HOW DID THE LIFE START?

And why did the Wisdom that governs the universe think it necessary to make many such strange and dreadful creatures, including this, perhaps the most hideous of all?

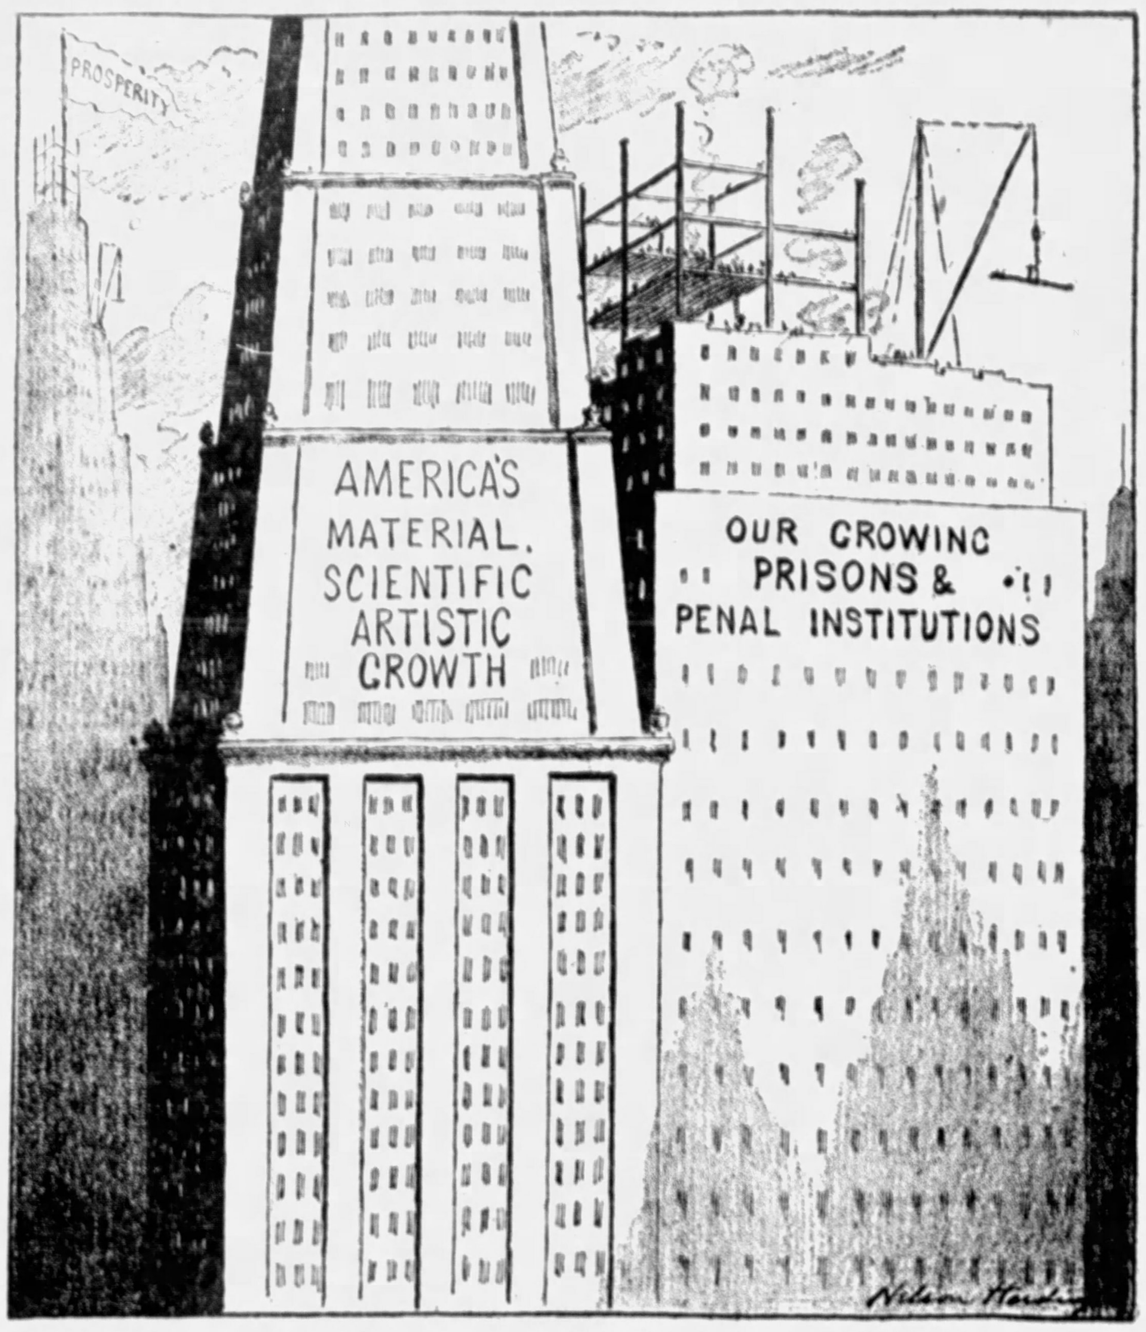
SUN-TELEGRAPH'S PLATFORM

For Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania

1—A better, cleaner, more beautiful city.
2—Rapid Transit.
3—Repeal or modification of "blue law."
4—Establishment of Pittsburgh metropolitan district.
5—Community Fund for charities.
6—Town Hall, seating at least 15,000.
7—Voting machines to insure honest elections.
8—Development of river transportation.

Rival Skyscrapers

Drawn by Nelson Harding



Side by side, these works of mankind,
Are developing and growing,
One in splendid strength and beauty,
One in harsh and ugly aspect.

One growth natural and healthy,
And the other one abnormal,
They present a shocking contrast
And do not belong together. —N. H.

It isn't always the heaviest taxpayer who has the most money to loan.

You'll never acquire popularity by telling your neighbors how to do things.

DIVIDE YOUR TRUFFLES

By Herbert Kaufman

MEAN soil inevitably produces SHORT CROPS. Lone trees soon run to STUNTED yields. Blossoms MUST exchange their pollen—the BEST fruit always comes from an ORCHARD—and record dividends from GROUP effort.

Xerxes failed to master Europe because he believed that he could WHIP an army to conquest.

Napoleon, profiting by his disastrous experience, organized a co-operative venture and convinced the humblest soldier in the ranks that he was eligible for a junior partnership, dangled titles and grand prizes before his regiments, and employed the SPUR of personal INCENTIVE to ACHIEVE the SAME end—and ACHIEVED it.

Mathematics to the CONTRARY—there are occasions when DIVISION is a MULTIPLYING force.

THE more players to the game, the more leeway for GREATER winnings.

If Rockefeller HADN'T understood that, his total fortune wouldn't now equal an annual tax payment.

Marshall Field wasn't a grab-it-all, EITHER, and the House of Morgan is always prepared to add ANOTHER member to the firm.

No single mind can watch in every quarter, sense every possibility, or read ALL the signs of the times.

Even the makers of history had SHORT-COMINGS as pronounced as their gifts. They were compelled to rely upon ASSISTANT wit to furnish the qualities they lack. So must YOU.

Imagination, enthusiasm and fealty won't labor for scant wages. No business will run like clock-work until each employe feels assured of the opportunity to become a MAINSPRING.

YOU don't hold your crackerjacks, because you hold out so little FUTURE to them. There's no inducement for ambitious, efficient people to stay on your UNAPPRECIATIVE payroll.

Consequently, your staff will grow more commonplace as you grow older; and when you MOST stand in need of alert, highpower intelligence, you'll discover yourself surrounded by a clutter of SECOND-RATERS—the culls whom competition refused to hire—the has-beens and never-weres—the disheartened and sluggish remainders of a ONCE productive organization.

The junk-heaps of trade, littered with concerns of your selfish ilk, cry warning that some youngster, who can't get fair play and pay today, will be driven to independent action and return to SEIZE what you now hesitate to give.

TIGHTEN the harness on your bright stars—don't let them break from your wagon. It's cheaper to SHARE with them, than to fight AGAINST them.

A lone sprinter can, at best, cover a short distance—it takes a RELAY team to win the LONG run.

Hang an executive pass-key over every desk and bench, from the accounting department to the shipping room. Remember that there are DELIVERY men in the BASEMENT, too.

Even a Perigord hog won't continue to snout for truffles, without a regular WHACK-UP. If he doesn't get his DUE, he QUITS the job.

And you surely can't expect a HUMAN being to take less than a TRAINED-PIG.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"THEY don't understand!"

How often have you cried that, in your bitterness?

That year you lost little Dan ....remember? You had known that death would be terrible, but you had not guessed that this other terror went with death.... this desperate feeling of being SET APART.... of being all alone in despair. Those old friends of yours....they had become like strangers. The awful complacency of the mothers who hadn't lost any children! They tried to be kind...they comforted you... gave you advice. They said they understood. But they DIDN'T! And, somehow, you hated them because they didn't.

And there was that time you went through your Big Trouble The months when everyone seemed to have turned against you . . . even those friends you'd loved and trusted most. Understanding . . . what wouldn't it have meant then! Like a cup of water to a dying man—

Often, during those black months, you thought of the night Christ prayed in Gethsemane. Great as He was, He longed for understanding too when He came broken from that bloody struggle with His soul. But His disciples slept. And down through history comes His desolate cry—"COULD YOU NOT WATCH WITH ME ONE HOUR?"

You, too, longed for friends to watch with you . . . to help you through your dark Gethsemane. But they didn't. Something within them slept, blind to your agony. How could they betray you so!

"THEY DON'T UNDERSTAND!"

Those are the bitterest, loneliest words a human tongue can say. They're a cry from hell. And they are more than a cry of resentment. They are a statement of a deep and mysterious fact.

They don't understand . . . they who stand so helplessly, watching you with pitying, stupid eyes . . . murmuring words that unconsciously mock your grief. They don't understand . . . BECAUSE THEY HAVEN'T COME FAR ENOUGH IN LIFE TO UNDERSTAND. They are like little children who are still in the first grade . . . but you have graduated into a grim and Higher School of experience. Life is like that . . . a going on from grade to grade. Souls grow up as well as bodies. Sooner or later, each of us must pass through all the grades.

You would not be bitter because a little child could not understand algebra. You should not be bitter with those who do not yet understand Life. You should treat them gently, taking what comfort you can from their love, but not asking more than they are able to give. And if you can do this, there is double blessing in it for you. For it will not only clean you of bitterness . . . BUT IT WILL ALSO GIVE YOU PRIDE AND DIGNITY TO STEADY YOU THROUGH GRIEF.

Be patient with them, if they do not understand.

BE GLAD, IN SPITE OF YOUR TEARS, THAT YOU HAVE COME TO THE BEGINNING OF UNDERSTANDING.

Text for Today Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.—John viii:12.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THERE are very many species of diatoms showing a wide variety of forms; their shells are patterned with tiny pits and grooves so fine as to be standard objects for testing the high-power lenses of microscopes. They live wherever there is moisture and light, but the richest variety of forms is found in the surface layers of the sea; their skeletons may sink to the bottom, as with marine protozoa, and form oozes and earths.

In some places whence the sea has receded layers of fossil diatom shells over a hundred in thickness have been found.

H. G. Wells.

Such siliceous earths may be used commercially; the kieselghur, which is mixed with nitro-glycerine to make dynamite, is an example, and diatom skeletons are responsible for the abrasive properties of certain silver polishes and toothpastes.

Also conspicuous among the microscopic vegetation of ponds and the like are the desmids, algae lacking siliceous shells, but showing a variety of beautiful and symmetrical forms.

Now many of these single-celled plants have a habit of associating themselves into chains or masses, sometimes temporarily and sometimes for the whole of their life-history.

In this way they lead up to the so-called filamentous algae, which consist of chains of cells stuck together end to end. Spirogyra is an example well known to microscopists; it forms slimy, felt-like masses on the surface of ponds, and its cells are marked with characteristic green spirals.

And from these simple filamentous forms there is an equally gradual transition to the largest and most elaborate algae, the seaweeds of our shores.

A few of the seaweeds are green in color—the sea lettuce, ulva, is an example—but in most of them other pigments are present in addition to a chlorophyll, so that the color of the latter is masked and obscured.

Their classification is based to a large extent on these extra pigments; thus, we speak of the blue-green algae, the red algae and the brown algae as distinct from the green algae already described.

The blue-green algae are simple in structure, some single-celled, some filamentous, some aggregated into gelatinous globules, and do not reach the size or elaboration found in the red and brown algae.

They are widely distributed in fresh and salt water. They multiply and swarm like other microscopic organisms and in fresh-water reservoirs their rapid development, followed by death and decay, may cause serious trouble by giving rise to unpleasant tastes and odors.

The plants which give the Red Sea its name belong to this group. The brown algae, represented by the very common bladder wrack, with its gas bladder floats, that is exposed in masses on our shores at low tide and by the ribbon-like fronds of Laminaria that grow by the extreme low-tide mark, include the largest numbers of the group.

The Laminarias that grow on the Pacific Coast of America may be over a hundred feet in length; those from the Antarctic may be twice as large as this.

And there are other kinds in the Antarctic which grow like drooping submarine trees, several yards in height and having a main trunk as thick as a man's thigh.

The brown algae are among the few members of the group that are of use to man; some species are eaten in China and Japan, and before the development of modern industrial chemistry they were used as sources of iodine and potash—indeed, iodine is still extracted from them in Ireland—and they are often used as fertilizers.

The red algae (whose color may be red, violet or purple), like the brown, are nearly all marine; they are a varied group, but do not attain the great size or the economic usefulness of the brown.

Sec. 4. Moulds, Toadstools, Yeasts.

IT is not true that all plants possess chlorophyll. Most plants possess it; but there are exceptions, organisms with an anatomical structure like that of the humbler green plants but not themselves green, living on the organic substances that their green neighbors have built up.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Stirred out early by deafening street noises and to talk to Ed Sullivan, who now authors popular tomes, and talked of his old days on the Herald and we wondered whither winds of chance had blown many reporters of those days.

Breakfasted at Gansemeyers off lower Broadway and the waiter said it was the oldest restaurant in all the town and there was something pleasant about its dark paneled dignity, too. So home clearing off my desk and found a joyous letter from the late Raymond Hitchcock, which I saved.

In the evening to a radio station to watch Floyd Gibbons broadcast, and much like being behind the scenes of a theater. Then with my wife to browse about a book stall and pick up a tattered copy of Grimms' Fairy Tales and home, reading it far into the night.

A baseball reporter tells me Babe Ruth is the heftiest eater among a crew of men with unusually hearty appetites. He has seen him eat a half dozen hot dog sandwiches—his favorite delicacy—on way home to dinner from a baseball game. Fatty Arbuckle, the erstwhile movie comedian, is a runner-up to Ruth. He has at times stowed away a dozen scrambled eggs along with the rest of his breakfast order.

* * *

However, restaurateurs say vigorous appetites are not confined to men of great physical stature. Big Bill Edwards is, for instance, a dainty eater. And Bide Dudley, the pee wee paragrapher, polishes off three whopping meals a day with a few raw meat sandwiches in between and has never been sick a day in his life.

There is a notion that writers, playwrights, poets and editors because of sedentary lives are bird-like in their consumption of food. Two of the handiest eaters in New York are Irvin Cobb and Robert H. Davis. They often round in to Will Hogg's for mid-day breakfast and are still eating when the parlor lamps are being lighted. Berton Braley, the poet, rarely stops before the fourth order of wheat cakes at Childs.

The oddest dish of all, I believe, is favored by R. M. Brinkerhoff, the illustrator. His piece de resistance—that Berlitz lesson will pop out—is a T-bone steak covered with maple syrup.

* * *

And a well known singer, who asks me to keep his secret, says he enjoys nothing more than vanilla ice cream with slices of dill pickle. I wouldn't want that to get out myself.

In gastronomic gaping I have observed pie eaters are rarely dyspeptic. On the contrary they are almost invariably healthful and cheery, which explodes another myth.

Rambling along like this illustrates the power of suggestion. Right now I could gnaw my way down to the bone of a Kentucky black ham. Indeed I could almost make way with a platter of water cress, the absolute Epicurean zero.

"I talked with a fellow," writes Dr. P. J., "who sat next to you at a dinner party and he says you struck him as a bit simple minded."

Wait until he hears about a hat salesman talking me into a derby yesterday.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

SOME one is circulating derogatory stories about you.

Of a greatly exaggerated nature, to be sure, but some little truth about them and so you fear to be too aggressive in denying them.

Rather than have the truth come out you are standing for untruths.

Would it not be better to meet the effect of these untruths or unfavorable facts rather than allow additional evil to be attributed to you?

Your weakness was in allowing yourself to get mixed up in affairs not creditable to your character or position.

If you still keep the undesirable associations you deserve no sympathy.

You deserve the censure you may be getting.

But if your misdeeds are behind you and you are now living close to the narrow path you should fight those who malign you.

Usually it is those who have shady reputations or a past they would like to keep hidden who are apt to attack the reputation of another.

Don't be so fearful of attacking and fighting others with the same weapons they employ, but see that you do not tell lies.

The chances are that the ones who are trying to damage you have many vulnerable points at which you might direct a telling blow and then be let alone.
